GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

THE GERANIUM BED.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:

Old-fashioned now, so much has come of recent times to replace it, but we still have more than a lingering love for the inimitable crimson Paul Crampel, and a bed devoted to it on the emerald greensward. True, one may have to pay rather more per dozen for it than in pre-war days, but a dozen of such nice, bushy plants as seen in the nursery, which go a long way to filling a good bed, are worth it, and for summer effect cheap at the price. A substantial bordering, for which any silver-leaved Geranium is suitable, reduces the central filling, plants of Paul Crampel for it being rather thinly disposed. Fresh manure is to be avoided, but a sprinkling of bone-meal, worked in the soil, is a wholesome stimulant.

CAN BROODINESS BE BRED OUT?

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:

This seems a strange question to ask, as the broody habit is the natural instinct and desire of the hen to reproduce her species, and this is so with all living creatures. Yet we know there are some breeds of fowls which we call non-sitters, as they rarely evince any desire to sit, and when they do they can scarcely be trusted with eggs. These breeds are of the Mediterranean type — Leghorns and Minorcas being well-known examples. It is supposed that as artificial hatching was carried on in ancient times in what were called egg ovens, breeds in these localities were broken off their broody habit constantly for generations, until the instinct of maturity became suspended. This appears to bear out the theory that this instinct can be bred out by special selection in breeding, and we know that the habit has been reduced very much in some breeds, especially in Wyandottes, by breeding from the least broody hens year after year.

FOUND DROWNED.

INQUEST ON A DUBLIN GIRL.

At an inquest in the Dublin Morgue yesterday on Miss Annie Russell (24), of 10 Clarke's terrace, St. James's walk, Rialto, whose body was taken from the Grand Canal near Dolphin's Barn Bridge on Tuesday, a verdict of "found drowned" was returned, there being no evidence to show how the girl entered the water.

John Russell, the girl's father, said that she had been under the care of a doctor for gastritis. She left home on Wednesday of last week at 11.30 saying that she was going next door, and did not return. The place where she was found drowned was about ten minutes walk from the house.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

Two papers on experiments in rural education are to be read at the twenty-eighth annual congress of the Irish Technical Education Association, which opens at Waterford on Wednesday, June 1st. Other papers to be read include one by Miss B. Stafford, M.A., Chief Inspector of Factories, on the Apprenticeship Act of 1931.

Among the resolutions to be discussed at the congress is a suggestion from the Dublin Vocational Education Committee that the use of the cinema for educational purposes should be developed, and, further, that a central reference library should be established for the use of affiliated committees, and that a grant should be given annually by the Department of Education for the purpose of maintainance. The County Westmeath Committee has put down a motion that the teaching of local folklore should be an essential subject of education in all vocational schools.

An ex parte appeal was made by Mr. Barra O Briain (instructed by Mr. M. J. Keane) on behalf of Patrick Hunt, of Milltown, Castleplunkett, Co. Roscommon, from a refusal of an order of certiorari by the High Court to bring into the High Court to be quashed a decree of Circuit Court Judge Wakely in an action brought by the National Bank against Mr. Hunt.

Mr. O Briain said that the action was brought by the bank against Mr. Hunt to recover £65 5s. 3d., alleged to be due on foot of a promissory note by Mr. Hunt's deceased father, and it was brought against the defendant as personal representative of his father. It transpired on the hearing that the defendant was executor de son tort, and that a High Court action had been brought against the defendant's brother, and judgment was given against his brother, to be recovered out of the assets of his deceased father which he might have. The defendant's brother had gone to America, and the defendant was sued, it being alleged that he was in possession of the assets. Judge Wakely, in a reserved judgment, gave judgment against the defendant for the full amount, recoverable out of the assets of his father which he might have.

Last year, said Mr. O Briain, nearly three years after the judgment was given, the Sheriff seized certain property belonging to the defendant, although the judgment was against the assets of his deceased father. The Sheriff executed on foot of the decree given to him, and which, said counsel, differed in toto from the terms of the judgment as delivered in Court. His client must proceed on the basis that the document that the Sheriff held was the only determination of the case made by the Court. There was no power to amend the decree, and the only way to get over it was to quash it.

The Court directed that notice should be served on the parties concerned to have the matter argued.

CLARE ADMINISTRATION SUITS.

QUESTION OF DEPOSIT RECEIPTS.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

An application was made on behalf of Ellen O'Grady, the plaintiff in three County Clare administration suits, for directions regarding further proceedings.

The plaintiff, it appeared, as administratrix intestate of Maria Brody, issued an equity civil bill against Margaret Brody, as her niece, claiming administration of her personal estate; as administratrix intestate of Catherine Brody, deceased, she issued an equity civil bill against the defendant, as her niece, claiming administration of her personal estate; and as administratrix intestate of Michael Brody, deceased, she issued a civil bill against the defendant, as his niece, claiming administration of his personal estate.

Maria, Catherine and Michael Brody were sisters and brother of the plaintiff. The Circuit Court Judge at Ennis, on consent, made an order consolidating the suits, and transferred them to the High Court.

Mr. Cullinan (instructed by Messrs. Kerin, Hickman and O'Donnell), who made the application on behalf of the plaintiff, said that the assets amounted to £1,161, and there was also a farm. He thought that if the question about the deposit receipts which arose were decided there would be nothing else to fight about.

Mr. S. V. Kirwan (instructed by Mr. V. E. Kirwan), who appeared for the defendant, said that he thought it would be very desirable that there should be full administration.

The Master agreed, and put the case in the judge's list for next Monday.

APPOINTMENT UNDER A WILL.

SEEMINGLY RARE CASE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

Reserved judgment was delivered in a summons to construe the will of Robert Staples, deceased, the question for decision being whether an appointment under the will was valid.

The plaintiff was Cecil Henry Fitzherbert, Millbrook, Abbeyleix, Queen's County, and the defendants were the Midland Bank Executor and Trust Co., Ltd., and the Revenue Commissioners of Saorstat Eireann.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that the main question raised by the construction summons was of interest because it related to the case, seemingly very rare, of a power of appointment exclusively to one of several objects of the power. Having referred to the clause in the will which created the power, he said that the testator gave his mother a life interest in the fund. She survived the testator, and, subject to her life interest, the third sister, Florence Grace Staples, took, under the clause in the will, a vested interest in remainder, liable to be divested by the exercise of the power of appointment. The mother by her will appointed first to her daughter, Katherine Anne Staples, and, should she die without issue living at her death, she appointed the residue to her daughter, Edith Mary Wallace, and, in the event of this daughter dying without issue living at her death, she appointed the residue to her daughter, Florence Grace Staples.

The question, said Mr. Justice Meredith, was not so much of what was intended to be excluded as of what was actually included in the power of appointment. He held that the appointment to Katherine exhausted the power. The appointment to Mrs. Wallace (Edith) being ineffectual, the question was whether Katherine took an absolute interest or not. The defeasance of Katherine's interest was not dependent on the appointment to Mrs. Wallace being effectual, for there was a further appointment in default to Florence absolutely. Hence it was clear that on the death of Katherine the interest in the fund passed to Florence under the will of Robert Staples.

Mr. Denning, K.C., and Mr. Kingsmill Moore (instructed by Mr. Cresswell) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Hayes and Sons) for the Midland Bank; and Mr. McCann, K.C., and Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan (instructed by Mr. Collins, Revenue Solicitor) for the Revenue Commissioners.

LOCKED AND BARRED.

NENAGH POSSESSION ORDER.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

On behalf of the Munster and Leinster Bank, Ltd., in an action against Mrs. Nora Cleary, John Cleary and Miss Mary Cleary, all of Annagh, Puckane, Nenagh,

Mr. Corbett (instructed by Messrs. James O'Brien and Co.) applied for liberty to renew an order for possession of lands and premises occupied by the defendants. He said that the order for possession was executed in May of last year, but the defendants had gone back and were in possession again.

Master—Why did you not keep them out?

Mr. Corbett said that it was impossible for the plaintiffs to get a caretaker to live in the house, so they locked it up and barred the windows, and did everything they could to secure it; but in the following October they found that the defendants had gone back into possession.

The Master gave liberty to the plaintiffs to issue a new order for possession.

BUILDING & RECONSTRUCTION

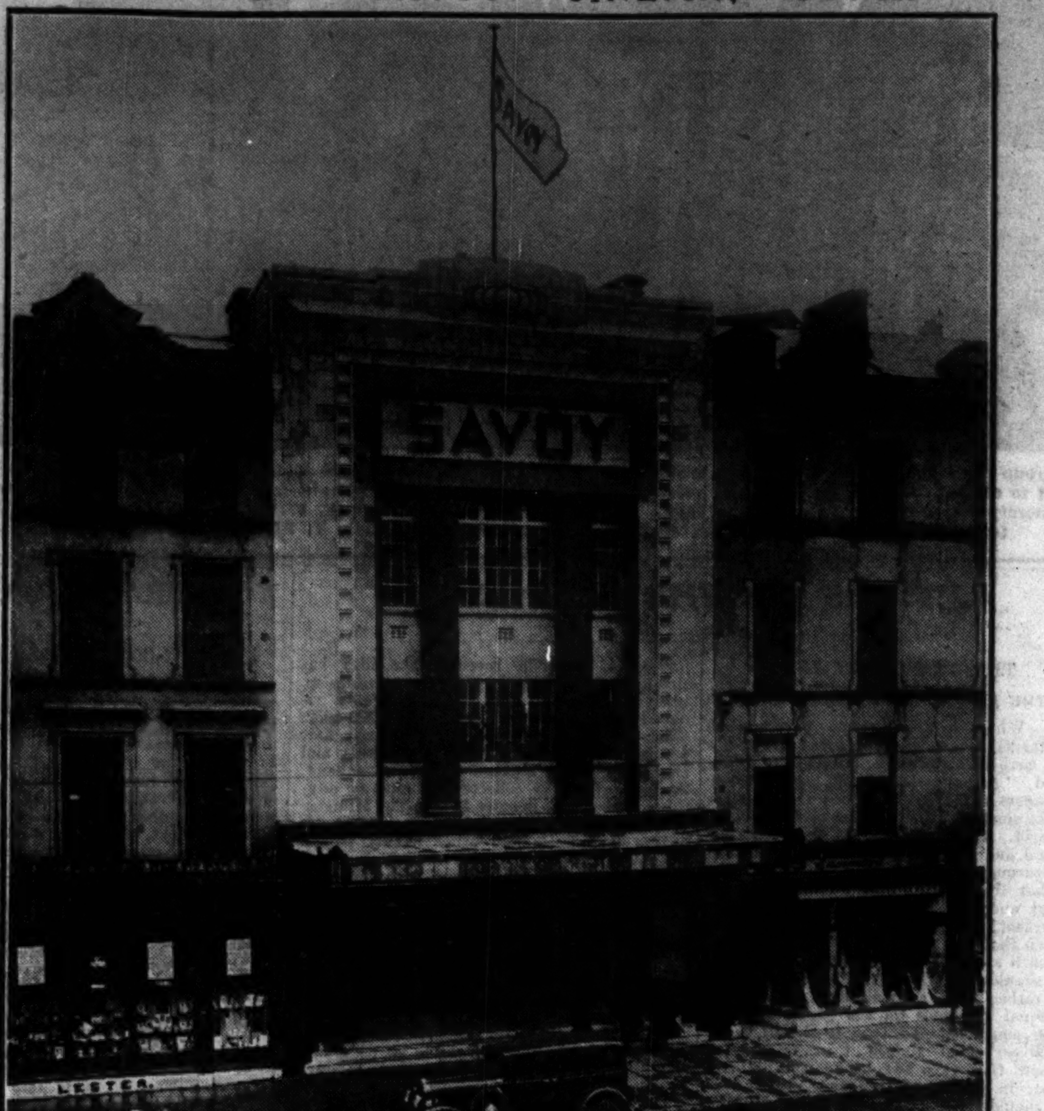
THE NEW SAVOY CINEMA, CORK.



This photograph shows the new Savoy cinema and restaurant which has been erected, with frontage on to Patrick street, Cork; extending back to Drawbridge street, and running the whole length of William street.

The building is steel and concrete structure, hundreds of tons of both commodities being used in the building.

The biscuit-tinted terra cotta façade, picked out in blue and black, present a modernistic, striking picture, the effect of which is enhanced by a lamp-studded canopy, and emphasis is placed on the architectural beauty of the building at night by the use of Neon tubing.

The broad and easy entrances, the luxurious seating and the deep carpets, and the perfectly regulated temperature, all indicate warmth and cosiness.

A perfect view of the screen is gained from every seat in the auditorium.

By means of an air-washing system, which is incorporated in the heating batteries, the air is constantly purified and sterilised.

The work, which was started in September last year, constitutes a record of speed in theatre construction.

A John Compton orchestral organ has been installed at a cost of several thousand pounds.

The sound projection system is the latest type of Western electric apparatus, designed in America for super-cinemas. It is the first installation of its type in Ireland.

A spacious restaurant runs from the head of the staircase to the front of the building, the windows opening on to Patrick street.

Special facilities for the public include lounge for waiting patrons, a ladies' boudoir, lost property office, telephone booth, and booking offices.

The cinema was built to the plans of Major Moore, of Messrs. Moore and Clather, architect, Bradford.

The general contractors were Messrs. Meagher and Hayes, builders, Cork and Dublin.

Messrs. C. W. Harrison and Sons, 178 Pearse street, Dublin, carried out the marble tiling to vestibule.

The Ruberoid Co., Ltd., were responsible for the roofing.

The entire electric lighting and wiring was carried out by Messrs. J. D. Carr and Co., South Mall, Cork.

Messrs. Ruston and Hornsby, Ltd., supplied a vertical cold starting engine for crude oil.

NEW CITY HALL FOR CORK.

The foundation stone of the new City Hall for Cork will probably be laid towards the end of next month. The ceremony will in all likelihood take place on 29th June. The old Municipal Buildings and City Hall were destroyed on the 10th December, 1920, when portion of the city was burned out. The old Municipal Buildings had many historic associations, and was the scene of many important gatherings and congresses.

Following the exhibition of 1902-03, the City Hall was built mainly with the object of housing the organ, which was specially built and presented to the city by the Exhibition Committee.

The City Hall had accommodation for about two thousand people.

390 MORE HOUSES FOR CORK.

The City Manager stated at a meeting of the General Purposes Committee of Cork Corporation that they were preparing immediately for the erection of 250 houses in the north-west and 140 in the Bandon road, and they should be in a position to advertise for contractors for these 390 houses in the next six months. He did not think they should take on any further housing schemes, say, for twelve months. As regarded other work, such as the development of main drainage, this would be a convenient work for the relief of unemployment, and they could prepare that scheme. As for making an immediate intensive survey of all the slums in the city, that, he thought, was a matter that should preferably be taken step by step. They had now dealt with the north-west, and they might consider any other definite centre, but to go on a roving commission all over the city would hamper the work on hands.

The City Manager further stated, in reply to questions, that plans and specifications had been prepared for the north-west scheme, and the members would be able to inspect them. The instructions to the architect were that these houses were to be brought down as far as possible, say, to the £300 figure.

Wexford Corporation proposes to borrow £11,600 for the erection of 40 four-roomed houses.

TRINITY LAW SITTINGS.

CHIEF JUSTICE'S SUGGESTION TO COUNSEL.

The Trinity Law Sittings, which were opened in the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday, will present a formidable amount of work for the Supreme Court. The list was referred to by the Chief Justice as an exceptionally heavy list, when an application was made to the Supreme Court to have the position of an appeal altered, so that a member of the Bar who was engaged in it might appear in another Court in an important case, which, it was stated, would occupy a fortnight in hearing.

The Chief Justice announced that the Court proposed to go through the list as the appeals were ready for hearing, and, observing that some cases had occupied an unduly long time, he said that he hoped that the Court could rely on counsel helping them to get through expeditiously that heavy list that they had to dispose of.

CHURCH SERVICES.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

A Holiday by Caravan : Matthew Arnold and Thomas Moore.
The Royal Portraits at Armagh : The French "Pat."
A Premature Present.

From "Pat" to "Pierre."

In one sense it may be said that every nation has its own humour, but in another sense humour is as universal as human nature. I listened to a Frenchman recently telling some stories about one Pierre, who was not a real person, but an imaginary man—the typical Frenchman, the hero of a thousand adventures very similar to those of our own Paddy, the inevitable Scotsman, or the Alf or Bert of England. Pierre even had met the American who was not impressed by the bridges and cathedrals in France, and insisted that there were much larger and finer specimens in his own country. At dinner, however, the American admired the lobster. "But no," said Pierre, "it is a shrimp."

Like all adventurers Pierre had not always the gods on his side. In a café he had a furious quarrel with an Alsatian. In his rage he threw off his coat and rolled up his shirt-sleeves, while the Alsatian did likewise. "Hold me back," cried Pierre, "or I shall kill him." Nobody moved to interfere, and Pierre glared indignantly at them. "What," he said. "Is it that you don't hold people back in this café, then?" The stories about Pierre, in fact, were all old friends in new clothes, but they were interesting as a sign that what amuses our neighbours amuses ourselves.

A Caravan Holiday.

I am surprised that caravanning is not more popular in these days, when everybody who is fortunate enough to be able to afford a holiday at all has to reduce the cost to a minimum. A caravan tour supplies an ideal holiday for those who wish to combine economy with variety. If you have a motor car, there are many types of light vans which can be hitched on behind it, but these are inclined to be rather expensive for the person of limited means.

A friend of mine, however, solved the problem of a caravan holiday with moderate outlay. He did not possess a motor car, but wanted to spend his holiday touring the country; so he bought the chassis of an old motor lorry for a "fiver." It had no engine, but the remainder of the frame was good, and its tyres were still serviceable. He had the ancient skeleton taken round to his back-yard, and amused himself during the winter by building a caravan body on it. He has added a pair of shafts, and the result is a very presentable horse-drawn turn-out. He claims that the holiday will be one of the cheapest that he has ever spent. If he camps on by-roads, his horse, which he hopes to pick up for a few more pounds, will be able to get good grazing free, so that he will have to buy only an occasional bag of oats, to which some friendly farmers may add a few roots.

Matthew Arnold on Irish Books.

The recent anniversary of the death of Matthew Arnold reminds me that he had a warm affection for Irish literature. He was deeply impressed by the number of vellum manuscripts possessed by Trinity College, Dublin, and the Royal Irish Academy, and their fascinating titles. In his book on Celtic literature—which, by the way, is anything but authoritative—he remarks that these books contain enough matter to fill 11,400 ordinary pages, and that the additional paper manuscripts at Trinity would fill 30,000 pages more. "These pages," he says, "contain records of battles, voyages, sieges, tragedies, cow-spoils, courtships, adventures, expeditions, banquets, loves, elopements and visions. The 'Annals of the Four Masters' give the years of foundations and destruction of churches and castles, the obituaries of remarkable persons, the inauguration of kings, the battles of chiefs, the conquests of clans, and the ages of bards, abbots and bishops. Of what a treasure-house of resources for the history of Irish life and Irish genius does that bare list, even by itself, call up the image!"

Moore's History.

The knowledge of the existence of this vast collection of material produced a similar effect on Thomas Moore, the poet, during one of his last visits to his native land. In 1839, while contemplating the composition of a history of Ireland, Moore, accompanied by his friend, Dr. Petrie, visited Eugene O'Curry, who was then engaged in historical research at the Royal Academy. Moore had previously spoken disparagingly of the value of these old manuscripts to the historian, although he had never seen them. When he entered the room O'Curry had the Book of Ballymote, the Annals of the Four Masters and several other old manuscripts before him. Seeing this array of material, the poet looked a little disconcerted, but after a time he opened the Book of Ballymote, inquired what it was, and Dr. Petrie and O'Curry entered into a short explanation of the contents. Moore listened attentively, and, when the explanation was over, he turned to Dr. Petrie and said: "Petrie, these huge tomes could not have been written by fools or for any foolish purpose. I never knew anything about them before, and I had no right to have undertaken a history of Ireland."

The Royal Portraits at Armagh.

It is not generally known, I believe, that there is a remarkable collection of portraits of Kings and Queens of England, known as the Royal portraits, in the Primate's Palace at Armagh. They include paintings of Charles I.; Mary, the Consort of William III.; George I., Queen Anne, George II., George III., and William III., in addition to the Duke of Schomburg, the Elector of Hanover; Frederick, Prince of Wales; Queen Charlotte, and Prince George of Denmark. Most of these paintings are by famous artists, including Sir Joshua Reynolds, and the painting of Queen Charlotte was in Kensington Palace during the reign of Queen Victoria, who expressed a desire to have it. In the Palace also there are portraits of all the Primates from the time of Primate Adam Loftus.

A Novel Present.

Surely one of the strangest presents ever received was that given the other day to the Reverend Will Whalen, of the Jesuit Mission near Orrtanna, Pennsylvania. It took the form of a tombstone, on which was engraved the priest's name, leaving a space blank for the date of his death. The tombstone, which originally stood over the grave of a William Young, who died in 1905, was recently taken away by his relatives, who desired to put a more imposing one in its place. At their suggestion it was offered to Father Whalen, who immediately accepted it for himself. The characters were removed from it; the new ones chiselled in their place are complete, even to the text on the bottom chosen by its new owner. "I got a great deal of satisfaction in seeing my grave already marked," Father Whalen remarked, "for I know now that I will rest among the people whom I love."

QUIDNUNC.

BETWEEN THE ACTS.

THE PASSING OF LADY GREGORY.

By Our Theatre Correspondent.

THIS week everyone who takes an interest in the theatre in Ireland will be mourning the death of Lady Gregory. For over twenty-seven years she was the dominating figure in the Abbey Theatre, writing its plays, encouraging its actors and actresses, advising its dramatists, taking more than her share of its administrative troubles, and, when the occasion arose, either fighting its battles or singing its praises. Her struggle with the Lord Lieutenant over the production of Shaw's "Shewing-up of Blanco Posnet," twenty-three years ago, was one of the great moments in a career that was filled with big events, and her victory on that important occasion placed the Abbey Theatre outside the control of Dublin Castle, as Mr. Yeats's victory a little earlier had placed it outside the control of hostile audiences.

A PIONEER.

Lady Gregory was the kind of pioneer that Ireland needed most in the early years of the present century, and it was to her suggestion that the now-famous Irish drama and Abbey Theatre both owe their origin and development. It was she who turned the thoughts of the dramatist-founders of the Irish Literary Theatre towards Dublin; it was she who sought and secured the guarantees that made the venture in Dublin possible—probably no other person could have gathered about the experiment the support of such opposing and diverse persons and groups—and it was she who brought popularity to the Abbey Theatre in its early struggling days by her little farces and comedies.

It is not too much to say that she inspired the Abbey Theatre; she gave the inspiration that led to its foundation, and for the greater part of her life she tended it with a motherly affection and care. She was the mother of the Abbey Theatre, as another famous woman of the theatre, Miss A. E. F. Horniman, was its nurse.

LATE DEVELOPMENT.

There was always some little mystery about Lady Gregory's age, but that mystery has now been cleared by the official statement that she was 80 years old when she died. Reference books—when they gave her age at all—gave her birth-date as either 1856 or 1859, but evidently she was actually born in 1852. This, perhaps, accounts for the mid nineteenth century folk with whom her plays are filled, as many of them seem to have been founded upon the memories of her youth in Galway. She was 51 years old when her first little play was staged in 1903, and she was 75 when her latest play was staged at the Abbey Theatre. Between 1903 and the date of her death she would seem to have written (or collaborated in the writing) or translated or adapted some 41 plays, of which all except four have been produced at the Abbey Theatre. To have produced so much, while starting so late, is in itself a great achievement, but to have given to Ireland and to the world a new drama and a new theatre may, perhaps, be considered a greater achievement. At the moment of its triumphant return, the Abbey Theatre Company is plunged into this great sorrow, but that sorrow will be borne with the knowledge that what Lady Gregory created will endure, and that the world shares its grief.

HELP FOR AMATEURS.

The information that the Carnegie Trust has initiated a new competition for amateur dramatic societies, to be held annually in the County Antrim town of Ballymoney, will be received with delight. That a competition for new plays is to be included will bring joy to the younger dramatists of the North, who deserve more encouragement than they receive. The Carnegie Trust has recently relieved the Sadlier's Wells Theatre of a great part of its debt; and last year it paid to the British Drama League £627, to the St. Pancras People's Theatre £250, and to the Repertory Company at the Bermondsey Settlement £25.

This seems to be the wealthy patron we sighed for a week or so ago, and if the amateur dramatic societies in Ireland could be induced to join in some kind of centralised organisation it is likely that considerable aid might be forthcoming from the Carnegie Trust. An Irish Drama League, with a first-class producer in its service, with a library of plays and books about plays at the disposal of its members, and with a stock of settings and costumes in its store, would do more to raise the standard of amateur productions in this country than any other kind of assistance. Such an organisation would control competitions and find the trophies to be awarded.

NEXT WEEK.

Next week the Abbey Theatre will re-open with the play that was accounted by the American Press the outstanding item in its repertory during the recent tour. It will be good to see F. J. McCormick, M. J. Dolan, Barry Fitzgerald, Arthur Shields, P. J. Carolan, Eileen Crowe, Maureen Delany, May Craig, and their colleagues once more in "The Far-Off Hills," so that a very cordial welcome awaits them.

At the Gaiety Theatre the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company will begin on Monday next three weeks of Gilbert and Sullivan opera, which will also be assured large and enthusiastic audiences. These "Savoy" operas seem to gain rather than lose by the passing of the years, and new generations enjoy them as thoroughly as did their elders.

At the Theatre Royal a strong variety programme is headed by "Chefalo," the "world's greatest necromancer," and a special attraction for Dublin audiences will be the appearance of Miss Renée Flynn, the popular Dublin singer.

The Olympia also offers an excellent vaudeville programme, and at the Capitol a splendid series of "turns" now occupies more than half the programme. With light opera, comedy and vaudeville all available, Dublin theatre-goers have little cause to complain.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE TAX ON NEWS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—While supporting the principle of Press tariffs—which, by the way, I advocated in an article in Studies, December, 1927, entitled "A Suggested Tariff on Imported Newspapers and Magazines"—I should wish to make some comments on the present magazine tariff. I believe that we should accept the good and reject the rubbish that England offers through her printing-press. Hence I feel that literary, scientific, technical, educational and religious journals should, for the present, be admitted free. Moreover, I consider that the tariff on the more popular type, such as the fiction and illustrated magazines, should be on an ad valorem percentage basis rather than a small level tax falling with equal incidence on the penny and the shilling magazine, and that it should be at least 50 per cent. Indeed, I am inclined to the view that it would be in the national interest, in the present cultural crisis, that there should be part or complete prohibition of the "trashy" type of journal.

I am convinced that there should be specially drastic action taken as regards the juvenile magazines. The attitude towards the imported juvenile journal is largely a reflection of the attitude to the revival of Gaelic culture. If one regards the determined efforts of the late and present Governments to revive our language and culture as so much waste of money and time, then the tariff will be viewed with cynicism and bitterness. If, on the other hand, one considers them of supreme national importance, and that the present and next generation of our young people will probably be the decisive factors in the issue of failure and success, then nothing will be thought too strong that cripples or destroys the denationalising influence of a juvenile Press produced for the children of another people, whose ideals of life, conduct, nationality and culture are largely different to ours. In passing, I may say that I believe that great harm is done psychologically to the Irish boy through the fact that all the heroes, adventurers, fighting men and flying men of whom he reads are always men of another race. The resulting tendency is to develop unconsciously the inferiority-complex in his imaginative youthful days, which is calculated to prove an unrecognised, but a real, hindrance to success in his future life.

At present we import fifty-five weekly juvenile papers, and do not produce even one ourselves. I venture to say that there is not another nation in the world, with any pretensions to nationhood, civilisation or culture, where such a condition obtains. Surely, it is time that this anomaly were ended. The remedy that I would suggest for developing our own juvenile journals is as follows:—No magazine for the young should be allowed to circulate that did not devote to stories or matters of national interest at least twenty-five per cent. of its space (independent of advertisements), half of which space must be allotted to matter in the national language, which should be of such a character as may be read with interest by the type of child for whom the magazine is intended. Incidentally, the much-needed recreational Gaelic reading in the home, so essential a supplement to the teaching in the school, will be afforded, and a money stimulus given towards the development of writers in the language. This idea may find much wider application later on, when the difficult problem of the imported newspapers is to be dealt with.—Yours, etc.,

R. S. DEVANE, S.J.

Dublin, May 25th, 1932.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your readers, no doubt, realise how harshly the newspaper tax has interfered with the earnings of newspapers, and the manner in which the public have been prevented from enjoying the pleasure derived in the reading of their favourite periodical and magazine. Further, the children are now deprived of their weekly comic paper and fairy tale books; yet we live in a free country. The newspaper tax, as it stands, imposes a burden upon the trade that will cripple many retailers, and will cause unemployment among the ranks of those in the employment of wholesale agents at a time when there is no chance of employment elsewhere. Although the tax has now been in existence for twelve working days, retail newsagents are still receiving instructions from their customers to cancel orders, every cancellation being equal to another reduction in wages, while overhead expenses keep soaring to unknown heights. In my own case, I have already lost fifty per cent. of a business that has taken twelve years' hard work to establish.

If the tax is meant as an effort to cleanse the minds and purify the thoughts of the people in the Irish Free State, I think that representatives of those mostly concerned ought to have been consulted. No opportunity was given to any section of the newspaper trade or the public, and the imposition of the tax is a lamentable admission that the Censorship Act is a failure. If the tax is meant to bring in revenue, the idea has already defeated its object. The earnings of many newsagents will be considerably reduced for the income tax year 1931-1932. Their trade being reduced by at least fifty per cent., their supplies of periodicals and magazines being reduced by a like amount, the amount of tax collectable cannot be anything like that imagined by the Minister for Finance. Already many people are having periodicals and other weekly papers posted to them by their friends in England, and, for every one thus sent into the Irish Free State, a halfpenny goes into the returns of the British Post Office. I understand that the Minister for Industry and Commerce is in possession of a suggested means of revenue by way of tax on all cross-Channel papers that will do no injury to any Irish Free State interest and is worth the serious consideration of his Department.

There is such a big difference of opinion among all ranks of the clergy in all Churches, concerning the supposed immorality contained in English periodicals and magazines, that it is well-nigh impossible for either the Minister for Finance or those connected with the trade to act as censor of public morals. Even the members of the Censorship Board cannot always agree. Abuse or destructive criticism will not help matters, and I suggest that representatives of the publishers, wholesalers, retailers and, if necessary, the public and Churches should be invited to state their case before it is definitely decided to let the present tax remain. If this is done, the Ministers for Finance and Industry and Commerce will be better able to balance the scales of justice than they are at present.—Yours, etc.,

DR. NATHANIEL ALCOCK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Dr. Ellison need not have been puzzled over the memorial tablet to Dr. Alcock, which has long been a conspicuous object on the southern slope of Carrickgolloghan, and is the subject of a reference in Joyce's very popular book, "The Neighbourhood of Dublin." The book, by the way, was published in 1912, when the Dr. Nathaniel Alcock to whom Dr. Ellison refers was still alive. Like Dr. Ellison, I had the privilege of counting among my friends the late Dr. Nathaniel H. Alcock, who was specially associated with me in the study of Irish bats. What relation he may have been to the Dr. Nathaniel Alcock commemorated in the tablet I do not know; but they were presumably of one family, and the second Dr. Alcock is certainly not referred to in the tablet.—Yours, etc.,

"CASANOVA."

GREAT SPECTACLE AT THE COLISEUM.

LONDON, Wednesday.

"Casanova," a play with music, produced at the Coliseum, is based on the adventures of a charlatan who flourished in the 18th century, when all Europe was the scene of his love affairs. The central figure in a gorgeous spectacle, he becomes almost an ordinary individual, but a thread on which is linked a succession of some of the most wonderful scenes yet displayed on the London stage. The pictures of Venice alone would be a sufficient spectacle, seeing that they open in the city, continue in the San Samuele Theatre, and conclude with the carnival on the Piazza and the Rialto Bridge, wherein hundreds of dancers, many gondolas, and illuminated palaces make a riot of colour and movement almost bewildering in its rapid changes.

Apart from pictures, there are scenes at the Courts of the Empress Catherine, the Empress Maria Theresa, and other centres, all resplendent with marvellous dresses and stage production.

As a play, "Casanova" is nothing great, but as a spectacle it is superb. The music is mostly by Johann Strauss, tuneful and vivacious. Signor M. Autori, as Casanova, has a magnificent voice, but scarcely fits the rôle of an adventurer on the grand scale. His singing, however, was greatly appreciated. There are several first-class actresses playing important parts, such as Miss Marie Lohr, Miss Dorothy Dickson, Miss Winkelstein, and Mme. Soffi Schonning, each scoring a success, while a boy, Robert Cheeseman, made a hit with some gipsy ballads.

Dr. Erik Charell produced the play, which is by Hans Müller and Harry Graham. The reception given to the production was most enthusiastic.

The Hon. Aretas Akers-Douglas, son and heir of Viscount Chilston, was married yesterday at Prince's Row Register Office, London, to Miss Irene Goss, daughter of the late Mr. George Richard Goss.

CURRAGH RACES.

IRISH 2,000 GUINEAS DAY.

There was a very small gathering at the Curragh yesterday for the second day of the May meeting, when the principal event on the programme was the race for the Irish Two Thousand Guineas. English racehorse owners were among those who made a bid for the prize, and Sir Mathew Wilson crossed from the other side to see his horse, Solomon's Seal, which started favourite, run, but lost rather unluckily to the Irish-owned Lindley.

Lovely weather favoured the meeting. Although the atmosphere was distinctly chilly until the sun shone during the afternoon, everyone was glad that for once the showers kept off.

The tailored coat and skirt for race meetings undoubtedly looks the smartest wear. Many of those noticed yesterday were worn with the fashionable silver fox fur. The newest skirts had four pleats, one centre front and back and at each side, which gave nice slim lines. Country folk wore tweeds, with their attendant pullovers of crochet or lace wool materials. Hats were mostly on the small side, and composed of coarse straws, while berets and scarves of the same material lent a trim note to jumper suits.

THE ATTENDANCE.

Among those in the members' enclosure were:—The Earl and Countess of Fingall, Lord and Lady Osborne Beauclerk, Lord and Lady Talbot de Malahide, Lady de Freyne, Captain and Lady Dorothie Moore, Lady Lambart, Sir Oliver Lambart, Sir Francis and Lady Brooke, Sir Harry and Lady Greer, Sir Walter and Lady Nugent, Sir Lingard Goulding, the Hon. Brinsley and Mrs. Plunket, the Hon. Gerald and Mrs. Wellesley, Captain and Mrs. G. F. Dunne, Miss G. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dudgeon, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Maher.

Major and Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Boylan, Mrs. D. More O'Ferrall, Mr. F. More O'Ferrall, Mr. R. More O'Ferrall, Major and Mrs. E. Shirley, Captain D. Daly, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burrel, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bacon, Mr. O. V. Watney, Mr. Ernest Bellaney, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Millais, Mrs. Dennehy, Miss Dennehy, Mrs. Lennon, Miss Lennon, Major H. C. Crozier, Mr. C. McCormack, the Right Hon. T. K. TRUST OFFICES HANDLE 11,000,000 COUNTERFOILS.

"Just clearing up" is the position at which the great staff of the Irish Hospitals' Trust has arrived in regard to the Derby Sweepstake. The temporary workers will not be required after to-day. Nearly a thousand will be kept on to cope with the routine work of completing all business after the Derby has been run and won.

The staff is estimated to have passed nearly eleven million counterfoils through its hands, and the organisation which has carried through so large a transaction in so short a time is a remarkable manifestation of Irish business aptitude.

DENTAL BOARD MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of the Dental Board was held yesterday in the Boardroom, 57 Merrion square, Dublin. The following members of the Board attended:—James E. Hogan, M.A., L.D.S., President (in the chair); Daniel Lane Kelly, LL.M., R.C.P.Irel.; George Crockatt Johnston, Alfred J. McGinty, Kieran McGrath, L.D.S., B.D.S., M.B.; John Isidore Potter, M.D.S., N.U.Irel.; Kevin Emmet O'Duffy, L.D.S., R.C.S.Edin.; R. Atkinson Stoney, F.R.C.S.I., and the Registrar, W. McA. McCracken.

The reports of the various committees were received and adopted.

After discussing at great length the use of the title or description "Dental Surgeon" or "Surgeon Dentist," a resolution was passed by the Board recording the opinion of the Board.

A CELEBRITY CONCERT.

A CELEBRITY concert in the Royal Albert Hall, London, to-night, which commences at eight o'clock, and will be relayed by the National Station, is being given in aid of the Musicians' Benevolent Fund. The list of celebrities to be heard is most imposing, and includes Friedrich Schorr, Guilhelmina Suggia and Wilhelm Backhaus, while Sir Edward Elgar and Sir Henry Wood are among those who will conduct. The Musicians' Benevolent Fund is eleven years old, and, though it began in a very modest way, it now helps yearly thousands of musicians who have been thrown out of employment. It was founded on the death of Gervase Elwes, the famous English singer, as a memorial and a token of the esteem in which he was held. So modest were its beginnings that in its first year the Fund only helped two musicians. Since then, however, the claims on its services have multiplied rapidly. The organisers of the Fund have acquired Great Billing Hall, Northampton, where Gervase Elwes once presided, and it is intended to create here the first convalescent home for musicians ever known in Great Britain.

THE POWERSCOURT ESTATE.

NEGOTIATION RUMOURS.

That the Queen's niece, Lady Abel Smith, who visited County Wicklow on her honeymoon some months ago; the Aga Khan, and an unnamed millionaire prince are all contemplating the purchase of Lord Powerscourt's estate, was announced in an English newspaper yesterday.

It was stated that inquiries had been addressed to Messrs. Battersby and Co., of Dublin, who are the agents for the sale, on behalf of each of these, and that the price asked was about £250,000.

When seen by an Irish Times reporter yesterday, Mr. Raymond Judd, of Messrs. Battersby and Co., declined to comment on the report.

"Negotiations for the disposal of a big estate such as this," he said, "are of such a nature that it is impossible to make any announcement."

THE CHALGROVE FETE.

CLEARING DEBT ON DUBLIN PLAYING FIELD.

The urgent need in Irish cities and towns for playing fields and similar civic recreation grounds was stressed yesterday by speakers at the opening of the Chalgrove Fête in Chalgrove Park, South Circular road, Dublin, the recreation ground of the 1st Dublin Co. Boys' Brigade.

Senator the Right Hon. the Earl of Wicklow, in declaring the fête open, said that people who in the past had designed cities apparently forgot the need for open spaces as an adjunct to life in congested areas. In that respect, Dublin, perhaps, was as badly off as other cities, at any rate, in its most dense and "built upon" localities. The fête had as its object the perpetuation of a playing ground which for over forty years had provided facilities for recreation among boys, and about £500 was needed to pay the remainder of the purchase money.

Captain Shannon, who said that he had been O.C. of the company for twenty-five years, paid a tribute to the old boys of the Dublin Battalion, who, although they had passed out of their companies, still took the deepest interest. The good-feeling was instanced by the fact that in the hockey competition, which is a feature of the fête, no less than 25 teams had entered.

The Very Rev. Canon Strong proposed a vote of thanks to the Earl of Wicklow, and Mr. B. B. Woakes, seconding, said that he recalled when he, as a boy, helped with other boys of St. Matthias's Parish to fill in a huge dyke that then traversed the playing field, and paid a tribute to the willing work that had since been done on the same ground.

Mr. J. W. Morton, a member of the National Playing Fields Association, said that it was hoped in due course to inaugurate playing fields in every city and town in the Irish Free State.

The fête, which embraces numerous attractions, will be open until Saturday. Among the stalls are:—Refreshments (Mrs. Shannon and Mrs. Barber). Cake Stall—St. Matthias's Stall (Mrs. Strong). Emporium (Mrs. Connor). Ice Cream Stall, Sweets, Tobacco and Cigarette Counter, Bookstall, the Company Stall.

Swing boats, a shooting gallery, and other side shows, as well as golf competitions, donkey rides and concerts, are features of the fête, and there is dancing in the pavilion every evening from 8 till 10.30. Band selections are played by the 1st and 14th Dublin Companies, the Boys' Brigade.

Dr. Ella Webb will act as judge at the baby show, which will be held in connection with the fête at 4 p.m. on Friday.

Scenes from "Alice in Wonderland" and "Alice Through the Looking-glass" are to be presented at Lewis Carroll centenary celebrations at Guildford.

COMPULSORY STORAGE OF BUTTER SUPPLIES.

DR. RYAN ON NEED FOR POWER TO PROHIBIT IMPORTS.

COMMITTEE TO DEAL WITH PRICES AND MARKETING.

THE Dail yesterday resumed the debate on the butter levy bill, when Mr. Blythe sought to delete the section giving power to prohibit importation of butter.

Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, resisting Mr. Blythe's amendment, said that, in return for benefits which they were going to give to creameries and butter-producers, the Government sought power to compel, if necessary, the storage of enough butter for winter supplies, and the sale of that butter at fixed prices. They required power to prohibit imports, in order to prevent the dumping of low-priced butter.

In the course of the debate, Dr. Ryan said that an advisory committee would be appointed to devote its time to getting the best prices, and to examining the question of central marketing.

TO PREVENT EVASION OF LEVY.

IN the Dail yesterday, the Committee stage of the Dairy Produce (Price Stabilisation) Bill, 1932, was resumed.

Dr. RYAN (Minister for Agriculture) moved an amendment, the object of which was to prevent butter factors selling butter for farmers on commission in order to evade the levy. As the section stood, he said, there was a loop-hole which might be availed of by merchants, and which would enable them to say that they did not purchase the butter from the farmers, but sold it on commission for them.

Answering Mr. BLYTHE (C. na nG., Monaghan), the Minister explained that in the case of a farmer who sold butter to the consumer or a small quantity to a retailer, that butter would not be subject to the levy, but in any case where the butter merchant or factor was buying a quantity of farm butter the transaction should be brought under the bill.

The amendment was agreed to.

The MINISTER moved an amendment to secure that factories should receive the same terms as creameries, whereby provision existed for the postponement of the collection of the levy on creamery butter, where such butter was stored for winter use. The amendment, he said, gave factories the same right.

THE PROHIBITION OF IMPORTS.

MR. BLYTHE AND MINISTRY'S POWERS.

Mr. BLYTHE moved an amendment to delete the section giving power to prohibit the importation of butter. He said that he felt that they should not interfere with the butter trade to a greater extent than was necessary; and it seemed to him to be quite unnecessary to have these powers of prohibition. There was a tariff against imports, and they had powers under Acts to deal with any imports that might be abnormal. The Minister, he said, should not take powers to prohibit.

The Minister said that they were going to give certain benefits to creameries and to the butter producers. In return for this the Government sought power to compel, if necessary, the storage of enough butter for a winter supply, and the sale of that butter at a fixed price. The butter producers were entitled to protection, and to get the maximum price during the winter months, unless it was brought down by internal competition. The existing tariff was no safeguard at present, with butter prices as they were. Next winter, if Colonial butter went down in price another 5s. or 6s. per cwt., it could come in here at a price that would break down the whole scheme.

QUESTION OF PRICE.

Mr. BLYTHE said that the cost of butter to the consumer would be 4d. or 6d. per lb. higher here than the world price, and with advantage to the creameries. He suggested that there had been a failure to adjust ideas to the new situation that would be brought about by the bill. They should not bother any further with the question of storage for winter supplies. They were getting 4d. all the year round above the world prices, and they should leave the question of exports and imports to be regulated by the ordinary conditions of supply and demand.

The MINISTER said that it was most necessary to have complete control over imports and exports if the bill were to work. There should be power to prohibit imports in order to prevent dumping of low-priced butter.

Mr. McMENAMIN (C. na nG., Donegal) said that any restriction on the exportation of butter would be fatal to the butter trade.

Mr. O'HANLON (Ind., Cavan) thought the measure would encourage winter dairying.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Mr. DOWDALL (F.F., Cork City) did not consider the question of continuity of supply to the British market was of very great moment, in view of the fact that the Free State's trade in butter with England was only four per cent. of the total imports of butter to that country.

Mr. BLYTHE expressed the opinion that the whole system of prohibitions and export licences would give a tremendous lot of trouble, and cause a great deal of uneasiness and bitterness from time to time in the country.

The MINISTER said that no doubt they would have a certain amount of trouble, but without that section the whole system might be defective. They were prepared, however, to adopt the suggestion of Deputy Blythe, but they thought it well to have that power.

The amendment was agreed to, and, on a division, the section, as amended, was passed by 73 votes to 39.

CONSUMER TO PAY.

A DEMAND FOR CENTRAL MARKETING.

Mr. BLYTHE moved an amendment, the purpose of which, he said, was to enable the Minister to take active steps to bring about the establishment of a central marketing organisation. The bill, he said, would introduce an entirely new situation. It asked the consumer to pay a very substantial subsidy to the creamery industry. The consumer, acting through the Minister, was entitled to take steps to see that the results which were sought for were obtained. Price cutting was frequently attempted by the Irish butter trade on the British market, and there was great danger that as the result of this subsidising the price cutting would be carried much farther, and that the British consumer get his butter cheaper than the Irish consumer would. The Minister ought to accept the amendment and employ pressure, or offer inducement to the creameries to come together again.

STATE INTERFERENCE.

Mr. M. RODDY (C. na nG., Leitrim-Sligo) said that some kind of a central marketing organisation was necessary, and if the industry were to survive the State would have to interfere to a larger extent than it does at present.

The Minister said that to get the creamery business organised properly it must eventually come to central marketing. Under this bill, however, practically nothing could be done.

QUESTION OF PRICE AND MARKET.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE TO BE APPOINTED.

The Minister said that he agreed with the principle of central marketing. An Advisory Committee would be appointed under the Agricultural Act for the working of this Act. That Committee would give practically all its time to the question of marketing. On this Committee would be representatives of the creameries, the factory butter industry, and others. It would devote itself to getting the best price for butter, and would examine into the question of central marketing. He saw no objection to accepting the amendment, but would ask the deputy to withdraw it until the Report stage.

The amendment was withdrawn.

The Minister, at a later stage, said that he would leave the question of including cheese within the scope of the Act to the Advisory Committee, as he thought that they should encourage cheese-making.

Amendments were proposed to include certain creameries in the schedule of the bill.

The Minister said that these creameries did not comply with the provisions of the bill, which laid down the conditions for inclusion in the schedule. They wanted to keep the list as small as possible.

A DIVISION CHALLENGED.

An amendment was moved by Mr. DONOVAN (West Cork) to include the Bandon, County Cork, Co-operative Society in the schedule of creameries to be assisted under the bill.

When the motion was put the Speaker said that he thought the amendment was carried.

The Minister challenged a division, and the amendment was rejected by 68 to 44 votes.

An amendment moved by Mr. D. MORRISSEY (Ind. Lab.) to have the Borrisokane Co-operative Creamery Society included in the schedule of societies that would benefit under the bill was rejected by 67 to 48 votes.

The Minister moved that the schedule be part of the bill.

Mr. BLYTHE said that a certain society might benefit to the extent of £4,000 in three years under the bill, and he thought that before the House voted for the large sum involved under this bill the Minister should give them further details.

The MINISTER said that he did not think it advisable to go into the exact position of the creameries. The total amount of the subsidy would be £18,000 for the three years. That sum would probably represent one per cent. of the pool. He did not think that was a big burden on the remaining creameries in order to save the scheduled creameries from failure.

The MINISTER, replying to Mr. Blythe, said that he would be in a position to give the Dail information about the financial condition of the creameries to be placed in the schedule on next Tuesday.

The Committee stage was passed. The report stage was fixed for Tuesday.

OLD AGE PENSIONS BILL.

PROVISIONS EXPLAINED BY DR. WARD.

Dr. WARD, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Local Government, moved the second stage of the Old Age Pensions Bill, 1932.

He said that Section 3 of the bill dealt with the method of calculating the means of married couples living together. It provided that where one of the parties died the property which he or she left should not be recognised as the means of the survivor for the purpose of reducing the amount of the survivor's pension.

The section dealing with blindness provided that the same means which was calculated to enable a person of seventy years of age to receive 10s. a week should also entitle a blind person to receive the pension at fifty years of age.

BLIND PERSONS.

Continuing, he said that Section 6 of the bill proposed to amend the Act of 1920 so that the age limit of fifty would be reduced to thirty years. In regard to that Act, a person had to be "stone blind" before getting the benefit, and it was decided now to include those whose sight was defective, but who were able to go about the house and perform certain work, but not of an earning capacity. Another section gave control of pension clerks to the Minister for Local Government instead of pension committees.

At present, he said, if a person had established a claim to an old age pension, and if, through destitution, that person had to enter a poor law institution they would forego the pension unless they went into the hospital portion of the institution. It was now held that these people should not enter the institution as paupers, but as independent citizens, morally and legally entitled to the pension, and not persons in charge of the poor rate.

ASSIGNMENT OF FARMS.

The bill also proposed to completely repeal Section 7 of the 1924 Act to make it possible for men in rural Ireland to assign their places to sons at the ages of 70, and to apply for a pension without taking into consideration the ownership of the farm when so applying.

The only criticism was from the Associated Chamber of Commerce. Apparently the mentality of the Associated Chamber of Commerce was that the labouring and farming classes were to provide pensions for others, and that they were to slave away their own lives and have no retiring age limit for a pension.

Progress was reported, and the House adjourned until Tuesday, at 3 p.m.

NEXT WEEK'S SITTINGS.

THE MINISTER FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT moved that the House sit on Tuesday next.

Mr. DILLON asked would that mean that it was intended that the House should sit on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next week.

The MINISTER replied in the affirmative.

The motion was agreed to.

FRENCH MINISTER'S LETTER.

The SPEAKER read a letter from the French Minister to the Saorstat, on behalf of the French Government, acknowledging the resolution of sympathy passed by the Dail on the occasion of the death of the President of the French Republic.

ROYAL ULSTER SHOW.

LARGEST ENTRIES FOR MANY YEARS.

SPECIAL CUPS AND PRIZES.

BRAY EXHIBITOR WINS DOUBLE HONOURS.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

THERE was a record attendance at the opening of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's Show at Balmoral, Belfast, to-day. Entries not only exceeded all expectations in a year of depression, but were the largest which the Society has had to cater for over a long period. There is a marked increase in the number of cattle on exhibition, and they include some of the best bred animals in the country.

SOME CUP WINNERS.

Shorthorns made an exceedingly useful turnout, chiefly of Northern herd representatives, though one Irish Free State exhibitor gave a good account of himself with a promising heifer, bred by Captain Chichester Clark, President of the Society, who, himself, carried off a considerable number of honours.

With his good barrelled roan seven-year-old bull, Anticur President, by Windmill White Star, Captain Chichester Clark won the Shorthorn Breed Championship; the Robinson Cup for the best shorthorn bull, and the Shorthorn Society's special for best unsubsidised shorthorn bull. Reserve honour for all three trophies went to John Wallace, Dunloy, for Balcairn Governor, a two-year-old white of great substance, by Viscount Robin.

The Victory Cup for yearling shorthorn bulls went to Captain Chichester Clark's Scottish bred roan Corston Notable, which defeated Mr. A. J. Marshall's red Desertcreat Dairyman 3rd, which aroused so much discussion at Dublin Spring Show.

Mr. John Fillan's Barr Drogheda won the Victory Cup and the Robson Cup for yearling shorthorn heifers, with Castledawson White Dorothy, a white-coated youngster of nice type, by the breed champion, and bred by Captain Chichester Clark.

The Musgrave Cup for shorthorn cows was again won by Captain Chichester Clark, with his well brought out five-year-old white, Hebe Charity, bred by A. J. Marshall. Her herd companion Glenanne Butterfly VI. being reserve. This triumph of the whites in itself is remarkable, but, except for this, the section was not productive of any remarkable feature.

ABERDEEN-ANGUS.

In a select section for Aberdeen-Angus cattle the breed championship went to Mr. Fred A. Boyd, Gilford, Co. Down, for his symmetrical three-year-old bull Exhidna of Ballindalloch. Reserve went to a new exhibitor, Mr. Adam Poots, Dromore, Co. Down, for Genesis of Jardine, by Judeeric. The last-named animal also won the Robb Cup, for which Messrs. Patton's Boolak of Minmore was reserve, and the Victory Cup for yearling bull, for which Messrs. Short were reserve with Black Mask of Clury.

The medal for best Aberdeen-Angus of opposite sex to champion went to Mr. R. Napier, Downpatrick, for his two-and-a-half year old heifer, Medina of Doonholm, Mr. William Patton's Princess Acacia being reserve.

The best of the Ayrshires was Mr. J. E. Anderson's cow Lesserlinn Fredda, Mr. A. Ramsey's imported bull Kilfillan Landlord being reserve.

In a well-supported section for British Friesians, Mr. Fergus Wilson, Lisburn, won the championship medal, and special for best bull with Brookmount General, Mr. Caldwell's Priestside Admiral Beattie being reserve.

The female championship awards were secured by Miss W. Price, Oldpark, for the heifer Oldpark Ada, with Mr. A. Ramsey's Throne Belle 2nd reserve.

YEARLING JERSEYS.

Mr. W. H. Odlum, of Bray, won the Victory Cup for yearling Jerseys with his typical Ardmore Peter and the breed special with his fine imported cow, Fairseat Beauty 2nd. Mrs. W. H. Richardson, Portadown, was reserve for Victory Cup, with the heifer Golden Glow 2, and winner of a bronze medal with her Ardmore Rossmore.

The Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour was reserve for breed special, and received the silver medal for his home-bred heifer, Conway Elizabeth 2nd.

The Barbour Cup for pedigree dairy shorthorn and the Clarendo Cup for best dairy cow or heifer of any breed were both secured by Mr. John J. Semple, Cullion, Co. Derry, for his 1,010 gallon Red Pearl 16th, by Terence. Mr. Marshall's bull, Desertcreat Dairyman 3rd was reserve for the Barbour Cup, and Mr. S. Patton's cow, Pansey, reserve for the Clarendo Cup.

GOATS.

In a somewhat depleted goat section the Victory Cup for best goat in show went to N. J. Crawford, Portadown, for British Toggenburg Male Ravenhill Docile. The Lady Dunleath's female Swiss Toggenburg Ballywalter Cornice was reserve, and also captured the female championship, reserve for this honour going to Miss K. B. Saundars's Anglo-Nubian, Theydon Andrea.

With the renovations and extensions which have been effected in the showyard, the Society's premises have never been seen to greater advantage. On its activities in this direction, the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, through its energetic secretary, Mr. S. Clarke, is to be complimented. They reflect the renewal of life given to such a body by an access of members, and afford considerable encouragement to farmers.

MILITARY DISPLAY.

In the jumping enclosure there was an exceedingly clever and even exciting display by the Cavalry and Royal Artillery Staff of the Equitation School, Weedon, Northants, and a parade of hounds by permission of Mr. A. Willis, Master of Killultagh, Old Rock, and Chichester Harriers.

Over two hundred trade exhibits were displayed, and provided the farmer with many features of interest in the way of implements, machinery and vehicles. The well-stocked pavilion of Ulster industries was formally opened by Viscount Craigavon, and was well patronised.

DISCUSSIONS ON OTTAWA.

FREE STATE AND BRITAIN.

GUARDED REPLY BY MINISTER.

IN the Dail yesterday, Mr. McGILLIGAN (C. nG., National University) asked the Minister for External Affairs if, in relation to the suggestion made by Great Britain last December to the Government of the Irish Free State, that informal exchanges of view should take place on the question which might come up for discussion at Ottawa, any representation or request had been made to the British Government by, or on behalf of, the Government of the Irish Free State to have the discussions commenced, and, if so, with what result?

INFORMATION SOUGHT.

The MINISTER for LOCAL GOVERNMENT, on behalf of President de Valera, Minister for External Affairs, replied that no exchange of views had taken place between the Saorstat and British Governments on the questions which might come up for discussion at Ottawa.

"We understand," he added, "that our position in this respect is not different from that of at least two other States of the Commonwealth. The High Commissioner asked for information, or suggested discussion, on five distinct occasions between the beginning of January and the middle of the present month. He received certain documents relating to the trade between these two countries on the 18th April. Further information was promised. It must be remembered, however, that the agenda for the Conference was not circulated by the Canadian Government until yesterday, and without the agenda discussions could hardly be expected to yield concrete results."

QUESTION POSTPONED.

Mr. McGILLIGAN asked if the High Commissioner, on behalf of the Government, had made any representations to have the discussions commenced, and, if so, what answer was returned.

The Minister said that he understood that there were discussions. He asked the deputy to put down another question when the President could be present.

Mr. McGilligan asked that the question should stand over until the first day next week.

HOW TO GROW A PERFECT LAWN.

The monthly meeting of the Irish Gardeners' Association and Benevolent Society, Ltd., was held yesterday in Dublin, the President, Mr. J. Stringer, occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of members.

An interesting paper on "Lawns," by Mr. M. J. Gorman, A.R.C.Sc.I., Albert Agricultural College, Glasnevin, was read by Mr. Slattery, A.R.C.Sc.I., in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Gorman. In the course of the paper Mr. Gorman referred to the various characteristics of the grasses suitable for the formation of a perfect lawn, also to the preparation of the soil and the selection of the grasses to be sown. Mixtures of the various grasses suitable for different soils were specified, and the quantities fully explained. He entered into details regarding the application of fertilisers, and concluded by exhibiting specimens of the various grasses, showing their habits of growth and general characteristics.

An interesting discussion ensued, in the course of which Mr. Slattery, in answer to the questions raised, imparted much useful information. Mr. Slattery was thanked, on the motion of Mr. T. Hogan, seconded by Mr. M. P. Rowan.

The Papal Blessing.—A large congregation filled the Dominican Church, Drogheda, yesterday, when Père Gillet, Master General of the Dominican Order, imparted the Papal Benediction and delivered a short address in French. The Very Rev. Father F. Ryan, O.P., Proovincial of the Order, who accompanied the Master-General, gave the congregation a translation of Père Gillet's address. He said that Dr. Gillet was touched to the point of emotion to see the evidence of the faith in Drogheda. Before leaving for Ireland, added Père Gillet, the Pope had enjoined him to impart his Papal Blessing to the Irish people, and he also was going to invoke a blessing, as Master-General of the Order, on the people's children, their families, homes, and their town.

THURSDAY, MAY 26, 1932.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Removal of the Oath Bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday by President de Valera, and, after a debate of some hours, the House adjourned until Wednesday next.—(Page 8.)

The bill providing for a butter levy and the Old Age Pensions Bill, 1932, were under consideration in the Dail yesterday.—(Page 5.)

The Free State Government's housing proposals were announced in the Dail yesterday by the Minister for Local Government.—(Page 7.)

The Minister for Local Government, in the Dail yesterday, said that no exchange of views had taken place between the Free State and British Governments on the questions which might come up for discussion at Ottawa.—(Page 5.)

Emphatic denial is given in official circles in Belfast to the report that the Northern Government may cease to exist if the Oath Bill is passed by the Free State Senate.—(Page 7.)

The entries at the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's Show, which opened at Balmoral yesterday, were the largest recorded for many years. The quality of the exhibits reached a high standard.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The House of Commons last night in committee added Clauses 21, 22 and 23 to the Finance Bill.—(Page 13.)

ABROAD.

One hundred and sixty Nazi deputies fought the sixty Communist members of the Prussian Diet with fists, chairs and bottles, and drove them out of the Chamber.—(Page 7.)

A National Government has been formed in Japan under Admiral Saito, both the main political parties having representatives in the Cabinet.—(Page 7.)

Among the reforms for New South Wales outlined by the Premier under the new régime is the repeal of the Lang Socialistic legislation, which would curb the activities of revolutionary organisations.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At the Curragh yesterday Lindley won the Irish Two Thousand Guineas, Kylevalla the Paddock Plate, Bardley the Curragh Plate, Money Order the Apprentices' Plate, Dr. Strabismus the Novices' Stakes, and Row Boat the Trial Plate.—(Page 11.)

At York yesterday Trimdon won the Yorkshire Cup.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were again very weak, and an all-round fall in prices was recorded.—(Page 12.)

Lausanne and Washington.

The Hoover moratorium will expire at the end of next month, and already America has taken thought for the morrow. An arrangement for the resumption of War debt payments from Britain to the United States is almost complete. The terms of the agreement are perfectly clear. Washington proposes that the British annuities shall be resumed from July; that the amount of the instalments shall be increased, to compensate for the moratorium; and that the deficiency shall be made good in ten years. The holiday from War debts, therefore, will cost Britain about £3,000,000 annually. When President Hoover's plan was ratified last December, Congress declared in unequivocal terms that the cancellation or reduction of foreign indebtedness was outside its intentions. The moratorium would be granted, but eventually the year's instalments must be paid. A similar arrangement was made on the European side, in August, with regard to debts between the various European Governments. Washington's present proposal, therefore, may be regarded as a simple business arrangement to clear up a position which has been rather obscure. Yet there is one important difference between the present agreement and the conditions laid down by the European financiers. The Allies' debtors in Europe have known their fate for nine months; Washington approached its debtors, with a view to a similar understanding, only a month ago.

An announcement of the United States' intentions in the matter of debts was to be expected, but it comes at a singularly unhappy moment for Europe. If it had been delayed for a few more months, the atmosphere at the Lausanne Conference would have been the brighter for the absence of one storm cloud. On the other hand, Mr. Hoover is in no position to let the matter rest even for a few weeks. In June the party conventions will meet in preparation for the presidential election, and considerations of party will obscure every other issue until that election is decided. President Hoover's Administration already has suffered from his supposed tenderness towards his country's debtors. His statesmanlike effort of last year to avert crisis from Europe did much to shake his reputation in the eyes of the Middle-Western farmers. The United States to-day is in the throes of the most acute depression; her unemployed number nearly twelve million, and the balancing of her Budget is a task of unprecedented difficulty. In these circumstances any attempt by President Hoover to increase the burden, or any failure to exact the uttermost farthing of the foreign debts, would be equivalent to political suicide. The current of liberal feeling in the United States may be in favour of a cancellation of the European debt, but the outgoing President cannot depend upon liberal feeling to carry him back to the White House.

In three weeks' time the Governments of Europe will go to Lausanne, and they must go in the knowledge that no further respite from their War debts and reparations will be forthcoming. The prospect is not exhilarating. When the arrangement for the year's suspension of inter-Government payments was reached in London last August the German delegation left no doubt of their Government's view of the position. They accepted the proposals, but they could give no guarantee that Germany would be able to make any payments whatever when the day of reckoning arrived. The situation remains the same to-day. Britain has framed her Budget to allow for the resumption of debt instalments from July, but her ability to continue payments depends upon Germany's ability to fulfil her obligations. If Germany defaults, the burden of the United States debt will become intolerable. The agreement drawn up by the United States is made without prejudice to any modification of the present system of debt that may be made at Lausanne, but it cannot fail to have a depressing influence upon the conversations there. With the prospect of increased instalments before them, Germany's creditors scarcely can be expected to regard her claims in any broad spirit of sympathy; yet they must face the extremely high possibility that Germany cannot pay.

Money for Houses.

Yesterday in Dáil Eireann the Minister for Local Government announced the Free State Government's policy in regard to housing. It involves a substantial increase of State subsidies to local authorities, and an increase of grants, designed to encourage the building of houses both by private persons and by public utility societies. Private persons who build new houses within the urban areas will receive a grant of £60 for every house, and the sum will be raised to £70 if the house is built before April 1st of next year. Small farmers, occupying land whose valuation is not over £15, will be helped by a grant of £70 a house; if their valuation is between £15 and £25, the grant will amount only to £60. In both cases the grant will be augmented by £10 if the houses are built through the medium of a public utility society. The object of this preference is to encourage the growth of public utility societies in districts where they do not exist at present. Farmers with a higher valuation than £25 will receive assistance to the extent of £45. A sum of £40 will be allowed for every reconstructed house in a rural area on a holding whose valuation does not exceed £25. In addition to the State grants, loans will be available for private persons who wish to erect houses for their own occupation. Local authorities will receive loans on the annuity system, and the State subsidies to them will take the form of substantial annual contributions towards the loan charges. Four-roomed flats in block tenements will be regarded for purposes of grant and loan as houses; and all Government assistance will be conditional on the employment, so far as may be possible, of certain Irish materials which remain to be specified. Mr. O'Kelly clearly is anxious that the work of re-housing shall begin at once, and in justice we must admit that he has offered every encouragement to prospective builders. The need of reform, indeed, is terribly urgent. Dublin's congestion and the squalor of many country districts are increasing daily, and speed is essential to any plan of housing reform. The Housing Act has ensured that vested interests will not stand in the way of a salutary scheme, and the field is set. One question, however, must be asked. Is Mr. O'Kelly certain that the money for his generous project will be available when the demand for it arises? Will even the colossal burden of taxes with which Fianna Fáil has saddled the people of the Free State furnish funds, since under that burden the national wealth must shrink to a disproportionate degree? The figures on the expenditure side of the Budget are definite enough; but has the Government any guarantee that its expectations in the matter of revenue or loans will be realised? If they are not realised, Mr. O'Kelly's laudable effort must form another flagstone in the home of good intentions.

Poetry in Prison.

It is said that governors and warders of prisons are apt to acquire gloom and harshness from their gloomy and harsh surroundings. If this statement be true, France has furnished the usual exception which proves the rule. A small prison in South-Eastern France had, until recently, a governor who was not only humane, but a humanist. His consuming passion was the Muse of Poetry; and he pursued her so ardently that he has lost his job. The story is told by the Paris Correspondent of The Times. In his early stages of verse-writing this governor kept his prisoners under strict guard; but soon the sight of iron bars hampered his inspiration, and he spent most of his time out of doors. Then the prisoners began to complain of his neglect; they were getting their meals irregularly and were deprived of the smaller amenities of prison life. The governor, like Captain Reece, of the Mantelpiece, was a reasonable and kindly man. When they complained to him en masse, on a day when he did not happen to be writing verse, he decided that they had the right of the matter, and promptly set them free. That seemed to be an admirable solution of the problem, but, unfortunately, one of the released prisoners did not play the game; for he got into trouble on a new charge. His police record showed that he ought to have been in prison; inquiries were made, and the governor was brought before a disciplinary council. Moved by his lawyer's eloquent speech on the value of poetry in a material age, the council confined its sentence to the punishment of dismissal; yet we think that fortune has dealt grimly with the poetic gaoler. If it had been his fate to be behind, not outside, the bars of his prison, he might have become a famous man. As everybody knows, gaols have been the birthplaces of great literature, and in the stimulus of a cell this custodian of cells might have found the one thing needful. If Cervantes and Bunyan had been gaolers, not prisoners, the world might have lost "Don Quixote" and "The Pilgrim's Progress."

The "Wet" Parade.

The American "wets" are preparing their ground for the presidential elections. Lately they pressed a motion in the House of Representatives demanding a tax of 1½d. a pint on beer with an alcoholic content of 2.75 per cent. The effect, of course, would have been to legalise the sale of such beer, and the motion was rejected by 228 votes to 169. Everybody expected some such result, but the "wets," although beaten, gained their point, which was to determine positively which members of the House were "wet" and which were "dry." While the motion was before the House, a curious parade was being held in New York. It was a gigantic demonstration in favour of the removal of the twelve-year-old ban on beer. The "wets" have found a new argument in American distress. Formerly, as they show, the United States Treasury drew a very large revenue from excise duties on liquor. To-day, when the country has reached the lowest depths of misery known to its history, that huge source of revenue is denied. Moreover, according to the "wet" argument, the manufacture and dispensation of liquor, which formerly gave employment to hundreds of thousands of men, would absorb a large proportion of America's unemployed millions. In all probability the next presidential election will decide the fate of the Eighteenth Amendment. The "wets'" assault will reach its climax, and a defeat probably will leave them too tired to take any further action. Whatever the result may be, there will be no difference in the amount of liquor consumed in the United States. The only differences will lie in the quality of the liquor and in the Government's receipts from taxation.

DUBLIN WRITERS' CLUB.

MAYOR WALKER "ON TRIAL."

ALLEGED CORRUPTION IN NEW YORK AFFAIRS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Wednesday.

Seven hundred society people, politicians and admirers of the dapper Mayor Walker jammed the court to-day when he appeared to give evidence before the Legislative Committee that is conducting an inquiry into alleged corruption in the city's affairs. He was greeted with mingled cheers and hisses.

The atmosphere was charged with party feeling, the Democrats regarding the investigation as a Republican attempt to discredit the Democratic administration of New York City.

The galleries greeted the tilts of the Mayor and ex-Judge Seabury as if they were the exchanges at a prize fight at Madison Square Garden, the former's sallies being received with roars of applause by his Democrat partisans.

Evidence was given before the Committee a day or two ago concerning Mr. Walker's trip to Europe related to the alleged presentation to him of a traveller's cheque for 10,000 dollars (£2,000) by the promoter of the Equitable Coach Company whose 'buses are a familiar sight in the streets of New York.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

COLLEGE HISTORICAL SOCIETY DEBATE.

The motion that the State should allow complete freedom of speech was passed by 15 votes to 7 at a meeting of the College Historical Society in the Graduates' Memorial Buildings, Trinity College, Dublin, last night, at which Mr. Lennox Robinson presided.

Mr. M. Farrell, who opened the debate in the affirmative, said that, on the ground of public utility and social advantage, complete freedom of speech was not only desirable, but absolutely essential. He thought that he might reply to the opponents of the motion by saying that the moral, spiritual, and material development of man to which they could point to-day could not have come about without unfettered discussion.

Mr. J. S. Alcorn, speaking for the negative, examined definitions of the expression "freedom of speech," and, turning to the meaning, that it was giving a man liberty to say what he liked, he asked what would be said if someone stated that people should have absolute freedom of action? People should not be allowed to put forward propaganda which would tend to have a harmful effect.

Mr. E. H. Gwynn, for the affirmative, said that freedom of speech made a public-spirited man, and no one could deny that such a man was a great asset to the State.

Mr. J. W. Beaumont followed on the negative.

Other speakers included Messrs. E. A. Simmons, D. J. Neill, and J. Wellwood (affirmative); and C. Gore Grimes, D. P. Owens, and J. R. R. Thorp (negative).

THE CHAIRMAN.

Replying to a vote of thanks, Mr. Robinson said that one set of speakers had been talking half the time about freedom of expression and the other set brought up the question of censorship of words. When speaking of freedom of speech some people meant freedom to express their ideas by means of speech or play or novel or printed word. He was very glad that the motion had been carried. On the other hand, one saw two great experiments so similar in many ways and so ruthless in their attempt against freedom of ideas and action, and, when they saw what one of those experiments was doing in Russia and the other in Italy, and what they had accomplished in the last ten years, then, he wondered if the opponents of the motion were not right.

Referring to freedom of speech on the stage, he said that the American stage had broken down every verbal barrier. There were only about six words that they could not use in the American theatre, and these words would be said before the next ten years were over.

DEPUTATIONS TO MINISTERS.

INCREASED GRANT FOR RELIEF WORK.

A deputation from the Dublin City Council, introduced by the Lord Mayor, waited yesterday on Mr. Seán T. O'Kelly, Minister for Local Government, for the purpose of urging on him the necessity of a further substantial grant towards relief of unemployment.

The Minister said that another £50,000 would be made available for the employment of additional men. All men should be recruited from the Labour Exchanges, and preference should be given to married men.

THE TAX ON RACING.

A deputation of members of the Irish Turf Club waited on Mr. Seán MacEntee, Minister for Finance, yesterday in connection with the proposed re-imposition of the tax on racing.

The deputation, which remained with the Minister for over three-quarters of an hour, consisted of Captain Dunne, Captain Moore, Major Shirley, Mr. J. J. Maher, and Mr. F. Harold Clarke.

Mr. William Norton, T.D., waited on the Minister for Finance to urge him to withdraw the tax on racing. He made special reference to the case of Co. Kildare, which had been very severely hit by the tax.

The Minister promised to give further consideration to the matter.

PARCELS IMPOST.

Deputies Norton and Minch waited on the Minister for Finance with reference to the tax imposed on parcels of secondhand clothes from charitable associations in England consigned to branches of the British Legion in the Free State. The Minister was pressed to remove the tax on parcels of a purely charitable character.

THE LATE LADY GREGORY.

FUNERAL AT GALWAY.

The funeral took place yesterday to the Protestant Plot in the New Cemetery, Galway, of Augusta Lady Gregory, who during her life achieved double fame as playwright and founder of the Irish National Theatre. At the request of the family there was no Church Service, the prayers at the graveside being recited by the Rev. J. Wallace, Canon Nash, Galway; Canon Harvey, Booterstown, and Canon Warren, Gort.

A score or so of motor cars made up the procession from Lady Gregory's residence, Coole Park, to the graveyard, a distance of twenty-four miles. The attendance in the cemetery included most of the leading figures in the county. Prominent at the graveside were Senator W. B. Yeats, poet and dramatist, who came to Lady Gregory many years ago with his suggestion for a national theatre, and Mr. Lennox Robinson, also a well-known playwright, and managing director of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. The Abbey Theatre was also represented by three members of its company—Mr. F. J. McCormack, Mr. Arthur Sheilds and Mr. Denis O'Dea. President de Valera was represented by Mr. P. J. Little, T.D.

The chief mourners were:—Mrs. Gough (daughter-in-law), the Misses Gregory (grand-daughters), Lieutenant-Colonel Viscount Gough, V.C., Captain Guy Gough and Lieutenant Gough.

Among those also present were—Mr. Raoul Joyce, Sheriff of Galway; Mr. E. J. B. Concannon, Athenry; Mr. L. E. O'Dea, Mr. J. Leonard, Miss Waide, Professor O'Briain, (representing the Galway G.A.A.), Canon Harvey, Dublin; Mr. W. J. Lougheed, Mr. E. K. Jackson, Mr. W. E. Welsh, Gort, and Mr. J. Ross, manager, Munster and Leinster Bank.

Wreaths were sent by the Misses Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Lennox Robinson, members and staff of the Abbey Theatre Company, Dublin; members of her domestic staff, the Abbey School of Ballet, "Francis, Geraldine, Lena and Bill"; Mrs. W. R. Scovell, Lieutenant-Colonel J. J. Burke-Cole, Mr. H. G. Warren and Mrs. John Shaw-Taylor.

RIGHT OF ADMISSION TO OTTAWA.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY AND THE FREE STATE.

Mr. A. Duff Cooper, M.P., Financial Secretary to the War Office, addressing the British Empire Union at the Westminster Palace Rooms last night, said that the complete tariff system which had been adopted by Great Britain would enable them at the forthcoming Ottawa Conference to offer the Dominions preferential access to the British markets, and he hoped and believed that the greatest possible use would be made of such an offer.

In regard to Ireland, he said that they must make it perfectly clear that the Empire was now held together only by the Oath of Allegiance, and that any member of the Empire who repudiated the Oath necessarily ceased to be a part of the Empire. He personally held the view that, if the Free State Government abolished the Oath, its delegates ought to be refused admission to the Conference.

Mr. Lloyd George, speaking at Llandudno yesterday, referring to the Ottawa Conference, asked: "Does anyone know what the Government proposes to do there? Are we going there to bind ourselves still further, so that when we confer with other nations we shall not be free to propose or to assent to any proposal for emancipating civilisation from the tariff fetters that now make international trade almost impossible?"

LONDON LETTER.

HOPES AND FEARS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

During the past few days remarks—apparently, of a pessimistic character—made by Ministers in the course of public speeches have been published widely, and have proved a depressing influence. In the House of Commons this afternoon a question was asked concerning a speech made by Mr. Ormsby-Gore a few days ago to the Stafford Unionist Association, and it was stated that this contained a remark: "We are about to enter a phase of the crisis even more difficult and acute than any we have yet experienced." Mr. Baldwin took advantage of the opportunity to point out that the statement given was divorced from its context, and that he had read the whole speech, which conveyed an entirely different impression from that conveyed by the extract. At the same time, Mr. Baldwin, while not concealing the gravity of the situation, showed that, in his opinion, it was an occasion for good hope, in that rapid progress had been made in so short a time in dealing with the national problems.

The Finance Bill.

The absence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, has given the younger members of the Government an excellent opportunity to show their mettle in carrying through the Finance Bill. This long and complicated measure is being taken through the committee stage by Mr. Walter Elliot, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, who is a tower of strength to the Government. Mr. Hore Belisha, who is at the Board of Trade, is his principal assistant, while the Minister of Transport, the Attorney-General and the First Commissioner of Works are giving valuable assistance.

Dutch Dairy Produce.

Holland is likely to make an attempt to recapture the market that she possessed in Great Britain thirty years ago for her butter. She has been superseded owing to the strong competition of Denmark and Canada. The question was brought forward in the Netherlands States General yesterday, when it was urged that a careful inquiry should be made. The remarks took place during a discussion on proposals designed to afford relief to dairy farmers. These included taxes on butter and cheese, and recommended the mixing of at least 25 per cent. of butter in margarine. The proceeds from the taxation would be distributed among dairy farmers, and would help to bring about a standard price for milk used in dairy farming.

Importance of Ottawa.

The banking and business communities of the country attach immense importance to the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, and a pamphlet published to-day by a well-known banking firm which has been making exhaustive investigations into the manufacturing industries of the Empire overseas states that the failure of the impending Conference would be a calamity of the first magnitude. Great Britain and the Empire have been the dominant moral and financial force in the world for the last fifty years. London is still the world's financial centre, and the prosperity of the world is bound up with the recovery of Britain. The opinion is expressed that the financial crisis cannot end until Britain is established once more as financial arbiter, and is able to lend as freely as she lent before the war.

Fire at Sea.

The underwriters at Lloyd's are still in the dark about the amounts that they will have to pay as a result of the disaster to the Georges Philippar, but it is understood that the sum, which must be very considerable, is spread over a large number of firms. The vessel was destroyed by fire, which is by far the greatest source of danger to the modern ship. Cases of foundering, collision or wrecking cause fewer casualties year by year, but with fire it is a different matter, and the underwriters have paid many thousands of pounds recently on fire claims. Such losses generally are concerned with cargo ships, and, as a result, they have attracted no great attention. Yet the fire in the great French liner has shocked the world, and it is not improbable that a question will arise whether international action shall not be taken to reduce the risk of fire until it approximates to the incidence of other dangers at sea.

Wintry Weather.

Winter overcoats were common wear for men here to-day, while women again donned their fur coats to withstand the almost glacial blasts from the north. It was colder here at nine o'clock this morning than it was at Christmas; the thermometer stood at 47, as compared with 50, while South Farnborough had ten degrees of frost on the grass. All expectation of an early and warm summer has been dropped for the moment, as the weather experts are quite unable to say more than that the cold spell was unexpected, and indications are that there will be no immediate improvement.

British Miniature Painters.

British miniature painters are facing a crisis. Sir Nevile Wilkinson, K.C.V.O., a vice-president of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters, has expressed publicly his consternation at the report that the Royal Academy does not propose to include miniatures in its forthcoming exhibition of British art at Burlington House. A well-known member of the Society said to-day that he was disappointed keenly in the representation of miniature paintings in the present Royal Academy. For years, he declared, there has been no recognised miniature painter on the Selection Committee of the Academy. "I consider this fact alone to be an insult to this ancient and truly English form of art. I hope the public will not completely judge the standard of British miniature painting by the few works exhibited in this year's Academy. Those responsible for the selection of representative British exhibitions seemed deliberately to wish to ignore the work of British miniature painters."

Registration Numbers.

The Ministry of Transport has just issued new regulations to meet the situation arising from the exhaustion of the double letter registration marks for motor cars. In accordance with expectations, the new identification marks will be based on the principle of those allotted hitherto, with the exception that there will be three letters and three numbers, instead of two letters and four numbers. Every double letter combination will be issued again with the letter "A" before it. This will be followed by "B," then by "C," and so on.

Alexandra Rose Day.

Alexandra Rose Day reaches its twenty-first anniversary this year, and the roses now are being sent to various centres, from which they will be distributed to local dépôts, so that they may be available for sale on Wednesday, June 8th. Many crippled girls are engaged in the making of the roses, while the proceeds from the sales go to hospitals and charities for assisting the sick. In spite of the bad times and the numerous demands by deserving institutions on the charitably disposed, it is hoped that this year's total will be worthy of the coming of age of this popular fund.

About a thousand houses and shops in the Charsadda area, North-West Frontier of India, have been destroyed by fire. It took troops and firemen many hours to get the flames under control. The cause is believed to have been accidental.

PIRATES AND COMIC OPERA BUCCANEERS.

SENATOR'S TWO HOURS' ATTACK ON THE OATH BILL.

MINISTER HINTS AT RUDE AWAKENING.

DARK CONSEQUENCES IF BILL IS THROWN OUT.

BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

THE stately Georgian Senate Chamber, with its subdued gold and white colouring, its ornate bas-relief ceiling, and its array of elderly Senators, in their semi-circular rows of high-backed green chairs, provided a new setting yesterday for the discussion of the Oath Removal Bill, when it entered on another stage of its journey towards a problematical end.

The opening passages of the debate on the second reading, which, if one is to judge from yesterday's indications will be long-protracted, were for the most part in keeping with the surroundings, and in strong contrast to the stormy scenes which attended its passage through the other House.

Two suggestions for Opposition policy emerged after President de Valera had submitted the bill to the House—the first being that it should be passed through the present stage and then to insist on negotiations with the British Government being undertaken when the bill came up again on the Committee stage, and the second being to reject the bill outright without further ado.

A " long-distance record " for oratory in the Senate was established by Mr. Sean Milroy, who spoke in opposition to the bill, demanding its immediate rejection, for two hours and a quarter. One of the cleverest speeches that have been made on the subject in either House came from Mr. James Douglas, another opponent of the bill, who urged, however, that it should be allowed to go through its second reading, in order to show the country that the Senate was not antagonistic to the principle of removing the Oath, providing that it could be done by negotiation and agreement.

PRESIDENT CALM AND CONCISE.

Mr. de Valera, a sombre figure in black, himself came to move the second reading, with Mr. Connolly, the Executive Council's only representative in the Upper Chamber, seated by his side. The President's speech was in harmony with the setting, calm and concise, very different to the passionate outbursts which he delivered when championing the measure in the Dail. It was also brief; for, as he explained, the members of the Senate were already familiar with the pros and cons of the matter.

While Mr. de Valera reiterated his contention that the bill did not connote a violation of the Treaty, he was less insistent on this point than he had formerly been. Indeed, he began by asking the House to consider the question " on its merits, without relation to the Treaty." If they looked at the constitutions of other countries they would find that some imposed oaths and others did not.

" One of the peculiar things that strike you on a comparison of them," he said, " is that the country which probably has had most experience of the failure of cast-iron constitutions to effect the purpose which their founders had in view is France. It is a silly thing for the framers of constitutions to think that by inserting in a fundamental law some particular principle which has not general acceptance they will thereby get that principle accepted. It was found in France to be a failure."

ABOLISH ALL OATHS.

Mr. Douglas, who opened the attack as soon as the President sat down, was able to see the wider issues which were involved. The Senator himself, with his Quaker principles, would abolish all obligatory oaths or affirmations, not only for members of the Oireachtas, but also for jurymen, court witnesses and civil servants.

There was not a member of the House, however, who did not realise that far more serious questions than the merits or otherwise of the Oath were at stake, and that what was really involved was not only the Treaty obligations, but the Free State's membership of the British Commonwealth, its trade and commerce, and the ultimate political unity of Ireland

His suggestion was that the Senate should allow the second stage to pass without a division, thereby making it clear that they had no objection to the removal of the Oath if it could be done by negotiation and agreement.

" When the bill reaches Committee, we should ask the Government to explain exactly what steps it will take to ascertain the true position and what step it will take to see that the President's assurance is fulfilled that the constitutional position of this counry will not be altered without another election. If we are satisfied with the statements made we can then introduce an amendment which will provide that the Act will only come into operation after an Order in Council has been made, and providing that such Order shall not be made before an agreement has been entered into with Great Britain, the other party to the Treaty, for the necessary amendment to that instrument.

" This," explained Mr. Douglas, " will give the Government ample time to ascertain the true position, whether at Ottawa or elsewhere, and there will be no possibility of the country finding itself outside the Commonwealth until it has been consulted."

REMINDED OF PIRATES.

This thoughtful exposition was followed by the speech of Mr. Milroy, who urged that the bill should be thrown out forthwith. He summed up the President's insistence on the Free State's growth in status as a convincing condemnation of the action which the President took in opposing the Treaty, and of the policy which he had since pursued. The weight of the President's case was that, as a result of that growth, the Free State was now important enough to break treaties with impunity.

"I am reminded," said Mr. Milroy, warming to his theme, " of the pirate ships of old, which, on seeing a potential victim ship, hoisted a friendly flag in order the more easily to board her, loot her and scuttle her. This is a political pirates' bill, and the object is to scuttle the Free State. The pirates are already on board, and we heard the pirates' chanty in the Dail last week.

" One of the pirates, disguised as the Minister for Finance, is engaged in the looting, and another, heading the squad told off to do the scuttling, is here to-day to enlist the services of Senators in that operation. The press gang has been telling us that if the members of this House do not consent to doing the work of the pirates they will have to walk the plank."

Whether Mr. Milroy walked the plank or not as a result of his attitude on the bill was a secondary consideration; but, before he did so, he had a few things to say about these " comic opera buccaneers," and for the next two hours he proceeded to do so.

GOING STRONG.

The President sat back in his chair beside the Speaker's dais, and assumed a fixed smile as Mr. Milroy sipped his glass of water and quoted at length from the innumerable documents which littered the desk before him, while he accused the head of the Government of deliberate lack of frankness in cloaking his intentions from the people. The smile had faded away before the ringing of the Dail division bell summoned the President to the other House, and when he returned after this respite it was to find Mr. Milroy's attack still proceeding. The first pause in the flow of oratory occurred after Mr. Milroy had been on his feet for an hour and a half.

"I hope," he said, turning apologetically to the Speaker, "that I am not delaying the House, but I have a few more points to make."

The issue which the President was raising was secession from the Commonwealth, contended the Senator, and a question to which he wanted an unequivocal answer was: "Is it his intention to take the Saorstat out of the Commonwealth?" It was not sufficient for the President to tell them that, when the people wanted a Republic, he was ready to lead them to it.

A RUDE AWAKENING.

Such an answer was not likely to come from the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, who followed Mr. Milroy; for the Minister's outlook is that of Mr. de Valera writ large. The feature of his speech was a sinister allusion to the " rude awakening " that was to follow for Senators if they threw out the bill.

" Think it over," he said, darkly. " It is not for me to suggest the consequences. The Senate may throw the bill out, but it is for you to take the consequences."

The Minister paused to let this warning sink in, and Dr. Oliver Gogarty put the question: " You are not suggesting that you will murder any Senators who vote against the bill?"

"I did not suggest that" was Mr. Connolly's reply.

Dr. Gogarty shrugged his shoulders. " None of you ever speak directly," he said contemptuously; " you hint."

The rest of Mr. Connolly's speech was an exposition of the methods by which he believed the Free State could gain the respect of other peoples, which was not by " continuing to trim and pretend a loyalty which we know damn well we do not feel or believe."

There was a clash between the Minister and the Speaker when Mr. Connolly triumphantly asserted that Fianna Fail had made of the Oath " an empty formula and a complete sham in this House," and it ended with the Minister withdrawing the second part of the statement.

THE DUTY OF SENATORS.

A short but impressive speech came from Sir William Hickie, who put before the House its responsibilities as a legislative body, which could be of great service in delaying hasty legislation and giving the people a chance to study the implications of such a measure as this, which could only have been placed before them at an election in the broadest outline. " It is the duty of Senators to watch the material interests of the country just as much as it is the duty of members of the Dail," he added.

With regard to the merits of the bill, even if he could persuade his conscience into voting for it, he would consider this a most inopportune time for an action which, as the British nation had almost informed them, would be the dishonourable breaking of a Treaty.

" I beg to remind you," was the closing sentence of General Hickie's speech, " of the fate of another country, greater and more powerful than this, which refused to honour the sanctity of what it called a scrap of paper "—a warning which the House received with a low murmur of applause.

UNMISTAKEABLE BREACH.

The final speech of the sitting was that of Mr. Samuel Brown, the veteran King's Counsel, who, from his forty years' experience of the law, put it as his definite opinion that this bill involved an unmistakable breach of the Treaty, and declared that the Government had shown an utter failure to understand the basis upon which the British Commonwealth existed. As for the suggestion that the Canadian Parliament could abolish their Oath of Allegiance at will, he reminded the House that the Canadian Constitution was embodied in the British North America Act of 1867, which prescribed an Oath of Allegiance to the King, and then referred them to Section 7 of the Statute of Westminster, which declares that " nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply to the repeal, amendment or alteration of the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1920." Thus did Mr. de Valera see one of his favourite arguments abolished in a single sentence.

As Mr. Brown concluded his speech, the House rose, and, despite the protests of Mr. Connolly, decided, by thirty-five votes to twenty-one, not to meet again until next Wednesday.

ARABS AND JEWS AT LOGGERHEADS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ADEN, Wednesday.

Fifty persons have been injured in the fresh outbreak of troubles between Arabs and Jews here, and armoured cars are now patrolling the streets. Seventy arrests have been made.

FISTS, CHAIRS AND BOTTLES.

NAZI-COMMUNIST BATTLE IN DIET.

TWO HUNDRED DEPUTIES TAKE PART.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Wednesday.

BROKEN chairs with their plush seats ripped, smashed inkpots, water bottles, glasses and electric light bulbs littered the floor of the Prussian Chamber this evening.

All these articles—others, too—had been used in what conservative Berlin reporters describe as a " sanguinary fight " between Communists and National Socialists.

Old frequenters of the Chamber say that never before have they witnessed such a scene.

It all began with a Communist deputy telling the Nazis that they had murderers on their benches.

ROSE LIKE ONE MAN.

Rising like one man, the Nazis, one hundred and sixty strong, charged down on their sixty enemies. In a flash the ranks of battle were joined. Fists were used at first, then the chairs, bottles and other weapons which afterwards strewed the " battlefield."

At last numbers told, and the Communists were pushed out into the lobby, pursued up to the door by the victorious Nazis.

Four deputies are suffering from serious injuries, while there is a number of minor casualties. As so often happens, the most severely hurt was an unfortunate neutral (a Socialist), who tried to intervene between the opponents. He was carried out unconscious.

The police were not summoned, and the Chamber Executive has decided to adjourn for a week to let matters cool down.

The Nazis' candidate, Herr Kerrl, was duly elected President this afternoon. A member of the second strongest party—namely, the Socialists—was voted to the Vice-Presidency.

SWEDISH MATCH SHARES.

QUESTION OF LEGAL ACTION.

Mr. T. Williams (Labour, Don Valley), in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Attorney-General whether, seeing that he had no power to take action against any firm of stockbrokers who had consistently advised clients to invest in Swedish Match shares, and other undertakings managed by the Kreuger Group, he was considering the question of asking Parliament to provide him with power to take action in such cases.

Sir Boyd Merriman (Solicitor-General) said that the Attorney-General had ample power to take action in cases where there was evidence that the person tendering such advice had done so with intent to defraud, but no evidence had been brought to his attention that dealers in those shares had been guilty of the offence, or had the slightest knowledge of the facts recently revealed in connection with those companies.

Mr. Williams—While there is no imputation of dishonesty, the circumstances clearly prove that hundreds of innocent people fell victims to this method of selling. Does not the right hon. gentleman think that the Government ought to take steps to ensure a better guarantee to investors than obtains at the moment?

Sir Boyd Merriman—The whole question is one depending upon whether those who sold the shares have committed an offence against the law of this country. If they have, they can be dealt with, but, if not, my right hon. friend has no power.

CHICAGO'S BEST WISHES.

Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, has cabled to the Lord Mayor of Dublin as follows:—

" Regret exceedingly unable to accept gracious offer your hospitality. Local economic conditions worst in our history. Both National Conventions Chicago coming month of June. Deem unwise to be absent at this time. Best wishes. May Eucharistic Congress be as beneficial to Dublin and its people as our Congress was to Chicago."

SALARY "CUTS" AND CONTRACTS.

COUNSEL'S ADVICE TO LOCAL GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS.

The emergency committee set up by the Irish Local Government Officials' Union to deal with the question of the proposed reductions in salary has been making a careful examination into various aspects of the matter.

Steps have been taken with a view to countering any attempt that may be made to give effect to the decision of the Government, as outlined by the Minister for Finance in his Budget statement.

Local officials hold that they have contracts of service with their employing authorities, and that both sides are morally bound by the stated and implied conditions of such contracts. The Minister for Local Government has a power of veto on such contracts before they become effective. In the opinion of eminent counsel, his power ends there.

The Executive Council, as such, is vested with no power to interfere in any way with the conditions of service of the officers of local authorities.

M.P.'S AND MR. JUSTICE McCARDIE.

SUPPORT FOR RESOLUTION.

Several Conservative M.P.'s added their names yesterday to the resolution which Major Despencer-Robertson has placed on the Order Paper of the House of Commons inviting the House to declare " that the criticism of Lord Justice Scrutton by Mr. Justice McCardie is regrettable conduct on the part of one of His Majesty's judges, and is calculated to lower the prestige of the Judicature."

The Government, says a Lobby correspondent, is not at present disposed to take serious notice of the resolution by providing facilities for a debate, but it is realised that it might not be possible to maintain this attitude in face of a strong demand from many quarters of the House.

In official circles the hope is expressed that there will be no further developments in what is regarded as an unfortunate incident.

Fantastic Tale of The North.

DENIAL THAT GOVERNMENT MAY DISAPPEAR

FROM OUR REPORTER.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

THE suggestion in an English newspaper to-day that the Northern Government may cease to exist, and Northern Ireland return directly under the British Parliament if the Oath Bill is passed by the Free State Senate, is regarded as fantastic in official circles in Belfast.

While there is a section of the Northern Unionists who would favour the return to the British Parliament—and this opinion has been put forward on several occasions by Independent members in the Northern Parliament—the great majority of the Unionists agree with the official view that such a course would simply lead to Northern Ireland once more becoming a shuttlecock and a plaything with British political parties and perhaps be used as a pawn in future negotiations with the Free State if a Government unsympathetic were in power at Westminster. Several Cabinet Ministers have pointed out that they regard the existence of the Northern Parliament as the best guarantee of the future freedom of the Northern province.

So long as Northern Ireland is able to pay its way, balance its Budget and pay a reasonable amount to imperial contributions it is unlikely that its constitutional status will be altered, except by the consent of the Northern Parliament.

A BILL NECESSARY.

In order that the North should return to the British Parliament and give up its own Government for purely local government it would be necessary that a bill for that purpose should pass through the Northern Parliament, and it is hardly conceivable that such a measure would pass under existing circumstances.

Members of the Northern Cabinet with whom I discussed the subject to-day ridiculed the story. There is, however, a growing feeling amongst Unionists in the North that, if the Treaty is broken in any particular by the Free State, the North should press for the withdrawal of the provision that Northern Ireland may by a vote of both Houses of Parliament vote itself into the Irish Free State or an Irish Republic.

A leading member of the Ulster Unionist Council said to me to-day: " If Mr. de Valera's Government breaks the Treaty, then the British Government should pass an Act which would prevent the North from joining what would be virtually an Irish Republic. The Northern Parliament," he added, " would cordially endorse such legislation, and that would be the end of all talk about the future unity of Ireland."

SENATE'S LIKELY COURSE.

DEADLOCK MAY BE REACHED.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE tone of events in the Senate yesterday with regard to the Oath Bill indicates that that measure will not have a particularly easy passage. The progress of the debate showed that there are certain elements in the House which would be disposed to defeat the bill instantly on the second reading.

This is not the policy of the majority. They, I understand, are disposed rather to treat the bill in a reasoned fashion, and, having accepted its principle by giving it second reading, then to amend it in such a way as to prevent its doing violence to Treaty obligations.

AMENDMENTS.

In Committee stage certain amendments will be introduced, probably on the lines of those put forward in the Dail by Deputies McGilligan and Finlay.

As indicated by Senator Brown in his speech yesterday, there will be introduced, probably in the form of a new section, a provision to the effect that this bill, when passed, will come into operation by an order of the Executive Council, after consultation and agreement with Great Britain, as the other party to the Treaty. The object of this stipulation is, of course, to ascertain, before the operation of the bill whether the British Government regarded it in the sense of a violation of the Treaty.

These amendments will, if made, be unacceptable to the Dail when the bill comes back from the Senate, and so a deadlock will be reached.

LAND ANNUITIES.

The reply of the Free State Government on the subject of land annuities has not yet been despatched to London.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the following notice of motion has been given by Deputies John F. O'Hanlon and Seamus Dillon:—

" That the Dail is of opinion, having regard to the critical condition of agriculture, that the annuitants should be afforded a moratorium in respect of land annuity payments for a term of two years; and, for the purpose of giving effect to such moratorium, no deduction should be made from the agricultural grant."

This motion is unlikely to come up for early debate.

MR. MACENTEE CORRECTS AN ERROR.

Mr. Sean MacEntee, the Free State Minister for Finance, states that, when replying to Mr. Patrick McGilligan's charges of inflation in his Budget speech, he said that if there was any inflation at all it was 0.2 per cent., or 1/500th, and not 1.02 per cent., as reported.

He was referring to the stamp duty and the Consolidated Bank notes.

TWENTY-THREE IN THE DERBY.

The final acceptances for the Derby number twenty-three.

This means that those who draw the names of unplaced horses at the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake in the Plaza on Monday next will each receive prize money to the amount of £1,750.

GREECE TRIES AGAIN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Wednesday.

After four days of consultations, President Zaimis to-day entrusted M. Papanastassiou, leader of one of the parties hitherto in Opposition, with the task of forming a Government to succeed that under M. Venizelos, which resigned on Saturday night. M. Papanastassiou will bend his efforts towards trying to form a National Government calculated to be able to solve Greece's financial troubles.

302 CANDIDATES FOR 87 SEATS.

In the New South Wales elections on June 11th the United Australia Party is putting forward 57 candidates, the United Country Party 30, the Party of Unity 4, the Lang Party 76, Federal Labour 34, Independents 79, and Communists 22. There are 87 seats.

LANG LAWS TO BE REPEALED.

NEW SOUTH WALES POLICY.

CURBING ACTIVITIES OF REVOLUTIONARIES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT

SYDNEY, Wednesday.

FULL co-operation with the Commonwealth and the other States in the Premiers' Conference plan for financial rehabilitation, the reform of the Legislative Council, the removal of public services from political control, and the repeal of the Lang socialistic legislation were foreshadowed in a speech in which Mr. Stevens, the New South Wales Premier, outlined the policy of the new régime set up following the dismissal from office of the extremist Labour Premier, Mr. Lang.

The default had led to the collapse of the major sources of revenue from Government instrumentalities, and had been the main cause of the drift in the State's finances, said Mr. Stevens, who pointed out that the root of the trouble lay in the wide difference between the low price levels of primary products and the high prices of other goods and services within the State. As to the future, no section of the public would be called upon to suffer unduly.

TRADE UNIONISM.

Reproductive relief works would be set in hand as an immediate temporary measure for the solution of the unemployment problem. Private enterprise would be stimulated by the creation of confidence, and an advisory committee would be appointed to study employment possibilities and the better distribution of labour.

Matters such as basic wage fixation and working hours would be left to the Arbitration Court. Healthy trade unionism would be encouraged, and trade unionists protected against tyranny.

The reform of the Legislative Council would restore its high standard as a House removed from partisan influence.

Mr. Stevens added that the repeal of the Lang socialistic legislation would curb the activities of revolutionary organisations.

The new Premier appealed to the people to assist the Government and to follow the inspiring example set by Great Britain in meeting her economic troubles.

JAPANESE DRIVE IN MANCHURIA.

TROOPS APPROACHING RUSSIAN BORDER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SHANGHAI, Wednesday.

That events are rapidly marching towards a clash between Japan and Soviet Russia is the view generally held in Harbin (Northern Manchuria), according to the latest despatch from that city, which reports that the Japanese expeditionary force sent to subdue the " insurgents " is rapidly approaching the Russian border.

General Honjo, the Japanese Commander-in-Chief in Manchuria, has himself arrived in Harbin, and the removal of the Japanese military headquarters from South to North Manchuria has created a deep impression there.

The Japanese columns in question set out some weeks ago along the Eastern section of the Chinese Eastern Railway, and down the Sungari River, in a determined effort to sweep the country clear of the considerable forces in the field against the new independent régime set up in Manchuria under Japanese protection, and their occupation of Ilan, the principal base of the " rebels," was announced a week ago.

FORD'S £10,000,000 LOSS.

LAST YEAR'S RESULTS OF U.S. COMPANY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

A net loss of 53,586,000 dollars (approximately £10,717,200 at par) is shown in the balance-sheet of the Ford Motor Co. for 1931, filed before the Massachusetts Commissioner of Taxation.

Last year the company had a profit of 44,460,823 dollars (£8,892,000) and in 1929 81,797,861 dollars (£16,359,500).

Last year's loss, it is explained, was mainly due to the slowing down of production, due to installing fresh plant for the new eight-cylinder model.

DEATH OF FAMOUS GERMAN ADMIRAL.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Wednesday.

The death occurred at Altona to-day of Admiral von Hipper, who was in charge of the German naval raid on Scarborough and the Hartlepools in December, 1914. Admiral von Hipper afterwards commanded the cruiser squadron at the Battles of the Dogger Bank in 1915 and the Battle of Jutland in 1916.

For his action in the latter operation he was decorated by the Kaiser.

Admiral von Hipper was one of several German admirals whose surrender was demanded by Great Britain.

After Admiral von Hipper had bombarded Scarborough in 1914, he made another attempt on January 24th, 1915, but was intercepted at the Dogger Bank by the then Vice-Admiral Beatty, and in a running fight the German battle cruiser Blucher was sunk.

It was also Beatty whom von Hipper had to face at the Battle of Jutland. Within half an hour of the beginning of the battle Beatty had lost the Queen Mary and the Indefatigable, and the Lion had received a heavy blow. Von Hipper was leading Beatty towards the German main fleet, when the news reached Beatty that the British Grand Fleet was near, and the situation was changed. During the battle von Hipper's flagship was hit forty times.

OBITUARY.

THE HON. GEORGE LASCELLES.

Major the Hon. George Lascelles, an uncle of the Earl of Harewood, died suddenly yesterday evening at Wyndleshore, Bembridge, Isle of Wight. He was born in 1865.

Major Lascelles was out in the garden, apparently in his usual health, during the day. He had not been medically attended for some time. The facts have been reported to the Coroner.

A son of the fourth Earl of Harewood, Major Lascelles was formerly Major in the Essex Regiment. He served in the South African war, and was mentioned in despatches. He married in 1905, Mabel, daughter of the late Francis Elcocke Massey, of Poole Hall, Nantwich, there being issue one daughter.

The Ceylon State Council yesterday decided to support the " Buy British " movement.

SUBSIDIES, LOANS AND SPECIAL GRANTS.

THE FREE STATE GOVERNMENT'S HOUSING PROPOSALS.

USE OF IRISH MATERIALS A CONDITION OF PAYMENT.

THE Free State Government's plans to deal with the housing problem were disclosed in a statement made in the Dail yesterday by Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Local Government. The proposals include:—

INCREASED SUBSIDIES TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

STATE GRANTS TO PRIVATE PERSONS.

SPECIAL GRANTS TO PUBLIC UTILITY SOCIETIES.

LOANS TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES AND PRIVATE PERSONS.

The payment of these grants and subsidies will be conditional on the use, as far as possible, of certain Irish materials.

IMMEDIATE LEGISLATION.

MR. O'KELLY'S statement was as follows:—

The Government have examined carefully the present position in regard to housing, and are satisfied that increased State subsidies are necessary to enable the provision of all the houses needed, and that increased grants are required to encourage private persons and public utility societies to join with local authorities in the provision of the houses.

It is the intention of the Government to make money available for, and to subsidise, building to the fullest extent necessary to enable the complete solution of the slums and general housing problems in the shortest possible period.

EARLY LEGISLATION.

Legislation will be introduced without delay to enable the payment of substantially increased subsidies to local authorities for schemes under the Housing of the Working Classes (Ireland) Acts, 1890 to 1931, and the Labourers (Ireland) Acts, 1883 to 1931, and it is hoped that in anticipation of this legislation local authorities will push on at once with substantial schemes, so as to take advantage of the favourable building season. The increased subsidies for local authorities will be applied retrospectively to cover such schemes as may be proceeded with in anticipation of the proposed legislation.

GRANTS TO PRIVATE PERSONS.

As to private persons, it is proposed to make State grants of the following amounts available:—

For new houses in urban areas—£50 per house.

For new houses in rural areas (a) for small farmers whose valuation does not exceed £15—£70 per house; (b) for small farmers whose valuation exceeds £15, but does not exceed £25—£60 per house; (c) for all other persons—£45 per house.

For reconstructed houses in rural areas on holdings not exceeding £25 valuation —£40 per house.

With a view to encouraging the formation in rural areas of public utility societies, with the special object of advising and assisting small farmers in the building of houses, it is proposed to increase the grants of £70 and £60 for small farmers to £80 and £70 respectively in cases where the houses are built through the medium of such societies.

SPECIAL GRANTS.

It is also proposed to make special grants available to public utility societies building houses for letting in urban areas.

To encourage private persons in urban areas to undertake work at once, the grant of £60 proposed to be made available may be increased to £70 for completion of the houses before 1st April next.

It is the intention to apply the new scale of grants for persons and public utility societies so that houses commenced on or after the 12th May, 1932, may qualify for them. Grants at the rate of £45 per house will be made available for persons who failed to complete houses in time under the Housing Acts, 1929 and 1930, and for persons who began houses under the Housing (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1931, before the 12th instant.

PROPOSED LOANS.

Loans will be issued to local authorities in both urban and rural areas on the annuity system, and the State subsidies will take the form of substantial annual contributions towards loan charges.

Loans will also be made available to private persons for the erection or purchase of houses for their own occupation under the Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts, 1899 to 1931, so that with the aid of a grant and a loan a private person with no capital may build a house for himself and have it at a reasonable annual cost.

In order to assist the development of industry in the production of native building materials, the payment of State grants and subsidies to persons, public utility societies and local authorities building houses will be conditional on the use, as far as possible, of certain native materials to be specified.

FLATS INCLUDED.

Mr. Dillon asked if the Government had taken into consideration the matter of labourers buying out their cottages on an annuity system.

The Minister said that the matter had been under consideration for some time, and he proposed to make a statement at a future date.

Mr. Alfred Byrne asked if the Minister included in the term " house " three and four-roomed flats.

The Minister replied that such dwellings would be included in the grants.

Mr. Dillon asked when would the Town Tenants Bill be introduced.

The Minister said that he had done everything possible to be able to introduce a Town Tenants Bill simultaneously with the Housing Bill, but he found that it would not be possible.

Professor Thrift (Ind., Trinity College) —Could the Minister give us any idea where he proposes to get the money?

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

LEAGUE LOANS.

In a leading article The Times to-day states:—Month by month as the world crisis continues unabated, economic conditions in Central and South-Eastern Europe have been deteriorating. Crushed under the combined burden of debts, growing steadily heavier as prices fall, and of trade depression aggravated by restrictive measures of exchange control, quotas and tariff manipulation, country after country has been nearing the breaking point. Germany, Austria and Hungary have long ago suspended payments on a large portion of their obligations under the so-called Stand-still Agreements covering private debts, and even the most firmly secured Government loans are being called in question.

Sporadic defaults of this nature, however much they may be excused by extenuating circumstances, are immensely damaging, not only to the credit of the debtor countries, but also to the financial prestige of the League of Nations, under whose auspices so many loans have been issued since the War for the purpose of rehabilitating the poorer members of a war stricken Continent. Indeed, it cannot be denied that the difficulties of the present crisis have induced a growing section of opinion to criticise the whole conception of financial reconstruction, which has from the beginning inspired League policy. Yet a moment's reflection should be sufficient to convince any but the most prejudiced critic that the financial disasters which are now threatening the security of these loans cannot fairly be attributed to the measures taken by the League.

If the credit of the League is permanently impaired, where can the assistance be found which Europe so greatly needs at the present time? The whole structure of international credit has been so severely damaged by the events of the past year that it is doubtful whether the machinery of foreign lending, which is vital to any world recovery, can be set in motion again without some concerted form of co-operation, and nowhere outside the League does the machinery for such co-operation exist.

TRANS-ATLANTIC FARES UP AGAIN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MONTREAL, Wednesday.

Representatives of the conference of trans-Atlantic steamship companies to-day announced increases in their third class rates by ten per cent., with an increase in the tourist class of five per cent. Exception is made for the westward passage third class, which is virtually unchanged.

Recently there was a reduction of twenty per cent. in the rates, but they were found to be too low for profitable operation, and to-day's upward adjustment is the consequence.

Mr. John Paterson, a Collieston, Aberdeenshire, fisherman, launched on April 11 a toy cork boat, which was picked up a month later at Burnmouth, on the Berwickshire coast.

JAPANESE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

BOTH MAIN PARTIES REPRESENTED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TOKYO, Wednesday.

A National Cabinet has now been formed. The Ministers, who will be installed to-morrow, are:—

Premier and Foreign Affairs—Admiral Viscount Saito; Home Affairs—Baron Tatsuo Yamamoto; War—General Senjuro Hayashi; Finance—Mr. Korekiyo Takahashi; Navy—Admiral Keisuke Okada; Justice—Mr. Matsukichi Koyama; Education—Mr. Ichiro Hatoyama; Agriculture and Forestry—Mr. Fumio Goto; Communications—Mr. Hiroshi Minami; Overseas Affairs—Mr. Ryutaro Nagai; Commerce and Industry—Baron Kumakichi Nakajima; and Railways—Mr. Chuzo Mitsuchi.

Both the main political parties, the Minseito (Liberal) and Seiyukai (Conservative) are represented. Mr. Takahashi and Mr. Hatoyama held the same portfolios in the retiring Seiyukai Ministry, and the former has already announced that there will be no change in his financial policy. Mr Nagai is chief secretary of the Minseito Party, and Baron Yamamoto is its adviser. General Hayashi has been up till now Commander-in-Chief in Korea.

VERDICT IN SOUTH AFRICAN IMPEACHMENT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday.

The Select Committee of the House of Assembly appointed to investigate the impeachment of Mr. J. H. Munnik, Nationalist member for Vredefort, on a charge of bribery in connection with the diamond-cutting industry, has reported that no breach of privilege had been committed.

Mr. Munnik was charged by a member of the Opposition with accepting a bribe of £300 for his parliamentary services. Mr. Munnik denied having received any moneys other than £200 as a consulting mining engineer.

OATH BILL INTRODUCED IN THE SENATE.

GRAVE ISSUES INVOLVED IN THE MEASURE.

MORE INFORMATION DESIRED AS TO THE TRUE POSITION.

SECOND READING DEBATE ADJOURNED FOR A WEEK.

THE Removal of the Oath Bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday by President de Valera, and, after a debate of some hours, the House, by a majority of fourteen, decided to adjourn until next Wednesday.

In putting the case for the bill before the House, President de Valera stated that it was not a question of whether they were, or were not, interfering with the Treaty; it was a question of whether they were a sovereign State in their own domain, and there was not involved a deliberate act of severance from the Commonwealth.

Senator Douglas, on the other hand, expressed the opinion that the bill not only raised the question of their Treaty obligations, and their membership of the Commonwealth, but it also affected their trade and commerce, and the ultimate political unity of Ireland.

He suggested that they should allow the second reading to pass, and that, when the measure came up on Committee stage, the Government should be asked to explain the steps they propose to take to ascertain the true position, and to secure that the constitutional position of the country is not altered without another election.

Senators Milroy, Sir William Hickie and S. L. Brown also spoke of the dangers in the bill in its present form, and Senator Connolly, the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, defended it.

WHERE CAST-IRON CONSTITUTIONS FAILED.

On the second stage of the Constitution (Removal of Oath) Bill, 1932,

President DE VALERA said that he was sure the members of the Senate were pretty well aware of the arguments which had been advanced pro and con. The bill was to remove the Oath that had been obligatory on members of the Oireachtas by Article 17 of the Constitution. The Oath occurred in Article 4 of the Treaty of 1921. The question, as he understood it, was not so much that they had the power to remove the Oath, but whether it was permissible for them to do it without interfering with the Treaty of 1921. He had not heard anybody defend the Oath on its merits, nor had he heard anybody argue that it was right that the obligation should be imposed.

"Supposing there was no Treaty obligation, would we stand for the insertion of an article of that particular kind in the Constitution? If you look at the Constitutions of a number of other countries you will find that in some countries an obligation of that sort is imposed, and in others it is not. One of the most peculiar things that arise from a comparison is that the country that probably had the most experience of the failure of cast-iron constitutions to effect the purpose which the founders had in view is France. It is a silly thing for the framers of a Constitution to think that by inserting in fundamental law some particular principle which has not general acceptance will enable that principle to be perpetuated. It is found to be a failure. It was found in France to be a failure. You cannot bind the future in that particular way.

THE LESSONS OF HISTORY.

The majority for the time being may like to preserve the continuity of that principle that they stand for, but, as I said, experience of mankind and common sense shows that is a very vain attempt, that cast iron rules intended to bind the future—they have always led to explosions of one kind or another. It is a bad principle. I would be against the insertion of any tests of this kind in any constitution. I think it cuts at the basis of representative institutions. If representative institutions are really going to be effective they should be really representative—that is, they should be composed of representatives of the different classes in the community, and any attempt to put tests is clearly indicated to deprive certain classes and individuals of representation.

People should be really free to devise their own constitution. I am aware that arguments to the contrary may be put up, and there are some people foolish enough to think that the lessons of history can be set aside, and that our people should do something that human beings so far have not been able to do.

A MEAN THING.

Continuing, he said that if the members of the Senate thought for themselves they would convince themselves that if we in this country are to have a really representative institution, and where character would be preserved, everything in the form of a test should disappear. They knew that such tests had led to conflicts in the past, and they also knew the futility of them.

"It is a mean thing," he said, "to interfere with the conscience of the individual in a manner such as is proposed under a test of this particular kind. I am opposed to it. If I could remove it on general principles I would remove it.

"In our case we see how this test is operating. There is no doubt whatever that this test is not in the Constitution with the will of the Irish people. Those who took the Treaty at the start defended their acceptance of the measures that were contained in it on the ground that they had to do it; that the alternative was war. No choice was left to them. I think that if you examine the records of the debates in the Dail at the time that the Treaty was introduced you will readily satisfy yourselves that probably not more than three or four members in the Dail defended the Treaty on its merits as a free-will covenant between two people. Look over the debates—if you had the debates of the secret sessions before you—(A Voice—"I wish we had")—you would satisfy yourselves more clearly than you can from the public debates.

ARTICLE FOUR.

One of the most distasteful provisions of the Treaty was this Article 4. The question as to whether it was or was not obligatory was argued not at very great length. I am prepared to admit that the attitude of very many of us was this: that whether it was or was not obligatory in actual terms, that the position of dominating force which the British occupied at the time would have been sufficient to enable the British to put their own interpretation on the Treaty and to force upon us terms which were beyond the actual terms of the Treaty as they might be interpreted by a third party tribunal. Therefore, this article is, undoubtedly, an imposition on the people of this country from outside. The majority of our people resented it as such.

The Treaty was accepted by a large number——

A Voice—By a majority.

The PRESIDENT—I think the Senator might wait until I had finished the sentence, and then he would know whether I would be right in using the word majority. I say that the Treaty was accepted by a very large number as something that could be used by them to advance from the position in which they were to a position where the pressure, the duress that compelled them to take it at that time, might be removed, to a position in which their own free will might have the opportunity of operating freely. It was not, he said, to be regarded as being in the Constitution as something which was deliberately chosen without outside pressure—deliberately chosen by the people of Ireland. If it were, he would not feel that he had the right to go back to the people and ask them to change that view. The Irish people had demonstrated at the last election that they did not want that article in the Constitution.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS.

When he was in the Senate last time he was [illegible] with the argument that when that question was put to the Irish people there would also be given to them an assurance that this article could be removed without in any way violating the Treaty of 1921. That was the position as he saw it, as the Government saw it, and as the majority of the people's representatives saw it—that it was competent for them to remove that Article from the Constitution. That was the question that concerned the House. He believed that they could do it without violating the Treaty, and the argument behind his belief was that, if they looked at the structure of the Treaty, they would recognise that certain Articles referred to their own domestic affairs, and to matters of status that the State was supposed to possess. Whatever may have been the position in 1921, years had now passed, development had taken place, and they had, for instance, the Imperial Conferences of 1926 and 1930, at which it was made clear by the representatives of the different States in the British Commonwealth that, as far as status was concerned, the Free State stood on the same level as Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and even Great Britain herself. Anything that it would have been competent for Britain to do, it was competent for the Free State Parliament to do.

The PRESIDENT argued that, if at any time it was desired to have the Oath removed from the British House of Commons or Lords, it could be done by a majority in favour of that step, and that action would not interfere with the relationship existing between the other States of the British Commonwealth. If Britain, Australia and Canada could do that, it was no answer to say that the Free State was precluded from doing it by the Treaty of 1921, because the only way in which that Treaty could operate against the Free State in precluding them from removing the Oath would be if the Treaty had fixed a position for all time out of which the State could not advance from the point of view of status.

THE FREE STATE'S RIGHTS.

AN ALTERED POSITION.

The position regarding the appointment of the Governor-General, and the position with reference to the British Cabinet, had changed completely since 1921. The Irish people claimed their right to pass laws, whether they did or did not conflict with the laws that the British might pass.

"We are no longer subject to the will of the British Parliament here as regards our operations. That being so, we have the right to change this particular section. The only way in which it might be contended that we are debarred from doing what we wish to do would be that the Treaty fixed for all time a definite position, and that we could not change that position without the expressed consent of the British Government and Parliament. It was clearly admitted by the representatives of the British Parliament that there was to be no dictation, or attempt to dominate. Our position, therefore, is that it is wise to do this thing, to remove this Article, and that it is within our competence to do it, and to do it without in any sense violating the Treaty.

"I may be asked why does not the Government try to get this done by way of negotiation with the British Government? Suppose we went, and suppose we were told that we could not do this thing, what position would the Free State be in then? I hold that if the declarations of 1926 and 1930 mean what they say, then there is no offence whatever in our doing what we propose to do. It is only on the assumption that they do not mean what they say, that co-equality and rights do not mean anything—it is only on that assumption that we can ask the permission of the British. Asking permission suggested the right of that person to refuse. Britain had no right to refuse, and he did not want to go through the pretence of asking permission.

"It is not a Treaty matter; it is not a question whether we are or are not interfering with the Treaty. It is outside the Treaty altogether. It is a question of whether we are sovereign in our own domain or not."

There was not involved here a deliberate act of severance of this State from the States of the British Commonwealth. It was a question of quite a different character altogether. He hoped that the members of the Senate would not fall into the mistake made elsewhere in that regard.

Dealing with Section Two of the Bill, which repealed Section Two of the Constitution of the Free State Act, he said that there were two reasons why that appeared in the bill. The first was that if that section were not repealed, there was a possibility that this question could be referred to their own Courts, and the Government did not wish that matter of this kind could be tried by their own Courts. Their own Courts were not the proper Courts to try what was an international matter. If their own Courts decided in their favour, they would be told that the Courts were biased, and the British Government could very fairly refuse to accept their judgment. If the judgment was against them, it would put the Government out of any other Court. As a matter of mere precaution, which would be taken by any Government in the world dealing with matters of international dispute, they ought to see that this question should not be referred to their own domestic Courts, as it was essentially a matter to be decided by the legislature.

He admitted that he was not sorry that there was an occasion to introduce this Section, because if it did not come in on that bill, undoubtedly he would feel that on general principles it should be brought in in a separate bill immediately afterwards. As a matter of principle again, this clause should be introduced, because if the Treaty was a treaty between two States it ought to stand in relation to domestic law in the same position as treaties between countries usually occupy, not in a position of dominating domestic law, but outside domestic law. Putting the Treaty, as this bill proposed to do, in its proper place did not deprive it of any binding force that it might have between the two countries.

The Clause should be regarded as two-fold—first, as a precautionary measure in regard to the particular question, and, secondly, as a general principle, because they felt satisfied as a treaty it ought to be put in the position which treaties between foreign States usually occupy. This Treaty should be regarded in the light of an international instrument. The third clause of the bill required the deletion of certain words of Article 50 of the Constitution, and was really for the same purpose—to prevent the Treaty being regarded as their fundamental law.

THE REAL ISSUE.

SERIOUS QUESTIONS INVOLVED.

Senator J. DOUGLAS said that the Removal of Oath Bill was the first important measure which had reached them from the Dail since the general election. Although there were admittedly many urgent questions requiring attention, the Government had seen fit to press this bill before all the other items in their programme, which meant that they regarded it as a matter of major importance and urgency. The President had told them that the only question that the Senate had to consider was whether or not they wished an Oath to be taken by all members of the Oireachtas.

If this were simply a matter of whether or not an Oath was desirable he would have no difficulty in voting for the abolition of the Oath. If he had his way he would abolish all obligatory oaths or affirmations, not only for members of the Oireachtas, but also for jurymen, court witnesses, and civil servants, and substitute a statutory obligation of loyalty to the State as by law established.

If the particular Oath under review was discussed at an Imperial Conference in a friendly way he believed it would be found to be of no real value to this country, to Great Britain or the British Commonwealth. He did not know a single citizen of the Saorstat who did not regard the way it was taken by many members as a farce, which he would be glad to see ended in a constitutional and proper manner.

But there is not a member of this House, said Senator Douglas, who does not know that the real issue which we have before us is not the merits or otherwise of the Oath in the Constitution. Far more serious questions are involved, and the passing of this bill not only raises the question of our Treaty obligations, but may also affect our membership of the British Commonwealth, our trade and commerce, and last, but not least, the ultimate political unity of Ireland.

THE TWO VIEWS.

We are asked to pass this bill, but we are not told where it will lead this country. We do not know, and the President cannot tell us definitely. The Government could easily have found out by friendly negotiation, but they could not see their way to do so.

They knew, continued Senator Douglas, that the Government said that they believed that they could remove the Oath without breaking the Treaty, or altering the Free State's position in the Commonwealth. They also knew that the British Government held a diametrically opposite view, and held it strongly, but they did not know the opinions of the Governments of South Africa, Australia, Canada or New Zeland. Probably every member of that House had his own opinion as to whether the bill broke the Treaty or not, but not one of them could answer with certainty the question as to what their position would be in relation to membership of the Commonwealth if members of the Oireachtas ceased to subscribe to the Oath mentioned in the Treaty.

Personally he did not know the answer, and he was not prepared to accept the opinion of either the President or of Mr. Thomas as final or authoritative. He did know this, however, that when their Constitution was being drafted, the members of the Committee did not include any Oath. They did not doubt that the taking of an Oath by members of the Oireachtas was obligatory, but they thought it would be sufficient to leave it in the Treaty, and provided for it in the Standing Orders of each House of the Oireachtas. There were discussions at the time, and the Government accepted the view that the Oath was obligatory under the Treaty, and should, therefore, be included in the Constitution. Even if their Government made a mistake, it was beyond doubt that it did so agree, and that Government was re-elected on several occasions by the people of the Saorstat since that agreement was made.

NEGOTIATION NECESSARY.

He did not suggest that a new Government could not properly endeavour to alter an agreement made by their predecessors, but he was very strongly of opinion that any Government which desired to dispute or set aside that agreement was bound under the accepted rules of international courtesy, to say the least of it, and bound by its duty to the citizens of this country who might be vitally affected by the result, to enter into negotiations with the other signatory before any final action was taken.

The President had stated that this was an internal matter and one only affecting the citizens of this country. Even if that be correct, and he did not think it was, the fact remained that a previous Government had agreed that it was not only an internal matter, but a Treaty obligation. It would have been a very simple matter for the Government to have introduced into both Houses a resolution in favour of the abolition of the Oath without breaking the Treaty. He had no doubt that such a resolution would have been passed by both the Dail and the Senate. The Government could then have negotiated with Great Britain with full authority. If they had succeeded, well and good; if they had failed, the President could have put the issue to the country, with a full knowledge of its implications, and whatever decision was finally arrived at by the people could not be questioned by any loyal Irishman. That would have been a wise and dignified method, and would, in his opinion, have resulted in an ultimate agreement without any ill-will on either side. Instead the Government had chosen the method best calculated to cause misunderstanding and bad feeling between this country and the people of Great Britain. They had chosen a method which had already injured their trade, which had caused uncertainty and insecurity for many of their industries, and which left them in the unenviable position of not knowing where they stood.

THEIR ONLY MARKET.

Great Britain was their largest—indeed, almost their only—customer. The prosperity of their agricultural and several of their largest industries depended on their British markets; in fact, the whole economic structure of the country had been built up on the assumption that they had a large, open market close to them. If the Fianna Fail Party had gone to the country with a programme of secession from the Commonwealth; if they had told the electors that their policy was the creation of a small State of three million people, self-supporting and content with whatever wealth or prosperity three millions could produce among themselves, he would have strongly opposed them, but he would have respected their point of view. They did not do that; they said: "Give Fianna Fail a chance to govern; there will be no scrap with England; we will not do anything to affect our constitutional position in the Commonwealth without another election." How had the Government kept that pledge? Their very first action had been to break the essential basis of the British Commonwealth, by proposing to break a form common to all the Parliaments without any previous discussion or negotiation.

INTOLERABLE SITUATION.

We cannot have it both ways, said Senator Douglas. While we are in the Commonwealth we must accept the common obligation. If we do not like these we can try to alter them by consent or we can announce our intention to secede. Either course would be honourable and dignified, but the present method is neither, and has created an intolerable situation; intolerable to our traders and manufacturers, and, indeed, to most of our own citizens; intolerable also to Irishmen resident in other countries, unfair to our friends in Great Britain who wish to promote goodwill between the two countries.

I am inclined to think that the present situation is even more objectionable to our friends in the six counties than it is to anyone else. Occasionally I have to visit Northern Ireland on business, and I know that there are persons in Northern Ireland who were Unionists, and who were watching the growing confidence and good-will between the Saorstat and Great Britain with considerable satisfaction, and who believed that it would ultimately lead to political unity in Ireland.

A GREAT CHANCE LOST.

SUSPICION AROUSED IN THE NORTH.

The present régime in Northern Ireland will not last for ever; some day the moderate people will assert themselves, and there will be a real move towards unity. The present Government in the Saorstat have, by their actions, given the extreme Unionist Party in the North a new lease of life. This Government had a magnificent chance to strike a blow for Irish unity. If they had said we have no mandate to leave the Commonwealth, therefore, we will give the Commonwealth a fair trial, we will co-operate with Great Britain and the other nations in the friendliest way possible; we will try our best to remove our outstanding difficulties by negotiation, I believe they would have brought Irish unity in this generation within the bounds of possibility.

To his mind, their actions had created a new feeling of suspicion and hostility amongst the majority in the Six Counties, which it would take many years to put right again, and they had added years to the lifetime of partition.

The President had told them that they had the Constitutional right to pass this bill, that the nations in the Commonwealth were co-equal in status, and he laid great stress on the legal independence secured by the Statute of Westminster. He (Senator Douglas) did not dispute these contentions, but he did not believe that the Statute of Westminster gave them any legal powers which they did not previously possess according to Constitutional usage. The Statute of Westminster was of the utmost importance, in that it gave legal form to what had already been accepted at previous Imperial Conferences. Friendly interchange of views at various Imperial Conferences had resulted in great constitutional development since the Treaty was signed, but the fundamental basis remained the same.

COMMON FORMS.

Common forms had been so reduced in number that only five remained—

(a) The King as head of the Commonwealth, with his representative in each nation, nominated by the respective Governments.

(b) The King as an integral part of each Parliament, which consisted of the King and two Houses.

(c) The King as nominal head of the Executive, acting only on the advice of his Ministers.

(d) An Oath to His Majesty taken by all members of Parliament in each State and

(e) an obligation to consult together, from time to time, on all matters of general interest, and, in particular, to consult with any or all of the other Governments on any matter which any of them might consider likely to affect their interests is any way.

How far any or all of the first four of these common forms was essential was a matter for discussion if any Governments chose to raise the issue, though admittedly they did not, in fact, prevent any of the constituent States governing their own people as they thought right, but clearly they were not matters on which any one State could act alone, without negotiation, if it wished to retain its membership. If the British Parliament proposed to delete the Oath taken by its members, and if any of the other Parliaments raised objection, the British Government would be obliged, not legally, but in the spirit of the Commonwealth, to enter into consultation with the other Governments before any final action was taken. In fact, they had to consult this country and each of the Dominions before changing the title of His Majesty.

THE FIANNA FAIL VIEW.

The speeches from Fianna Fail in the Dail showed that they had completely failed to understand the point of view of those who were opposed to the bill, because they believed that not only the good faith of the country, but its real independence at home and abroad might be endangered by its passing into law. The main reason for that was that the thinking members of Fianna Fail did not understand the present constitutional position of this country. They did not understand the British Commonwealth. The nations in the Commonwealth were independent and co-equal, no one having the right to dominate the other. To quote from the Imperial Conference report of 1926:—"Every self-governing member is now the master of its destiny; in fact, if not always in form, it is subject to no compulsion whatever."

If this was true, and he was glad to know from his speeches that the President now recognised the fact, what was it that bound them together and made a Commonwealth of Nations. He submitted that the fundamental link was the absolute obligation to consult on any matter which any of the nations in the group might consider to be of common concern. That friendly consultation before action could be taken was, to his mind, the really vital link, greater even than the acceptance of a common King.

It is this obligation, said Senator DOUGLAS, that the Government is breaking by refusal to negotiate; while stating that they do not propose to secede, they are cutting across the very thing that makes the existence of the British Commonwealth possible.

A HALF-TRUTH.

The President had stated in the Dail that Canada could alter her Constitution if she wished, but that was only a half-truth. She could alter it, but not without negotiation, if she wished to do so within the Commonwealth. According to the letter of the law, Canada could not, even under the Statute of Westminster, alter her own Constitution. Yet, did anyone doubt for one moment that if she decided to do so, she would enter into negotiations, and the necessary legal sanctions would follow as a matter of course?

In the same way, he believed that the Constitution of the Saorstat was, in strict legality, limited by the terms of the Treaty; but, if it were found by any chance that these terms were in conflict with any agreement made, or that they placed the Free State in a worse position than, say, Canada or South Africa, the necessary legal alteration of the Treaty would follow in due course.

VALUE OF MEMBERSHIP.

Membership of the Commonwealth meant a great deal to this country—it was a safeguard of their political liberty and freedom. If they went out of the Commonwealth as the result of a quarrel with Great Britain or any of the Dominions they would be a small divided country, with no friends anywhere. They would lose their position in the councils of Europe, and they would run the risk of losing the market for their produce, with consequent serious increase of unemployment. Inside the Commonwealth, and carrying out its obligations faithfully, they could be assured of a friendly Great Britain, and even if not friendly, Britain dared not interfere with their liberty without injuring the Commonwealth.

Outside, though theoretically independent, a hostile Britain could restrict their real independence in many ways that she could not do at present, and no other nation would care what happened to them. The contention that in objecting to the bill Great Britain was interfering with their liberty showed a complete misunderstanding of their position and confused the real issue. It was this country which was proposing to ignore the fundamental basis on which the Commonwealth existed, by refusing to accept their obligations, by attempting to break a common form without negotiation or discussion.

THE SENATE'S DUTY.

The main function of that House, continued Senator Douglas, was that of revision, and they should not lightly reject a bill passed by the Dail, especially just after an election; but the Senate had another function—namely, that of seeing that the people were consulted on any issues of vital importance to the country on which they had not been consulted at the polls. The President said that he had got a mandate to remove the Oath, but he also said that he had not got, and did not ask for, a mandate to alter their constitutional position in any other way. The President had no mandate to lead this country, either directly or by a backdoor, out of the British Commonwealth. It was the President's duty to ascertain beyond doubt that the question of their membership of the British Commonwealth was not involved in this bill, and if he found that the bringing of this bill into operation might jeopardise that membership, then he was, according to his own statement, in honour bound to consult the electors of the Saorstat and ascertain whether or not they wished to leave the Commonwealth. The President had declined to find out the position beforehand, and they could not make him do it. The Senate, however, could see that sufficient time would elapse before the bill came into operation to enable the Government and the country to find out exactly where they stood. The House had a duty to see that the people of this country knew beyond yea or nay where they should stand in relation to the Commonwealth if the bill came into operation.

I would, therefore, suggest to the Senate, said Senator Douglas, that we should allow the second stage of the bill to pass without a division. By so doing we will make it clear that we have no objection to the removal of the Oath, if it can be done by negotiation and agreement. When the bill reaches Committee we should ask the Government to explain exactly what steps it will take to ascertain the true position, and what steps it will take to see that the President's assurance is fulfilled, that the Constitutional position of this country will not be altered without another election.

THE FORM OF AMENDMENT.

If we are satisfied with the statements made we can then introduce an amendment which will provide that the Act will only come into operation after an Order in Council has been made, and providing that such Order shall not be made before an agreement has been entered into with Great Britain, the other party to the Treaty of 1921, for the necessary amendment of that instrument. This will give the Government ample time to ascertain the true position, whether at Ottawa or elsewhere, and there will be no possibility of the country finding itself outside the Commonwealth until it has been consulted on the question.

SCUTTLING THE STATE.

A POLITICAL PIRATE'S BILL.

Senator SEAN MILROY said that he followed the statement of the Minister for External Affairs with close attention. It was an arresting kind of speech, and it was a convincing kind of speech—convincing in a way that the Minister had not intended. It was a convincing vindication of the action taken ten years ago, which he opposed, and it was a devastatingly convincing condemnation of the attitude which he then took and of the policy which he had since pursued.

This bill was a political pirate's bill, and its object was to scuttle the State. The pirates were already on board. (Laughter.) One of those pirates, disguised as Minister for Finance, was engaged in looting, and another, told off to do the scuttling, was there that day to enlist the services of senators to assist in that operation. For some time past the Press Gang had been putting forward the view that if members of that House did not consent to be impressed into doing this work of the pirates they would have to walk the plank. Whether he walked the plank or not as a result of his attitude to this bill was a very secondary consideration, but he had a few things to say about those precious bucaneers. The people were entitled to frank dealing in this matter. It was their security: their lives and fortunes were involved in this matter, and may be destroyed if the Senate did what they were asked to do in this matter.

NO MANDATE FOR THE BILL.

He contended that the only valid authority on which such a bill as the present could rest was that a clear mandate had been secured from the electorate to proceed with it. The President and his Government had made the claim repeatedly that they had got such a mandate and that it was backed by an overwhelming majority. That statement was as accurate as many of the statements that the President had made since the bill was introduced. Either the President did not understand the meaning of the word "mandate" in its application to democratic electoral sanctions or he was a sort of political transcendentalist, under no necessity to distinguish between prosaic fact and the realms of imagination. He challenged the accuracy of the statement of the President that he had a definite mandate.

There was no mandate for the bill, and it was brought before, and was being carried through the Oireachtas under false pretences. The President in his action had got the assistance of the seven wise men of the Labour Party, not one of whom had an iota of authority from his constituents to support the bill. He had secured their support by dangling before their noses a bunch of specious promises, just as a bunch of carrots were dangled before the proverbial donkey.

He argued that at one time the President claimed the removal of the Oath to be an international matter, particularly during the general election, and later he said that it was a purely domestic matter. If it was a domestic matter, the President had misled the electorate, and if it were an international matter he was now humbugging the Oireachtas. The President could not have it both ways, and he believed that if the President were frank he would admit that he did not care a "hang" whether the removal of the Oath was or was not a violation of the Treaty.

A GRAVE ISSUE.

Was it the intention of the President to take the Saorstat out of the Commonwealth? That question demanded an unequivocal reply—"Yes" or "No." The issue that was raised in the bill was secession, and the Senate before making a decision should be made aware of the matter in all its bearings. The gravity of the issue was such that they there would have the responsibility of either assenting to the Minister's proposals or of rejecting or amending them. Therefore it was imperative that the President should open his real mind to the Senate, and say where his policy was going to lead the country. It was not sufficient for him to say that when the Irish people were ready for a republic he would lead them.

"Mr. de Valera," said Mr. Milroy, "would like to be in the Commonwealth and out of it at the same time. He would like to have his body inside the Commonwealth and his head outside it; his body to be materially incorporated with it internally, and his soul having only external associations."

He wanted also to know from the President if there was any assurance that the other members of the Commonwealth would consent to the Free State remaining in the Association. If the other States of the Commonwealth treated them like that the Free State would be placed in a very humiliating position. Investigation should be made into the position.

PLAYING FAST AND LOOSE.

Mr. MILROY referred to a statement made by Mr. De Valera in one of his notes to Mr. Thomas, which was as follows:—"This agreement divides the people into two hostile camps, those who deemed it a duty to resist, facing the consequences, and those who deemed it prudent in the national interests, temporarily to submit, the latter being placed in the no less cruel position of having apparently to hold Ireland for England with an economy of English lives, to quote from Lord Birkenhead's famous declaration of policy in the British House of Lords." He could prove, he said, that not only was there no truth in that, but that the Minister had committed an atrocious libel on the dead and those who stood for democratic government in the State. Did the Minister think that a single one of those who gave their lives in defence of majority rule gave it to hold Ireland for England with an economy of English lives? It was a fearful accusation to make in a State document to the representative of the Government of another State.

This bill was going to cause estrangement among a certain number of people who had been brought from their position of hostility before the State came into being into the fabric of the State, and had since thrown in their lot with the State. This bill would inflict deep, perhaps fatal, injury upon the State. He thought it was a bill intended for a purpose not yet disclosed by the Ministry, and because he did not believe in giving that or any other Ministry power to play fast and loose with the fortunes and interests of this State that he was going to vote against the second reading of this bill.

FELON-SETTING.

A MINISTER'S CHARGE.

Senator CONNOLLY, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, said that he did not know whether the object of Senator Milroy in his two and a half hours' speech was to amuse or bore the House, but he had most certainly been successful in the latter. Throughout, the speech had been marked with typical bad manners. When in Opposition the Fianna Fail Party had been severely reprimanded by Mr. McGilligan for referring to the President of the Executive Council as the Minister, but now they found Senator Milroy doing it continuously throughout his speech.

Senator MILROY said that in calling the President "the Minister" he was addressing him in his capacity of Minister for External Affairs.

Senator CONNOLLY, continuing, said that the President had not any undue vanity, and was quite content to be called Minister for External Affairs.

Proceeding, he said that one thing that had come out clearly and definitely from the speech of Senator Milroy, and the speeches in the Dail was the felon-setting attitude of Senators and deputies against the country by people who should know better. Those speeches provided the necessary propaganda for the British Government when they had no case. Senator Milroy had referred to his Trinity address, but he did not take back one word he had said there. Who created partition in a permanent form? Who gave away the Six Counties? Who yielded to the Feetham Commission? It was not a representative of Fianna Fail or the present Executive. When the present President was in Belfast Jail there was not even a protest made by the then President, Cosgrave, or his Ministers. It was only when the Free State stood on its own feet that the people of the Six Counties would understand and appreciate the reality of the position in this country.

BELFAST'S CONDITION.

If they were to get back to the Imperial position—what had the Empire done for the City of Belfast and the Six Counties? It was regrettable to him to find the City of Belfast in the state it now was, but there was no hope for it while it was tied up in British Imperialism. He referred to the speech of Senator Douglas, and said that he had handled the problem in an extremely astute manner. On most occasions he protested that he was for independence and as keen on complete freedom as any man in the country, and he had protested again that day that he did not believe in oaths. But he qualified his protests in such a way as to nullify their effect, and wanted to know where the present Government policy was going to lead them.

The strength of the Government's position was the strength of the people of Ireland behind them, and the strength of the British position was the strength of the British element behind them. The present issue was going to line up definitely the people for Ireland and those against, and for God's sake let this House at least not quibble on that issue. The Government did not want to disrupt the Commonwealth or to disturb any people, or make bad blood between people. They wanted peace and good-will in the country, and to be on peaceful terms with the people outside the country.

PEACE AND UNITY.

It was more important to them to have complete peace in the Free State than even in the Commonwealth. Their first duty was national peace and unity, and that must be secured even at the risk of offending some of the more tender-hearted people of the British Empire—Britain herself. Senator Douglas had said that in any conflict between this country and Britain they would not have the support of Canada, Australia or South Africa.

Senator DOUGLAS—I said that I did not know the opinions of those countries.

Senator CONNOLLY accepted the correction, and said that even at that risk they would have to go on.

MEN ON MOTOR CARS.

RUDE AWAKENING AHEAD.

If the people in the Senate who came there in motor cars or in first class carriages provided by the State were not sufficiently in touch with the people to realise their mentality and spirit, then the sooner they wakened up the better. If they went on legislating in the spirit they are now legislating in, they were due for a very rude awakening.

He went on to say that the Fianna Fail Party, by entering the Oireachtas some years ago, risked losing the support of some of the best people that ever lived in this country, and their entry was made difficult by the Oath which was there, and kept there because it served the political purposes of another party. The entry of Fianna Fail into the Oireachtas jeopardised their whole political future. There was disagreement in their own ranks, but in the circumstances it was up to them to see if, by evolutionary political processes, such steps to freedom could be taken as would bring the country out of the morass into which the Treaty had put it. If the Senate rejected the bill, did they realise what they were doing, the implications of their conduct, and the responsibility they were taking?

AN HONEST REQUEST.

When speaking on the Public Safety Bill Senator Douglas had said that if the Senate believed the then Government were honest in their description of the conditions, the Senate should give them the powers they sought. He wanted to assure Senator Douglas that the present Government was honest in asking that this bill should be passed in the interest of peace, that it was necessary for the future well-being of the country, and that the Government was determined to carry it through. The Senate could throw it out if they wished, but if they did so they could take the consequences.

They had been threatened with the superior force of Britain. They realised that Great Britain could surround this country and blow it to atoms. They had been threatened with immediate and terrible war in 1921, and it was not for love of the Irish that Britain refrained from it. There were powers, even outside Canada, Australia and South Africa that counted, and when the further threat of war was now made it should be remembered that those powers were still there to operate in international political affairs.

Why, he asked, should they submit to a conscience test. Suppose the Government tried to apply a conscience test to the seven per cent. minority of the people, what would be the reactions? It was inconceivable that they should do it, but it was just as inconceivable that they should have a conscience test imposed on them, and should be expected to lie under it permanently. The Fianna Fail Party had turned the Oath into an empty formula, and made it a complete sham.

The CHAIRMAN—What is that, Senator?

Senator CONNOLLY—I have already explained that on another occasion.

The CHAIRMAN—The statement that the Oath was a complete sham in this House can hardly be maintained. Would you care to repeat it so that I can define the position?

Senator CONNOLLY—I will withdraw that phrase and make it an empty formula if you like.

THE GOVERNMENT'S MAJORITY.

NO CLEAR MANDATE FROM THE PEOPLE.

Major-General Sir WILLIAM HICKIE said that he considered the bill to be the most important of all the legislative measures that the House had to deal with, because, if it were passed, it would have far-reaching effects on the immediate future. It was a time when every Senator should give to the House the reasons which influenced his vote. He belonged to no political party, and he was free to speak in accordance with his own ideas, and he would speak on what he thought were the best interests of the country.

In bringing forward the measure the Government had stated that they did so in obedience of a mandate. If he could think that such a mandate, real and unmistakable, existed he would have less difficulty and responsibility in voicing his opposition to the bill. At the time of the general election there were three planks on the Fianna Fail platform—the abolition of the Oath, the treatment of the unemployed and the retention of the land annuities. There were other side issues, such as the release of the political prisoners and the increase in the old age pensions. When he remembered that the last Government made many enemies in its determination to govern, and when he considered that the only one desire for a change was the sporting wish to give the other side a chance—he realised that the Fianna Fail were returned to power with a margin so small that they could not command a majority in the House—then he was forced to the conclusion that the clear and unmistakable mandate did not exist. And, even if the party were returned with such a sweeping majority that they could claim to have been given a mandate, then there were other considerations which made it impossible for him to support the bill.

AN INOPPORTUNE MOMENT.

Even if he could persuade his conscience that they were right in passing the bill, he could not imagine a more inopportune time than the present for its introduction. They were on the eve of the Ottawa Conference, one result of which might be that the Irish farmers for the first time in 100 years would be enabled to compete on exceptionally favourable terms with the foreigner in the British market. Anything that they did at the moment that might jeopardise that position and obscure their status was to be deprecated in the material interest of the country. It was, therefore, the duty of Senators, in the material interest of the country, to refuse to pass the bill.

In opposing the bill he reminded the House of the fate of the country that refused to honour the sanctity of the scrap of paper.

THE REFUSAL TO NEGOTIATE.

BAD CASE OF INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

Mr. S. L. BROWN said that he had no doubt as to the meaning that was attached by both parties to Article 4 of the Treaty at the time it was signed. No one now doubted that both parties, when they signed the Treaty, believed that the Oath was to be compulsory. But that did not matter now, when they had reached a stage when the question was what the British Government and the plain people of Great Britain thought of the action by the Free State Government. The British people were patient, but they were strangely emotional, and the results of their emotion lasted very long. The bill, in its inception, and in most of the arguments by which it had been supported in the Dail, was founded on a total misconception of the nature of the British Commonwealth of Nations. No wise statesman, who understood the nature of that Commonwealth, could have adopted the procedure adopted by the present Government. As long as the partnership of the Commonwealth remained each partner had absolutely equal rights, and each partner nation was independent within its own borders, subject only to this—that it could not, while it remained a partner, violate an essential condition of the partnership without the consent of the other parties.

Two of these conditions of partnership were fundamental. The first was allegiance to a common king; the second, the duty of friendly consultation with all the other members of the partnership before taking any action on a matter of common concern. Allegiance to a common King was the only "outward and visible sign" of this partnership of nations, and it was difficult to see how some resognition of that allegiance (not necessarily by an oath) could be excused or avoided, but that was a matter for consultation between the parties. He believed that the refusal of the Free State Government to negotiate was a bad case of inferiority complex.

THE SENATE'S DUTY.

The Free State was a partner equal in fact, but who was not conscious of its equality. Even now was it too late for friendly consultation and negotiation to relieve the strain? In Mr. Thomas's last statement there were signs that friendly consultation was not only possible, but desired. Therefore he urged that the Government should stay their hands and enter into friendly consultation with the British Government. The duty of the Senate was to see that the operation of the bill was delayed long enough to enable the country to find out definitely where it stands—inside or outside the Commonwealth. The President had said that though he had a mandate for the abolition of the Oath, he had not a mandate to lead the country out of the Commonwealth. Therefore it was their duty to see that nothing will be done before a general election which might have that effect.

He thought that the Senate would best discharge its duty by passing the second reading without a division, and then on the Committee stage, by inserting an amendment that the bill shall not come into operation unless and until a valid agreement shall have been entered into with Great Britain that the Treaty shall be amended by the removal of the Oath. If the Free State Government, by friendly negotion, could effect such an agreement, then all would be well. If, on the other hand, they declined to negotiate or failed to get agreement, the people at the next election would know where they stood.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Dr. O'SULLIVAN moved that the debate stand adjourned until Wednesday next.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, protested against the House adjourning after one day's sitting. He moved as an amendment to Dr. O'Sullivan's motion that the Senate meet on Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

On a show of hands the amendment was declared defeated, and, on a division, the House decided by 35 votes to 21 to adjourn until 3 o'clock on Wednesday next.

The voting was:—

For the adjournment until Wednesday:—Senators Bagwell, Barniville, Bellingham, Coey Bigger, S. L. Brown, Miss K. Browne, Mrs. Costello, Counihan, Crosbie, the Countess of Desart, Dillon, Douglas, Fanning, Garahan, Gogarty, the Earl of Granard, Griffith, Guinness, Jameson, Keane, Kennedy, The MacGillicuddy of the Reeks, McKean, McLoughlin, Milroy, Moran, O'Connor, O'Hanlon, O'Rourke, O'Sullivan, Parkinson, Staines, Toal, Vincent, Wilson.

FOOD TICKETS NOT WANTED.

UNEMPLOYED AND RELIEF SCALES.

A DEPUTATION from the Unemployed (Able-Bodied) Men's Association was received yesterday by the Dublin Board of Assistance.

Mr. Glynn said that his organisation complained of the maladministration of the Relief Acts, and asked that cash should be substituted for food tickets, with provision for rent, fuel, light and the increased cost of foodstuffs.

A request for the co-operation of the board in staying evictions of Dublin Corporation tenants was sought, and, in the case of private owners, they wished to have an allowance from the board to meet arrears, which would be repaid by instalments. Employment of men on relief schemes was suggested as a remedy for their present conditions.

A long list of cases was submitted in regard to which they considered there should be investigation.

Mr. Glynn said that the deputation did not come before the board in any antagonistic spirit, but they asked that they would be met in a fair-minded manner, with the view of having the unjust treatment of which they complained remedied. It was their intention to have the aims and objects of their association conducted in a constitutional and businesslike manner, and they trusted that the necessity would not arise to make them depart from that course.

SUGGESTED RELIEF.

There should, he said, be an explanation of the reasons for refusing relief, and he contrasted the scales of relief in other places with those in Dublin.

He suggested that in the absence of work relief should be made at 12s. 6d. per week for a man and wife, with allowances of 3s. 6d. for the first child, 2s. 6d. for the second and other children, rent 5s., coal 2s. 6d., light 1s., clothing at 4d. per head and footwear at 2d., making a total of £1 9s. 0d. per week for a family of four. In a case where there were six children their allowance would be 16s., which would bring the weekly amount up to £2 1s. 0d. per week.

His contention was that in Dublin the unemployed should be placed in as good a position as elsewhere.

In reply to Mr. D. J. O'Neill, secretary of the Association, the Chairman (Mrs. Kettle) said that the amount of relief was governed by the individual conditions of each case.

Mr. O'Neill said that that rule was unsatisfactory.

BUTCHERS AND TICKETS.

Mr. O'Neill also said that the food tickets were not accepted by butchers; so that the people getting these tickets could not get butchers' meat.

The deputation, in a memorandum submitted, complained of the general attitude of officials at Chatham row Relief Offices to applicants for relief.

The Chairman said that every member of the board was desirous of having work provided for the unemployed. They had ample evidence of that intention. Work was preferable to giving relief. They had had correspondence and deputations with the past and present Minister for Local Government in regard to providing work for the unemployed, considering that that was the best solution of the whole situation.

She said that due consideration would be devoted to the cases which had been submitted by the deputation, and they would have reports at the next meeting from the relieving officers, which would then be considered.

The number of families relieved for the week ended Saturday last was 7,869, at a cost of £4,223 9s. 6d.; a decrease of 147 families and £117 5s. 0d. compared with the previous week, and an increase of 801 cases and £508 5s. 8d. over the corresponding week last year.

The deputation thanked the Board and withdrew.

"GREAT RELIEF FROM DIGESTIVE PAIN AND ACIDITY"

WHEN nurses suffer from indigestion they know their trouble is due to gastric acidity and that the only way to get quick relief is to neutralize the excess acid. Nurse S . . . of Chelmsford, like thousands of trained nurses, uses 'Bisurated' Magnesia, the antacid remedy which is widely prescribed by doctors. She writes:

"I find great relief from pain and acidity. I have been afraid of eating fruit for some time. By taking 2 of your 'Bisurated' Magnesia Tablets directly after eating any, I get no signs of my old trouble."

You need not suffer from digestive trouble another day for 'Bisurated' Magnesia will give you quick relief by removing the cause, soothing your acid-inflamed stomach and restoring good, sound digestion.

IRISH KITTY EXPECTED TO SCORE AGAIN : BIG FIELDS.

Trains—Kingsbridge, 11.0, 1.0, 1.25.

FIELDS will be exceptionally large for the concluding afternoon's racing, the two-year-old events, as usual, attracting most runners. Following winning two years old until they are beaten has proved a sound policy this season, and Irish Kitty may well confirm this theory by winning the Brownstown Selling Plate, in which the opposition will not be very strong.

Tote Double on Fourth and Sixth Races.

Silverdale, who was beaten only a neck by Irish Kitty at Phœnix Park last month, has a 7lb. pull in the weights, but she may run instead for the Loughbrown Plate.

Selections:—
Ballysax Plate—Sunny Side Up.
Brownstown Plate—Irish Kitty.
Kildare Plate—Coolayna.
Loughbrown Plate—Silverdale.
Offaly Plate—Claremorris.
Welter Plate—Clonford.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH.

THE CURRAGH, Wednesday.

A fine morning.

BEHAN gave Cerold a sharp three furlongs spin. Cellarette, Matona, Cargan, Achieve, Some Catch, Straid and Fairford cantered four furlongs.

BRABAZON sent Corcy and Celebrator a good gallop over a mile and a quarter; Claremorris and Clonford went six furlongs at a nice pace; Centoi came three furlongs sharply.

COLLINS'S Trapper and Jorto cantered five furlongs; Last Adventure, Silverdale and Dainra covered four furlongs briskly.

DAWSON'S Tony Boy and Sherdoon galloped two miles at a nice pace on the flat; Shady Lane cantered a mile and a quarter.

DOYLE'S Kildare's Pride galloped six furlongs at a fast pace; Pretty Land traversed five furlongs at a similar rate; Yankee Lad was sharpened up over three furlongs.

FOSTER'S At the Pole, Red Horizon and Bread Fruit cantered seven furlongs.

TWO IRISH-TRAINED CANDIDATES THE AGA KHAN'S PAIR.

THE final acceptors for the Derby were published yesterday, and of the original 342 entries only 23 are left in. All the fancied horses have stood their ground, the only surprise non-acceptor being Rolling Rock, who won the Free Handicap and finished second to Miracle in the Newmarket Stakes.

The Aga Khan has accepted with both Dastur and Firdaussi, to the exclusion of Bulandshar—who is expected to contest the Grand Prize de Paris—Taj Kasra and Rooze, while Prince Aly Khan's colours will be carried by Jackdaw the Second.

J. L. Jarvis, the trainer of Lord Rosebery's Miracle, has three candidates, the others being Mr. Esmond's Royal Dancer and Sir Laurence Phillipp's Wyvern, whilst there will be a challenge from Ireland with Celebrator and Corcy, who both belong to Mr. R. S. Croker, whose father won the Derby in 1907 with Orby. Portofino, who has won each of his three races this season, is the hope of the North. He is trained by Dobson Peacock.

Cockpen has been left in to represent the Beckhampton stable in preference to Violator, and French interests are represented by Hesperus, though that colt is trained at Newmarket. No French-trained candidate remains in the race.

The value of the race this year is considerably less than was the case twelve months ago. The sweepstakes and added money amount to £11,565, compared with last year's £14,425, while the value to the winner will be £9,730 5s., or £2,431 less than last year.

THE DERBY

TIPPETS FANCIED.

MAN IN THE MOON MAY PROVE BEST IN HOME-BRED PLATE.

SIR ANDREW missed the Yorkshire Cup, and he may run in the Great Northern Handicap at York to-morrow. The distance of the race will suit him admirably, and although the opposition is good, I expect him to run prominently. Tippets ran far below expectations in the Manchester Cup, and he is given a nice chance to do a little better this time. His Manchester race will have brought him on, and he should at least finish amongst the placed horses.

Hill Cat was heavily gambled on to win the Kempton "Jubilee" Handicap, and he was a very unlucky horse not to win. He was well in the rear at the turn into the straight, but subsequently made up ground very quickly, and failed to justify the support by but a very narrow margin. Flange will carry his light weight prominently, and he should beat Lanson and Isthmus. The selection, however, is TIPPETS.

Grindleton is likely to be started for the Voltigeur Handicap. He has missed a few engagements recently, and when the going becames a little firmer I expect to see him win. Flying Argosy has been well galloped recently, but it is so long since he showed any good form on a racecourse that it is difficult to fancy him. Knight Error showed a return to form when he won the Victoria Cup at Hurst Park, but on this occasion I shall rely upon who caused a big disappointment at Thirsk when he failed to beat Aide de Camp.

Tendrip and Cinnabar are two likely candidates for the Home-Bred Plate, but I take as the best. He ran a good second to Chapeau colt at Newmarket, and had Cottrill's good youngster, Golden Calf, in the rear.

I expect to see Lambton win the Craven Handicap with

YELLOWSTONE.

The colt won in a very good style at Chester, and is improving. Lord Wensleydale, who missed an engagement at Hamilton Park with this race in view, may be the danger to my selection.

The Dringhouses Selling Sweepstakes may be fought out by Third Parade, Canoparia, and Donati's Comet filly. Canoparia has had a wonderful run of success, having won four of his five races. He is obviously a first-class plater, but Third Parade is sure to require a lot of beating. I have been told never to miss Donati'ls Comet filly in selling company, and her performance against Miss Scent colt at Haydock Park was very good indeed, especially when it is remembered that that was her first attempt. She will improve, but on this occasion I take as the best.

Good sport should be seen on the opening day of the Salisbury meeting, when the Wiltshire Plate is the principal event. Jericho is a likely competitor, but he has been a big disappointment this season, and I shall pass him over. There are possibilities about Sirene, but I take

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

TRIMDON'S CUP.

CLEVER WIN OF BROOMFORD IN THE MICKLEGATE HANDICAP.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
YORK, Wednesday Night.

IF close finishes make good racing, then we had a splendid afternoon here, even though the weather was, at times, icy cold, and there were some unpleasant showers. There was a grand finish to the Yorkshire Cup, in which two horses singled themselves out after coming into the straight. These were Trimdon and Bonny Brighteyes, and the former, giving 27lb., beat the other by a neck—a performance of high merit, which places him well in the running for a place in the small gallery of horses that have won the Ascot Gold Cup two years in succession.

Trimdon did not win too easily to-day, for he threw his head up when they were close home, and it was only a clever effort on the part of Childs that enabled him to beat the other. Nevett, who rode Bonny Brighteyes, set out with the idea of making full use of the fine stamina his mount had shown when he won the Chester Cup, and he very soon went to the front on him.

CHILDS MOVES UP.

Coming into the straight he was still in front, with the Irish colt, Castlebagot, close up with him. Childs, who had settled down last but one on Trimdon, had moved up well when they were making the turn into the straight, and very soon after he went right up to the leader.

Childs, in a long-distance race, does not usually move up on top weight so soon, but he was treating Bonny Brighteyes with respect, and was determined not to leave his horse too much to do in the last quarter of a mile. He seemed to be sitting very still on Trimdon, but all the same he was keeping the horse hard at it.

Then he took him up to the withers of Bonny Brighteyes, and Nevett, on the latter, grew a little uneasy and picked his whip up. Less than half a furlong from home Childs pushed Trimdon for all he was worth, and he was rewarded with a clever victory.

It was a race in which both horses distinguished themselves, and stood out far above the level of the rest of the field. One thing that the race made clear is that there was no fluke about the victory of Bonny Brighteyes in the Chester Cup.

NARROW VICTORIES.

We went through a whole procession of short-head, head, and neck victories. In the Micklegate Handicap, Broomford, a son of Diligence, bred by Captain J. J. White, beat Baba by a head—a clever victory—after Broomford, in the colours of Mr. W. R. Smith, the Roxburghshire farmer who owns Heronslea, had made almost all the running.

Diligence had another winner in the next race, the Eglinton Stakes. This was Sir John Barwick's Generous Gift, out of Endowment, bred at the National Stud, and sold as a yearling for 600 guineas to the Northumbrian colliery owner, who keeps a few horses in training with Jack Colling.

There was an odds-on chance for this race in Acton Reed, a son of Achtoi, who earned a tremendous reputation in the North of England by defeating the Liverpool winner, Coroado, at Newcastle. He is a handsome, strong-limbed colt, who looks like making into a good horse, but he was slow into his stride to-day, and, even though he lost ground at the start, he should have done better than finish fourth to justify his reputation.

HAYSTACK RUN OUT OF IT.

Lord Harewood's good-looking colt, Haystack, looked the most likely winner until they were close home, when Generous Gift got up with a burst of speed and ran him out of it. Hazel Oge, a daughter of Prince Galahad, who seemed to fail to stay at Derby, was running on well here.

Elsey had better luck when he won the Scarborough Stakes with Mariegoulde, a daughter of Beresford and Barnadaile. She was an even money chance, but, though she flew right away out of the gate, the holding ground was telling on her in the last furlong, and she was stopping to nothing—stopping so fast, in fact, that many people thought The Prince had got up and beaten her. The judge, however, gave the decision in her favour by a neck.

Sail, a good-looking colt by Achtoi out of Flying Fish, owned by Mr. J. H. Whitney, finished a good third, beaten a length and a half.

The other seller, the Stamford Plate, was a much more thrilling affair, for Saugor only beat Talpra by a short head. It was noticeable that six of the seven races of the afternoon were won by North country or Scottish owners; for, although Brigadier-General Lambton, the owner of Trimdon, does not live in the North, his family has been connected with the County of Durham for centuries.

SELECTIONS.

Sir Andrew, who missed the Yorkshire Cup this afternoon, may possibly run for the Great Northern Handicap to-morrow, where he will be opposed by Hill Cat, to whom he gives 1lb. C. Leader, who trains Hill Cat, has discovered that his colt needs a longer distance than a mile or ten furlongs, and is hopeful of him at twelve here. He has to give 19lb. to Tippets, and, well though the latter has been running lately, HILL CAT may be just good enough to beat him.

The Sledmere Plate will not attract so many class three-year-olds as it has done in other years, and the best of them may be POMPIER. The Craven Handicap should be won by YELLOWSTONE.

At Salisbury the Wiltshire Handicap may be won by HAPPY PRINCE and the City Bowl by FREE FARE.

GALTEE MORE.

ENGLISH HORSES FAIL.

LINDLEY'S DECISIVE VICTORY IN IRISH GUINEAS.

By winning the Irish Two Thousand Guineas at the Curragh yesterday from a field of eleven other runners, including two English challengers, Captain G. F. Dunne's Lindley established himself as an uncommonly useful three years old, and certainly the best in Ireland. Solomon's Seal, whose form in England suggested that he was a formidable opponent, could do no better than finish sixth, and it was two other home-trained candidates, Hill Song and Solicitous, who finished second and third, so that the result of the race was a complete triumph for the Irish-trained horses.

MADRIDS FORM CONFIRMED.

The race in many respects was similar to the Madrid Handicap at the April meeting, where Lindley, who was then conceding 3lb. to Hill Song, beat him by a length and a half and now when the pair were meeting on level terms only half a length separated them passing the winning post. Where there was also a similarity in the running of the two races was that in each case Hill Song looked to be going the better a furlong from home, but when each was called upon for an extra effort it was Lindley who answered the more generously.

Solicitous gave a very different account of himself compared to his running in the Baldoyle Derby, where, after keeping close company with the winner for about a mile, he dropped completely out of the reckoning. Now he was always in the picture, and, after momentarily giving promise of tackling both Lindley and Hill Song, finished third, only a length behind the latter.

A TRIBUTE TO SPION KOP.

Of the three runners from Mr. More O'Ferrall's stable Grand Ecart was the most prominent for a long way, but he was done with at the distance, and was soon passed by his stable companion, Valkyrie, who ran on strongly to finish fourth just in front of Call Him. The winner and second were the only sons of Spion Kop in the race, which was a fine tribute to this sire.

A HOME-BRED WINNER.

Lindley, who was bred by his owner, Captain Dunne, the Senior Steward of the Turf Club, is out of Teplitz, every one of whose progeny that have run have been winners. It was, on the whole, a truly run race, and the little scrimmaging that occurred about two furlongs from home, by which Soliman's Seal suffered slightly, did not influence the result as far as the placings of the first three horses were concerned. Lindley, also holds engagements in the Irish Derby and St. Leger, and his appearance in either or both of these races will be particularly interesting if some of the crack English three-years-old come across to oppose him.

DR. STRABISMUS WINS FOURTH RACE.

The remainder of the racing was of an unexciting kind on the whole, but the success of so many well-backed horses was much to the liking of backers. Lord Osborne Beauclerk's Kyleavalla, an odds-on favourite for the Paddock Plate, had little difficulty in disposing of the lot opposed to him, and Dr. Strabismus registered his fourth win off the reel when romping home an easy winner of the Novices' Stakes. He was followed past the post by Cranston, the property of R. S. Croker, who should not be long before picking up a race with this son of Knight of the Garter.

BALDOYLE PLACINGS REVERSED.

Bardley, who had finished second to Flashing Dawn in the Howth Plate at Baldoyle, had a pull of 14lb. in the weights in the Curragh Plate, and reversed the placings with Mr. Donnelly's good mare, who, however, put up a very fine race, and only suffered defeat by three-quarters of a length.

The Apprentices' Plate was won by Money Order, whose rider, B. Reilly, rode a cool race all through, and got his mount up in the last hundred yards to deprive La Sorciere of the spoils. Row Boat was always galloping easier than any of his five opponents in the Trial Plate, and won in comfortable style. Details:—

Betting—6 to 4 agst. Solomon's Seal, 2 to 1 LINDLEY, 4 to 1 Valkyrie, 8 to 1 Hill Song, 20 to 1 each Solicitous and Minden Boy, 33 to 1 Call Him, 100 to 1 any other.

Tote—Win (2/-), 6/-; places, 3/-, 4/-, 7/6.

THE RACE.

To a good start they held well together for a couple of furlongs, when Grand Ecart, Lotus Leaves and Lindley were among the leaders, with Minden Boy, Soloman's Seal and Solicitous next, and Wampum, Hill Song, Valkyrie and Call Him most prominent of the others. Half-way up the straight Lindley was slightly in front of Grand Ecart, Hill Song and Solicitous, and a little further on Soloman's Seal became shut out. At the distance Lindley took a lead of Hill Song, Solicitous and Valkyrie, with Call Him and Soloman's Seal next, and Grand Ecart at the head of the others, and, resisting the challenge of Hill Song, Lindley won by half a length; a neck. Valkyrie was fourth, Call Him fifth, Soloman's Seal sixth, Grand Ecart seventh, Minden Boy eighth, Cornbury ninth, Wampum tenth and Lotus Leaves eleventh. Time—1 min. 51 2-5 secs.

4.10—APPRENTICES' PLATE of 100 sovs. Second 10 sovs., third 5 sovs. Weight for age, etc. 6 f.

Betting—5 to 4 agst. La Sorciere, 3 to 1 MONEY ORDER, 4 to 1 Fair Belle, 7 to 1 each Mountgarret and Orange Blossom, 10 to 1 each Witch Kop and Bristol Fleet, 50 to 1 each Shantony and Monteray.

Tote—Win (2/-), 18/-; places, 4/6, 2/6, 60/-.

Mountgarret whipped round at the start, and Shantony showed in front of La Sorciere, Orange Blossom, Fair Belle and Bristol Fleet to the distance, when La Sorciere was in the lead, but failed to withstand the challenge of Money Order, who won by three-quarters of a length; three lengths. Bristol Fleet was fourth, Orange Blossom fifth and Fair Belle sixth. Time—1 min. 22 secs.

4.40—NOVICES' STAKES of 200 sovs. Second 30 sovs., third 20 sovs. For two years old. 5 f.

NEWMARKET HINTS.

NEWMARKET, Wednesday.

The Dringhouses Selling Sweepstakes will start proceedings at York to-morrow. Protomartyr, Third Parade, Donati's Comet f. and represent us. The first-named has been well galloped, and will be the danger to Canoparia.

C. Waugh is doubly represented in the Craven Handicap with Miss Mole and Decadence II., and both are well, as also is Diamantee, but I take sides with who may experience most danger from Igname.

Burnt Mint has a penalty for his success at Lingfield in the Sledmere Plate, and I like better the chance of Bucentaur. I intend, however, to fund who ran well at Chester.

Hill Cat has don ewell since unluckily beaten for the Great Jubilee Stakes, and is top weight of ours in the Great Northern Handicap, for which Tippets, on account of his forward display in the Manchester Cup, will be well supported. R. J. Colling will saddle Lanson and Ocean Wave, and the latter, who was struck into in her race at Haydock, but for which she should have finished much closer, will run well here. I prefer Flange to Stonetoi, but my vote goes to HILL CAT.

We have some useful sprinters in the Voltigeur Handicap. I am prepared to see Flying Argosy run well, and Bonnie Briar I prefer to Wall Street and Largition, but I shall rely upon public form and make

Miss Moya, Cinnabar, Man in the Moon and will contest the Home Bred Plate, and the last-named, who has been well galloped, has my vote.

VERSICLE (next best)

At Salisbury

Baldoyle Whit Meeting, 1933.

Entries close on Wednesday next for the Patriotic Plate of 550 sovs., to be run at the Whit meeting, 1933. This well-endowed event is for two years old (yearlings, 1932).

LAWN TENNIS.

LACOSTE TO PLAY AT PARIS TO-DAY.

PARIS, Wednesday.

The Irish Davis Cup player, G. Lyttleton Rogers, and the Frenchman, Paul Feret, were beaten by Pierre Landry and L. Aslangul, 3-6, 2-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the second round of the men's doubles in the French championships here to-day.

Mrs. Godfree and G. P. Hughes were beaten by C. Boussus and Mlle. Adamoff, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, in the third round of the mixed doubles. Hughes wavered in the second set, and the British pair were led 5-2 before, by brilliant volleying, they pulled up to 5-4. Then Hughes let his service go weakly to lose the set. The pair came back strongly in the third set, going to 3-1. Hughes, however, was still very patchy, and Boussus, who is playing better this year than ever, plastered hard returns to all parts of the court, and the French pair took five games in a row for set and match.

IRELAND HAS CHOICE OF VENUE.

Mr. Maunsell, the Hon. Secretary of the Irish Lawn Tennis Association, informs us that he has been notified by the FrencheLawn Tennis Federation that Ireland will have choice of ground for their third round match in the Davis Cup against Germany.

F. J. Perry and F. S. Olliff and I. G. Collins and G. P. Hughes have reached the quarter-finals of the men's doubles, but in the women's doubles Mrs. Godfree and Miss James lost to Senorita d'Alvarez and Mlle. Sigart, 6-4, 6-4, in the third round. Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall and Miss Betty Nuthall still remain, and the probability is that these two will oppose Mrs. Wills Moody and Miss Ryan in the final.

F. J. Perry and Miss Nuthall won their first round match in the mixed doubles, beating Count Salm and Mlle. V. Gallay, 6-3, 6-3.

A start will be made in the men's singles tomorrow, when Rene Lacoste will make his eagerly awaited re-appearance after a considerable absence from competitive lawn tennis.

BALLYCASTLE LAWN TENNIS CLUB, BALLYCASTLE, CO. ANTRIM.

Our Annual Open Lawn Tennis Tournament will be held in July, commencing Saturday, 9th, and continued throughout the following week. Events:—Irish Close Championships, Co. Antrim Championships and Handicaps.

GOLF.

TWO IRISHMEN LEFT IN.

CROWLEY AND MUNN SURVIVE. DAY OF SURPRISES AT MUIRFIELD

The third round of the British Amateur Championship was played on the Muirfield course yesterday, and of the five players chosen to represent Great Britain against America who entered for the event only one remains.

T. A. Torrance, who is expected to captain the British side, was completely overwhelmed by John McLean, and Lister Hartley was vanquished by Samuel McKinlay. Both of the winners belong to Glasgow. McLean is twenty-one years of age, and McKinlay four years his senior. Eric McRuvie is the one golfer chosen for the American match who survived. Three of the other chosen ones, J. A. Stout, J. T. Bookless and the Irishman, John Burke, of Lahinch, did not enter, the latter, who has definitely decided to travel with the British Isles team, being unable to get away from business. The American challenge was completely stalled off, and of the thirty-two remaining thirteen are English, sixteen Scottish, two Irish and one Welsh. Ireland's representatives in proportion to their numbers have done splendidly. A. Stuart (Royal Portrush) got no further than the third round, and D. Wilson Smyth went down gallantly on the 19th to Reynard in the same round, but Michael Crowley had an easy win over E. D. Hamilton (3 and 2), while Lionel Munn survived a hard match with Cyril D. Guy, of Royal Mid-Surrey, on the home green.

MICHAEL CROWLEY.

Eric Fiddians was in the forefront yesterday, and E. Tipple was level fours when he achieved a surprisingly long victory over Andrew Jamieson, who, the last time the championship was played here, defeated "Bobby" Jones.

David Martin, who travelled from California, was given the unexpected coup de grace by H. Shaw, who last year was beaten in the third round of this event.

Sombre skies, biting wind, and, at times, lashing rain, were not conducive to Martin producing his best. He defeated a veteran and seasoned campaigner in Bernard Darwin, but he found Shaw a different proposition.

Martin was in the lead most of the way. He gained and lost the lead three times before he reached the ninth, and then the battle began. Shaw squared at the tenth, and then, badly bunkered, gave up the next. He did the same at the twelfth, and then at the short thirteenth Martin was short, and fell behind for the first time. Shaw was robbed of the fourteenth by a stymie, after Martin had played two in a bunker. Shaw won the sixteenth, and, with Martin stymied at the next, the American could get only a half. At the last hole Martin was bunkered off his drive, short with his second, and Shaw, on in two, won the hole in 4 for the match by two holes.

SECOND ROUND (CONCLUDED).

GYMNASTICS.

GRANGEGORMAN LADIES DEFEATED.

At the Gymnasium, Inchicore, G.S. Railway ladies defeated Grangegorman by the narrow margin of one point in the Junior Championship. The narrow defeat of Grangegorman came as a surprise, as they have held an unbeaten record for a number of years, and great credit is due to Mr. F. O'Hara, the instructor, for the splendid way he turned out the home team.

In Swedish drill Grangegorman led by one point, but in the dumb-bell exercises G.S.R. were the more finished, and took the lead by two points, which gave them the championship. Sergeant-Major Doogan and Mr. Gunning acted as judges.

G.S. Railway team—Misses K. Neville, L. Flynn, C. Flynn, R. Molyneux, A. Bailey, T. Roberts, S. Brodish, K. Keating.

PARKINSON'S Three Star, Stand Off, May Turn and Ted had a nice gallop over a mile; Diligent, Grey (Green, Rose Rock and Cataline went sharply three furlongs; the remainder of the Maddenstown Lodge team cantered.

ENGLISH LADIES WIN TWO MATCHES.

HEAVY DEFEAT OF IRISH TEAM AT SAUNTON.

England are certain of regaining from Scotland the Ladies' International Championship.

In the first day's play at Saunton, North Devon, yesterday, the home side defeated first Ireland by nine games to none, and in the "key" match won from Scotland by eight matches to one.

Thus England have to beat Wales to-day to win the title. The other match to-day will be between Scotland and Ireland, but this will have no bearing on the championship unless England are defeated earlier.

WITH THE IRISH PLAYERS.

Miss Pentony caused some surprise by being 2 up with 4 played on Miss Morgan, a couple of 4's being all that could be desired. With 5 played Miss Pentony still was 2 in front, but then her golf seemed almost to wilt, as Miss Morgan won the seventh and eighth. Worse was to follow for Miss Pentony, who lost the next four to stand four to the good, the one effort that counted by Miss Pentony afterwards being the win at the fourteenth.

Mrs. Walker's wooden club play to the opening two holes against Miss Fishwick left something wanting, and she paid the penalty by losing them. Miss Fishwick gathered three more wins to lead by five at the turn, and she settled it with a win at the thirteenth.

Miss Corlett was out in 35 against Mrs. Todd, who did not win a hole, and the match was as good as over when Miss Corlett got down from six yards at the ninth for a four holes' advantage. Miss Corlett was one under an average of 4's when the match ended.

WALES WELL BEATEN.

Miss Pentony played the less indifferent of some very indifferent golf against Miss Rieben before the Irishwoman won by a single hole. Miss Rieben never was in front. Miss Pentony got the lead at the second, and she faced home with a lead of one.

Miss Ferguson showed some courageous wooden club play to beat Mrs. Edwards by one hole, as did Miss Ellis against Miss Evans to win at the seventeenth.

Miss Sherlock and Mrs. Jones had a very tight match all the way. Mrs. Jones was one up at the ninth, and the game was squared at the seventeenth. So far Mrs. Jones's putting had saved her many times, but Miss Sherlock's "birdie" 3 at the last hole gave the latter this match.

ATHLETICS.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS' SPORTS.

MARINO'S SUCCESS AT CROKE PARK.

The stands at Croke Park yesterday were filled with enthusiastic youngsters for the Primary Schools' Sports, in which competitors were more numerous probably than at any other sports meeting during the year. The races were keenly contested, and the relays were very interesting, while there was a great finish in the half mile team race, in which over forty competed, Cunningham beating Hanratty by 3 yards, with the latter coming up strongly. The feature of the jumping was the remarkable effort of 15 feet 6 inches by C. O'Flanagan in the under 13 long jump.

The Elvery Cup for the best individual performer went to J. Doran, of Marino, who won the 440 yards and both jumps, under 15, showing promising form in each event. Marino won the Gill Cup with 18 points, Synge street coming second with 9 points. The organisers deserve a tribute, the events being carried out well up to time.

75 Yards (under 11)—Following qualified for the final—P. Curran, P. Salmon, H. Ruttledge, P. Walsh, P. Fitzpatrick, K. Fogarty, V. Geraghty, P. Fitzsimons.

NEW ARMY RECORD IN MARATHON.

The Free State Army Marathon was decided over the full marathon distance yesterday, seventeen runners taking part, from Portlaoighise to the Water Tower, Curragh Camp. The winner turned up in Private Spittle, a Reservist, who covered the distance in 3 hours 4 mins., which beats last year's Army record time by 7 minutes, and is only 3½ minutes outside the Irish record set up last year by Private McKinney. Fanning, who finished second, was 4 minutes inside the Army record. Result:—

1, Private Spittle (Reserves), 3 hrs. 4 mins.; 2, Private Fanning (4th), 3 hrs. 7 mins.; 3, Private Ryan (Irish Military College), 3 hrs. 12 mins.; 4, Private O'Reilly (Reserves), 3 hrs. 25 mins.; 5, Private Treacy (Artillery), 3 hrs. 27 mins.; 6, Private Hayden (R. and T. Depot), 3 hrs. 28 mins.; 7, Corporal O'Connor (2nd Batt.), 3 hrs. 31 mins.; 8, Private Fitzgerald (3rd Batt.), 3 hrs. 40 mins.; 9, Private McDonnachada (1st Batt.), 3 hrs. 41 mins.; 10, Private Hickey (Air Corps), 3 hrs. 43 mins.; 11, Private Ward (Air Corps), 3 hrs. 44 mins.

PRESENTATION COLLEGE SPORTS.

The annual sports of the Presentation College, Bray, held in the County Wicklow Cricket Club grounds yesterday, provided an interesting all-round display, bright sunshine, keen competition and a high standard in most of the events combining to make the tournament successful.

The noteworthy performances of A. Bailey—who successfully contested four events—B. Cruise, H. Murphy and several other competitors are an index to the importance in which athletics are held in the College curriculum.

Presenting the prizes, General E. O'Duffy pointed out that his faith in the revival of athletics on a proper scale of efficiency in Ireland was centred in the schools, and he stressed the importance of field sports generally in the formation of the physique and of character of the young manhood of the country.

THE NOVICES' LEAGUE.

PEMBROKE ... 19 pts. INSURANCE ... 5 pts.

The Pembroke A.C. sprung a surprise on the Irish Insurance Federation last night by defeating them in the Novices' League by 19 points to 5. J. Daly (Pembroke) secured the "hat trick" by bringing off all the field events—the High Jump, at 5ft. 6ins.; the Long Jump, at 18ft. 6¼ins.; and the 16lb. Shot, at 36ft. 1in.

ANGLING.

IRELAND SECOND AT LOCHLEVEN.

VICTORY FOR SCOTLAND IN INTERNATIONAL.

A team of sixteen Irish anglers took part in the first trout angling international on Loch Leven, Kinrossshire, yesterday. Sixty-four representatives of the four countries fished the waters of the historic loch for nine hours.

The weighing-in and checking of the catch was watched by a large crowd, and, when it was announced that Scotland had won the contest, the members of the winning team were surrounded and warmly congratulated. The result was:—

Scotland—137 trout, 88lb. 1oz.

Ireland—104 trout, 74lb. 8oz.

England—103 trout, 66lb. 14oz.

Wales—79 trout, 57lb. 2oz.

Mr. Hewetson, Westport, who had the best catch of the Irish team with 15 trout, weighing 10lb. 9oz., had landed three trout on one cast.

Other Irish catches were—G. O'Connell (Cork), 10 trout, 8lb, 6oz.; C. Caulfield (Dublin), 14 trout, 8lb. 2oz.; D. Barr (Drogheda), 8 trout, 6lb. 2oz.; L. Gaffey (Dublin), 10 trout, 6lb. 12oz.; Dr. McAllister (Omagh), 7 trout, 5lb. 4oz.; Captain Allen (Armagh), 8 trout, 5lb. 3oz.; H. Lafferty (Dublin), 6 trout, 5lb. 2oz.

YACHTING.

THE WATER WAGS.

Marie Louise sailed her best race last evening, when she won the Buckingham Cup tie from thirteen other boats. The conditions suited her—viz., a reaching course and a long handicap start at the beginning, she, followed by Cupid, another of the limit division, holding grimly on to the initial advantage, the pair coming in first and second. The best performance in the race was that of Phyllis, one of the three scratch boats. Finish:—

GREYHOUND RACING.

THE NOVICES' CUP SEMI-FINALS.

FAVOURITES SCORE AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

Moorstown Fox and Bogus Telegram won their semi-finals in the Novices' Cup last night at Shelbourne Park. The former, with odds laid on, never left the issue in doubt, as, getting well away, he won by six lengths, while Bogus Telegram, also a favourite, won decisively.

Over Courtly, the winner of the Dublin Stake, was fully extended to beat Carmelius, the margin being a short head. Old Sanko had a close race with Mozart, whom he beat in the Clonmel Stake by a length. Guideless Joe won the Sandymount Sprint in the good time of 19.97 secs.

Over Certain gave an impressive display in the Celtic Hurdle, in which Barcelona fell at the second obstacle, while Sarshill cleverly outjumped his opponents in the Shelbourne Hurdle.

DUBLIN STAKE (600 yards)—Mr. P. O'Callaghan's f. d. OVER COURTLY (5) (Boasted Force—The Mark), 6 to 4, 1; Mr. T. W. Cox's CARMELIUS (4), 6 to 1, 2; Mr. T. J. Stone's ROCKETT'S CROSS (3), 2 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Gambling Millar (6), 6 to 1; Borora (2), 3 to 1; Smiling Show (1), 10 to 1. A short head; two lengths. 36.03 secs.

SHELBOURNE HURDLE—Mr. R. Sinnott's f.d. SARSHILL (3) (Lenin—Mountain Brow), 3 to 1, 1; Mr. J. Lalor's CONEY CATCH (4), 2 to 1, 2; Mr. M. J. D'Arcy's RATTLING RECOVERY (6), 4 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Yellow Flash (6), 4 to 1. Three lengths; six lengths. 32.47 secs.

CLONMEL STAKE (550 yards)—Mr. D. O'Neill's bk. d. OLD SANKO (5) (Old Kit—She's Next), 3 to 1, 1; Miss I. Murphy's MOZART (6), 5 to 2, 2; Mr. J. Colclough's COMING BRIGADE (1), 6 to 4, 3. Also ran:—Sir Garnett (4), 8 to 1; Ring 'Em Up (3), 4 to 1. One length; four lengths. 32.23 secs.

SHELBOURNE NOVICES' CUP.—Second Semi-final—Mr. H. Galvin's bd. d. MOORSTOWN FOX (4) (White Fox—Moorstown Lass), 2 to 1 on, 1; Mr. M. Quirke's MOLLY'S CHAP (3), 7 to 1 agst., 2; Mr. P. V. Murphy's MINCER (5), 10 to 1, 3. Also ran—Brown Thorn (2), 4 to 1; Just Remark (1), 10 to 1. Six lengths; three lengths. 30.72 secs.

SHELBOURNE NOVICES' CUP. Third Semi-Final—Mr. G. Brew's r. f. d. BOGUS TELEGRAM (2) (Melksham Queer Times—Distaste), 5 to 4, 1; Mr. M. Kinsella's BANAGHER BOY (1), 5 to 1, 2; Mr. P. Hanna's Heavy Guard (4), 3 to 1, 3. Also ran—Wise Mick (3), 5 to 2. Six lengths; half a length. 31.31 secs.

CELTIC HURDLE—Mr. P. O'Callaghan's bd. w. d. OVER CERTAIN (3) (Julian—Over Cordial), 7 to 4, 1; Mrs. A. Champion's CANTILEVER (6), 4 to 1, 2; Mr. J. McCarthy's BARCELONA (1), evens, 3. Also ran—Kiddington Rattler (4), 6 to 1. A distance; same. 33.02 secs.

SANDYMOUNT SPRINT, 355 yards—Mr. J. Moylan's bd. d. GUIDELESS JOE (2) (Guiding Hand—Flaming Fire), evens, 1; Mr. M. Clyne's CIMARRON (3), 8 to 1, 2; Mr. J. Dwyer's FIRST EVENT (5), 5 to 2, 3. LONDON WOOL SALES.

Three catalogues were submitted, jointly totalling 9,297 bales, including 1,042 New South Wales, 517 Queensland, 1,617 Victorian, 659 South Australian, 437 West Australian, 187 Tasmanian, 4,067 New Zealand, and 766 Cape. A rather better demand was experienced, while of a more general character, and the tone remained steady at opening levels. Withdrawals, however, were noticeable, especially among merinos, owing to sellers' firm limits.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN FIRM.

BUSINESS SMALL.

Dublin Stock market was firm yesterday, but business was on a very small scale. Free State Funds were quite good, and, where former prices were changed, there was an improvement, as in Second Loan, which rose ½ to 104. Among British Funds, Funding Loan was a weak spot.

The Bank section made a mixed showing. Bank Stock rose a point to 284 and National improved to 41s. 6d., but Provincials lost a point to 26. Royals repeated 12½.

A good market in Guinness left the units a shilling better at 65s., and the Prefs. improved to 11⅞. Alliance Gas also closed better, and B. and I. Pref. repeated last price.

The Industrial market, so far as cross-Channel securities are concerned, was confined to Lever 7 p.c. and Unilevers, both of which were weak. The "bid" prices for Courtaulds and Chemicals were very poor.

Among local things, Roche's Stores repeated 12s. 6d., Burke Debs. fell ⅛ to 6¼, Goulding Pref. rose eighteenpence to 83s., and Artisans' Dwellings repeated 12⅛.

LONDON EASIER.

"CANPACS" ESTABLISH FRESH LOW RECORD.

The dull conditions which characterised the London Stock Markets on Tuesday were again apparent right from the commencement of business yesterday, and in the course of the day's trading values receded still further, the finish in most instances being at about the lowest of the day. In a few directions, however, some recovery was shown from the worst levels. This was particularly noticeable in British Funds, but although a fairly substantial recovery occurred the final values were still below the previous day's close. Canadian Pacifics, which provided one of the weakest features of Tuesday, remained flat, and at one time dealings were put through down to 9⅝. They rallied smartly later, but still showed a further sharp loss at the close. Foreign Government Stocks showed fresh recessions, and British and Colonial and Foreign Rails went off again. Considerable fluctuation was shown in values in the gilt-edged section, but following early weakness on the continuance of profit-taking a recovery occurred, though quotations at the close were still below the previous close. Irish Free State Land Bonds sustained a trifling setback, closing ½ lower at 96½. India Stocks moved irregularly, but the Australians were maintained. There was not a great deal passing in the Foreign Government Stock department, but the trend of values was again in the downward direction. Czecho-Slovakia Bonds were scaled back further to 70, this leaving them 4 points lower, while Chinese and Brazilians were all easier. Austrian Sixes, Egyptian Unified and Poland Sevens were other dull markets. The British Rail market presented a weak appearance, all the leaders and many of the Pref. issues losing fresh ground, the losses ranging from ¼ to a point. Colonial and Foreign Rails were again depressed, with "Canpacs" a weak feature. American Rails also disclosed an easier tendency. Dull conditions prevailed in all directions in the Industrial Markets, the depreciations shown at the close being of substantial amounts in numerous instances. Banks went off, Anglo-South Americans being an outstanding weak feature, while Motors, Breweries and Iron, Coal and Steels finished at substantially reduced levels. Shipping and Textiles also showed weakness, and Insurance descriptions were marked off rather sharply. The trans-Atlantic issues weakened all round and among the Miscellaneous Industrials Imperial Chemicals and Spillers were outstanding weak markets. Elsewhere Oils were marked off, there being a certain amount of selling from the Continent, while Mines mostly sought lower levels. Great Boulders, however, spurted after the dividend announcement.

DUBLIN BUSINESS DONE.

FUNDS STEADY. BANK STOCK AND GUINNESS HIGHER. INDUSTRIALS IDLE.

In Funds, National Loan repeated 101⅜. Second Loan rose ½ at 104 and ditto Deed 2⅞ at 103⅞. Third Loan at 95⅞, ditto Deed at 95⅞, and Compensation Stock at 100, were unchanged. Land Bonds unaltered at 96⅜, after 96¼, and ditto (small lots under £200) ⅛ at 96⅛. Consols fell 1⅜ at 62⅛; 5 p.c. War Loan, ⅛ at 101⅛, after 101; ditto Deed, ⅝ at 100⅞, and Funding Loan, ⅜ at 99⅛.

Bank of Ireland gained 1 at 284, and National 3d. at 41s. 6d., after 42s. Provincial lost 1 at 26, and Royal unchanged at 12½.

Alliance Gas was 1/16 better at 10⅞.

Roche's Stores unaltered at 12s. 6d.

Among Industrials, Burke lost ⅛ at 6¼, Lever 7 p.c. Pref. 3d. at 24s. 7½d., after 24s. 9d., and Unilever 10½d. at 25s. 3d. Dockrell Ord., at 11s. 9d., and Dublin Artisans' Dwellings, at 12⅛, were unaltered. Goulding Pref. improved 1s. 6d. at 83s., and Anglo-Persian Oil 2nd Pref. changed hands at 23s. 10½d.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

INSURANCE SHARES DEPRESSED.

There were no signs of an improvement in conditions in the Industrial market yesterday. Adverse advices from Wall street and the Continent further depressed share values and consequently a heavy tone again prevailed in all sections. Scattered liquidation was again in evidence from the provinces, especially among the leading issues. Insurance shares suffered a sharp setback, due largely to fears of forced selling on behalf of an overseas institution. Bank shares were also marked down in sympathy.

With Wall street in a selling mood, the trans-Atlantic counters were marked down further.

Renewed selling of Cables and Wireless stocks was reported. Marconi Marine receded to 1⅛.

Leylands were noticeably depressed among Motors, losing 2s. 9d. at 27s. 6d., Thomas Tilling gave way to 52s. 9d., with Austins offered at 24s. 9d.

Breweries reflected the general tendency; Distillers came back 1s. 3d. to 42s. 6d., while City of London Pref. lost 1s. at 54s. Other movements, however, rarely exceeded 6d.

The Tobacco leaders remained on the dull side. "Bats" lost the turn at 3⅜, and Gallahers at 1⅞. "Imps" and Carreras closed unchanged.

Textiles remained a doubtful market. Wardle and Davenport were marked down to 28s. 9d., and Sewing Cottons to 22s., while Listers came on offer again at 11s. 6d.

In the Rayon section Courtaulds closed 9d. lower at 26s. 1½d., and British Celanese Ord. lost a similar amount at 5s. Snia Viscosa finished no better than 1⅛.

In common with most internationals, Woolworths opened easier at 51s. 6d., but later rallied to 52s., which left them 6d. lower on balance.

Tate and Lyles continued to weaken, and were eventually 9d. down at 39s. 1½d., while the Unilever twins shed 1/16 to 1 3/16. Home and Colonials dropped to 14s. 9d., and International Teas sagged to 25s. 6d.

Although the turnover in most of the leading Insurance issues was on a small scale, some material recessions were marked, while smaller declines were general throughout the list.

In the Miscellaneous section, Turner and Newalls closed a very uncertain market in the neighbourhood of 21s., a loss of 1s., this being attributed to further fears regarding the interim dividend. Chemicals were levelled to 12s., a fall of 7½d., while the Pref. were marked down 9d. to 21s.; other declines of a few pence being marked in Associated Cements at 23s. 6d., British Oil and Cake at 28s. 6d., British Oxygen at 10s., Joseph Lucas at 51s. 3d., Molasses at 4s. 4½d., and Wallpaper Deferred at 24s. Dunlops dropped to 9s. 10½d., and Spillers continued to encounter sellers on provincial account.

OIL SHARES LOWER.

Dull conditions again characterised the Oil share market yesterday, business in the leaders and speculative descriptions alike being on an extremely small scale. At the start an easier tendency was noticeable, advices received overnight from New York not being of a favourable character. Lower prices came over for most of the leading American Oil Stocks. Definite news in regard to the conference of leaders of the industry in New York is still awaited anxiously. The latest information to hand is to the effect that the conference, after answering the questions of the Russians on the specific proposal for the allocation of markets, has adjourned until Friday, when a reply from the Soviet representatives is expected. Interest was aroused by the report that an International Petroleum Institute for the exchange of statistics may be established similar to the American Petroleum Institute. At the close share prices were mostly easier.

RUBBER SHARES STAGNANT.

Trading was again conspicuous by its absence in the Rubber share market yesterday, and, in sympathy with the general trend, quotations sought lower levels in one or two directions. Taken as a whole, however, the market maintained a steady appearance, and the few price movements returned were of modest dimensions. In the raw material department, spot and June remained at 1 15/16d. per lb., with July to September at 1⅞d. per lb., and October to December at 1 15/16d. per lb.

RAYON MARKET.

TRADE DULL.

MANCHESTER, Wednesday.

Only a small movement of rayon piece goods is reported after the holidays, but buying is expected to resume its normal course within the next few days. While business has been assisted slightly by the new import duties, present stocks of cheap foreign fabrics will have to be disposed of before home producers can expect much improvement. Fair support has been lent to various dress goods, and increased attention has been devoted to corset fabrics, but linings have moved quietly. Casement and furnishing cloths have been in more request.

The Colonies are still the most persistent Overseas buyers, and make regular purchases of various fabrics. Actual business for India and China is disappointing, despite increased inquiry. Egypt and South America are lending quiet support, but more would be done for the former outlet if offers were improved slightly. The Continent has been quiet.

Spinners are selling production readily, but are finding little new business.

GOLD MOVEMENTS.

The further large purchase of gold by the Bank of England reported below came as a surprise to the bullion market, and it was generally assumed that the transaction, like its two recent predecessors, represented an exchange of a part of official franc holdings into gold in Paris.

The Bank of England yesterday announced the purchase of bar gold to the value of £1,934,477. The influx for 1932 to date thus amounts to £4,216,033. The net loss for 1931 (according to the daily published movement) amounted to £30,896,939.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in its daily report on the movements of gold, announces the following:—Exports—To France, 7,349,000 dols.; to Switzerland, 8,033,000 dols.; to Belgium, 3,500,000 dols.; to Holland, 1,850,000 dols.; to England, 1,189,000 dols.; to Germany, 500,000 dols. Ear-marked for foreign account shows a decrease of 3,500,000 dols.

LONDON MINING MARKET DULL.

EASIER TENDENCY PREVAILS.

There was very little change in the conditions ruling in the Mining market yesterday. The disposition to offer shares was rather more noticeable than on the previous day, but, generally speaking, the declines were due more to absence of support than to actual liquidation. The Cape was reported to be quiet and fairly steady, while Paris, although inclined to be a seller, could not be blamed for the dulness of the Kaffir department. The declines were chiefly in the nature of adjustments following the improvement in sterling, which, if maintained, will reduce the amounts of the dividends to be declared next month. An easier tendency prevailed in the Diamond section, Paris selling the De Beers' issues. The probability of a 4 cent. tariff being imposed on imports of copper into the United States aroused scarcely any discussion in the share market. The metal eased to £27 8s. 9d. per ton, but the North Rhodesians were, if anything, inclined to go better. Chartered continued an uncertain market, Paris being a small seller, and Tanks again receded. Tintos and Tharsis were lowered, in sympathy with the trend in the French capital. The price of tin reacted to £123 7s. 6d. per ton. Where changed, quotations in the share market were lower, but the variations did not exceed a small fraction. The Commonwealth took little further interest in the West Australians. Prices, however, kept fairly steady.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

ASSAM OIL.—The report for 1931 states that the debit balance brought forward was £345,657. The profit for the year was £192,155, against £49,105.

ANDERSONS RUBBER.—Final dividend of 2½ per cent. on Ord., subject to tax, making 10 per cent. for year (12½ per cent.)

BRITISH TANKER.—Dividend of 6 per cent. free of tax; £30,420 forward.

BRITISH THREAD MILLS.—Dividend of 2½ per cent. 6d. per share) on the "A" Ordinary Shares for the year, less tax. (No dividend for previous year.)

BARRY AND STAINES LINOLEUM.—Final dividend of 7½ per cent., less tax, making 10 per cent., less tax, on the Ordinary for the year ended March 31, 1932. (For the previous year there was a total distribution of 7½ per cent.)

BESOEKI PLANTATIONS.—The report for the year 1931 states that, after providing £5,507 for depreciation and £1,939 for British income tax, there was a loss of £7,311, in comparison with a profit of £5,622 in the previous year. After deducting this amount from the balance brought in of £17,165 there remains a balance of £9,854, which the board propose to carry forward. The last dividend was 8 per cent. for 1929.

BENSKIN'S WATFORD BREWERY.—Interim of 4½ per cent., less tax, on Ordinary Shares declared. (Last year 5 per cent. was paid, with a final of 6½ per cent.)

CRITTAL MANUFACTURING.—The directors announce that the six months' interest due on the company's 6 per cent. Debenture Stock will be paid on the 1st June next. The directors also announce that the earnings of the company warrant the payment of the six months' dividend on the 7 per cent. Cum. Pref. Shares due on the 1st proximo, but that owing to the present world trading and financial stringency it is, in their opinion, in the best interests of the company to defer payment of this for the time being. During the past months, despite the curtailment of public expenditure on buildings, the demand for the company's products at home had increased. This, together with the results of economies effected, suggests that the present successful trading position should continue.

CARRERAS, LIMITED.—The directors have declared an interim dividend of 15 per cent., less income tax, on the Ordinary, "A" Ordinary and "B" Ordinary Shares of the company, payable on 18th June, 1932. A half-year's dividend on the 6 per cent. Preference, 6 per cent. "A" Preference and 7 per cent. "B" Preference Shares will also be paid on the same date. (Same as last year.)

DAILY MIRROR NEWSPAPER.—Interim dividend of 3½ per cent., less tax, on the Ordinary Shares (same).

DJAPOERA (SUMATRA) RUBBER COMPANY.—The accounts for 1931 show that, after deducting depreciation and difference on exchange, there was a loss on the year of £1,851, against a profit of £309 in the preceding year. The balance brought in was £6,685, and £1,000 has been transferred from taxation reserve no longer required, while £968 has been taken from special cultivation reserve, so that there remains a credit balance of £6,802, which the directors propose to carry forward. No dividend has been paid since 5 per cent. for 1927.

GREAT BOULDER PROPRIETARY.—Final dividend for the year ended 31st December, 1931, of 12½ per cent., less tax, making, with the interim, 25 per cent. for year (against 12½ per cent. in previous year, 3d. on 2/- shares).

HOTEL BELGRAVIA.—Owing to continued business depression, directors are unable to recommend payment of dividend on Preference Shares at June 1 or any arrears. (Paid to November 30, 1930.)

IONIAN BANK.—The Board, as foreshadowed at the last meeting, are again deferring the consideration of any dividend until the year's results are available. Last year a payment of 2 per cent., less tax, was made at the year end. Although the careful husbanding of the bank's resources has had the effect of reducing its operations during the six months ended February 29, the earnings show an improvement over those for the six months ended February 28, 1931.

JAVA UNITED PLANTATIONS.—The report for 1931 states that there was a trading loss of £2,931, while depreciation took £8,083 and Debenture interest £4,338, making a total loss of £15,352, which compares with a loss of £5,574 in the previous year. The credit balance brought in was £17,044, so there remains a credit balance of £1,692, which the board propose to carry forward. The board have created a reserve for depreciation in the value of the investment of 20,000 shares of £1 each (15/- paid) in Western Java Estates, which company has not earned a profit since its incorporation in 1929. Accordingly a sum of £10,000 has been transferred from the general reserve account. The last dividend was 3 per cent. for 1929.

NORTH AMERICAN COMPANY.—The consolidated balance sheet of this company and its subsidiaries at March 31, 1932, shows total assets of $878,346,000, compared with $860,002,202 at the same date last year; reserves, $120,553,697; surplus, $152,266,968, including undivided profits of $121,058,102, after deduction of $12,000,000 reserve for contingencies created December 31, 1931 compared with last year's surplus of $151,105,603, including undivided profits of $122,267,070.

SIALANG RUBBER.—After providing for directors' fees and all other expenses, operations during the year ended January 31 last resulted in a loss of £15,111, which included £1,992 for depreciation of buildings, plant, etc., and a loss of £3,444 on exchange. Of the year's loss £3,000 has been written off special cultivation reserve, and the balance of £12,113 has reduced the sum carried forward from £57,621 to £45,509. The crop, which was reduced from 1,828,739lb. to 1,657,934lb., realised an average price of 2.59d. as against 5.01d. per lb. During the previous year there was a loss of £8,389, and the last dividend was 5 per cent. for 1929-30.

SELANGOR OIL PALM COMPANY.—Profit and loss account discloses a profit of £1,855 for the year ended December 31, 1931, and there is now at credit of appropriation account £6,386. The directors recommend writing off Edinburgh office expenses, £2,237; writing off preliminary and formation expenses, £500; carrying forward subject to directors' fees for year 1931, the balance of £3,649—£6,386.

SCOTTISH GREYHOUND RACING.—Dividend declared of 4d. per share actual on each class of share, less tax.

SUNDAY PICTORIAL NEWSPAPERS (1930).—Interim dividend of 7½ per. share, less tax, on Ordinary Shares. (Same.)

SOUTHDOWN MOTOR SERVICES.—Final dividend of 5 per cent., making 10 per cent. for year (same); forward £24,565.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES.—Net loss for 1931 was £42,942, against net loss of £108,484 for 1930.

WILSONS AND CLYDE COAL.—The report by the directors of Wilsons and Clyde Coal Company, Ltd., for the year ended February 29, 1932, states that profit on trading amounted to £21,404. Out of this sum the directors have carried to depreciation reserve account £10,000, leaving £11,404. Interim dividend on Preference Shares absorbed £1,750, leaving £9,654, to which falls to be added the balance brought forward from last year, £8,411, making a balance available at credit of £18,065. The directors recommend payment of a final dividend on the Preference shares, requiring a further £1,750, leaving to be carried forward to next account the sum of £16,315. The report adds that extremely depressed conditions in the coal trade still prevail. Demand for coal in all countries continues to diminish, and the present market outlook is most unsatisfactory. Plant, machinery, and wagons have been well maintained during the year, and are in good working order and condition. In the previous year balance at credit of profit and loss account, after transferring £30,000 from reserve and providing for depreciation, was £11,911. The last payment made on the Ordinary Shares was 5 per cent., less tax, on account of the year ended February 28, 1927.

WILLIAM CORY AND SON.—A final dividend of 10 per cent., less tax, on the Ord. and Employés Shares, making 15 per cent., less tax, for the year, and a proportionate dividend on the Employés Shares ranking for dividend from the 1st January, 1932. Last year final 12½ per cent., less tax, making 17½ per cent., less tax.

WEMBLEY STADIUM.—Interim dividend on Pref. Shares at rate of 7½ per cent. per annum for six months ending June 30 next, less tax.

THE MONEY MARKET

RATES STILL EASY.

There was again an ample supply of credit available in Lombard street yesterday, short loans being offered at 1 p.c. and occasionally under. The charge for renewing old day-to-day money was mostly 1 p.c.

In the discount market the new Treasuries were a shade firmer at 15/16 to 1 p.c., but the banks were buyers of Julys at ⅞ p.c. and of August bills at 1 p.c. Fine three months' Bank bills were quoted at 1⅛ to 1 3/16 p.c.

Silver improved ⅛d. further on China buying to 16 5/16d. per oz. for both spot and forward delivery. Gold was 1d. higher at 112s. 8d. per oz. fine.

Sterling in relation to the chief gold currencies continued to improve in the foreign exchange market yesterday, though final quotations were below the best for the day. Dollars, after 3.69½, finished at 3.68⅞, as compared with 3.68 on Tuesday. Canadian dollars were ½c. cheaper at the close at 4.22½. In the European section francs fluctuated between 93¼ and 93⅝, and closed ¼f. weaker on the day at 93⅜. Belgas, reichsmarks and Dutch florins all depreciated fractionally to 26 5/16, 15.57½ and 9.09½ respectively. The Italian exchange advanced by ⅛ lira to 71⅞, and the Spanish rate by ¼ point to 44 11/16. Among the Scandinavian currencies, the Swedish krona was finally 1/16kr. firmer on balance at 19 11/16, but the Norwegian rate rose by 1/16kr. to 20⅛. The feature of the South American group was the weakness of the Argentine dollar, which closed at a fraction over 35d., as compared with 35⅜d. In the Far Eastern exchanges, Japanese yen depreciated by 1/16d. to 20⅝d.

UNITED STATES CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION.

A further decline in crude oil production in the United States and a reduction in petrol stocks in America is recorded. Output of crude oil in the United States is estimated to have averaged 2,225,350 barrels daily in the week ended May 21, a decrease of 12,050 barrels per day as compared with the preceding week. The current daily rate of output is 211,800 barrels below that of a year ago, while it shows a decline of 748,100 barrels from the peak established in the week ended August 31, 1929. Petrol stocks in the United States were reduced in the week ended May 21 by 95,000 barrels to 44,703,000 barrels, reflecting seasonal increase in consumption. Storage is now 103,000 barrels less than a year ago.

STOCK EXCHANGES' 10-YEAR RECORD.

Messrs. F. C. Mathieson and Sons, 16 Copthall avenue, London, E.C. 2, have issued the 1932 edition of their valuable "Stock Exchanges' Ten-Year Record." (21s.) It covers the period 1922-31, and gives the dividends and highest and lowest prices in London and the provinces of about 7,000 securities. It is, as it claims to be, the largest and most complete publication of its kind issued. In giving details of dividends most of the text books state what is paid for a company's financial period, but in this matter the "Record" gives each variable dividend or rate of dividend paid at particular dates without any regard to the period of accrual, thus being much more useful to accountants for checking the returns of clients for surtax assessments. The Irish Free State Loans are set forth in the same manner as those in the British Section, and all the companies dealt in on our Exchange are adequately dealt with.

GERMAN SHIPPING COMPANIES.

The boards of the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd Lines, which are now closely linked together, have decided to recommend to their shareholders drastic reductions in and cancellations of the share capital. The North German Lloyd Line would cancel £575,000 of its own shares which it holds and reduce the remaining share capital by two-thirds to £2,475,000, also converting £167,000 Preference Shares into Ordinary Shares. The Hamburg-American Line would cancel £20,000 of its own shares and reduce its capital by two-thirds to £2,660,000, but it is proposed to leave £68,500 Preference Shares untouched. The North German Lloyd would apply £7,025,000 to depreciation, and the Hamburg American Line £7,685,000. Each company would place £1,200,000 to special reserve for further anticipated losses. This is rendered possible by the profits from the share cancellations and reductions of capital and the fact that the North German Lloyd receives a further £1,203,000 in respect of the released American properties. The Hamburg-American Line similarly receives £1,888,000. All the figures are given at par of exchange. Both companies have passed their dividend, whereas each paid 6 per cent. a year ago.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

CANDIDATE SUED BY AGENT.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Michael Doran, 40 Casino road, Croydon Park, sued John P. Cuffe, 153 North Circular road, cattle salesman, for work done during the last general election, at which Mr. Cuffe stood as an Independent candidate.

Plaintiff stated that he acted as director of election for Mr. Cuffe, and had made all the payments set out in his bill, the balance of which—£17 18s. 5d.—he now claimed.

Mr. Monks (for the defendant) said that if Mr. Doran produced the necessary vouchers now or at any time he would be paid, but unless and until that was done he would not be paid.

Plaintiff was cross-examined as to his failure to submit vouchers for certain items, particularly those lumped together as £13 10s. 0d. petty cash and sundry expenses. In reply, he said that it was very difficult during an election to get vouchers for every little 2s. 6d. or 5s., but he had got signatures in a book for a good many, such as 17s. for a motor driver's teas and dinners.

Mr. Monks submitted that a litigant could not come into Court and say simply, "You owe me £13 10s 0d., and that's the end of it." He should prove his claim and show that the expenses were properly and legitimately incurred within the scope of his authority.

The Justice said that he accepted Mr. Doran's statement that the £13 10s. 0d. had been properly paid, but there should be some evidence as to the purpose for which, and the manner in which, the paymnets had been made. The object of the payments was to assist Mr. Cuffe's candidature, but had they been made within the legitimate scope of the sub-agent's duties?

Mr. George Bendall, secretary to Mr. Cuffe's election committee, produced the minute book of their proceedings. The minutes showed that on 4th February he had complained in Mr. Doran's presence of Mr. Doran not keeping an account of his expenditure. A week later there was a complaint that Mr. Doran was getting printing work done without getting estimates, and had not submitted vouchers in respect of £22 out of a total disbursement of £107. After that witness went through Mr. Doran's accounts along with Mr. Doran, and in those accounts there was no claim for £13 10s. 0d. petty cash payments.

The Justice said that he had no doubt Mr. Doran had expended the £13 10s. legitimately, but the Court required some evidence as to the nature and object of the payments comprised in it. The case would be dismissed without prejudice.

STOPPED CHEQUE.

HOW DEFENDANT HAD TO PAY TWICE.

David Vard, furrier, 8 Grafton street, sued Mrs. Alice Conlan, 65 Marlborough street, for £12 14s 6d., alleged to be due on foot of a cheque drawn by Mrs. Conlan in favour of one D. Rivlin, payment of which was stopped.

According to the evidence Mrs. Conlan, on the 13th November, 1931, gave the cheque to D. Rivlin in payment for goods sold to her, but stopped the cheque because she was dissatisfied with the quality of the goods. Meantime Rivlin presented the cheque at the Terenure and other branches of the National Bank, but failed to get cash for it, as the cheque was crossed "& Co.," and the bank managers did not know him. Next day Rivlin got the cheque cashed by Mr. Vard, who knew him. When Mr. Vard put the cheque through the bank for collection it was returned marked "Payment stopped." On the 16th November Rivlin issued a civil bill against Mrs. Conlan for the value of the goods supplied to her, and for which payment had been stopped, and he was paid £12 14s. 6d.

Mr. Walter Moloney (instructed by Mr. John P. Smyth), for Mrs. Conlan, said that he had no defence in law, but the effect of a decree against his client would be to make her pay the £12 14s. 6d. twice. He had subpœnaed Rivlin as a witness, but Rivlin was not present. He could not understand Rivlin issuing a civil bill against Mrs. Conlan when at the time the cheque was in possession of Mr. Vard.

The Justice said that it was very hard luck on Mrs. Conlan, but he should give a decree for the amount claimed.

Mr. F. S. Sherry (instructed by Mr. M. Noyk) appeared for the plaintiff.

CASE OF A STUDENT.

Joseph Honan (21), an engineering student, with an address in Stamer street, was charged on remand with stealing from St. Stephen's Green a motor car value £140, the property of Francis P. Freeman, Ellesmere, Merrion road. He was also charged with causing damage to the car to the extent of £45 by crashing it into a wall at Newbridge, and a further count accused him of the theft of five gallons of petrol, value 7s. 6d.

At the previous hearing it was announced that the defendant gave himself up to the Guards at Newbridge, and had made a statement to the effect that he took the car away "on the impulse of the moment."

On the application of Mr. L. T. McCarthy, solicitor, who defended, a remand on bail until Saturday next was granted.

LANGUAGE AND POLITICS.

When charged with disorderly behaviour and using profane and obscene language at the Coombe early yesterday morning, Mary Farrell (47), Grenville street, said: "I was talking to myself about de Valera and Woodrow Wilson when the Guard arrested me."

A fine of 20s. was imposed.

N.S.P.C.C. ANNUAL MEETING.

TWO IRISH MEMBERS OF COUNCIL ELECTED.

LONDON, Wednesday.

There was quite a large attendance of representatives from Ireland when Lord Ullswater presided to-day at the annual meeting of the Council of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, held at Victory House.

Presenting the Society's 48th annual report, he said that last year's activities showed a gradual and steady increase. More cases had been investigated, more advice had been sought and given by the branches, in the country as well as in London; more parents had been advised and warned, there had been a few more prosecutions for cruelty and neglect, a few more children had been dealt with, and there had been many more visits of supervision.

"Here is a Society," concluded Lord Ullswater, "which has been in existence for forty-eight years. What would England have been like during those years if the Society had not existed? It is difficult to realise what a state of backwardness, what a want of civilisation, what a low grade might have sprung up in many classes of children if the Society had not been in existence and done the work which it has accomplished all this time."

On the motion of the Dowager Lady Swaythling, seconded by Mrs. Maud Walsh, the Director (Mr. W. J. Elliott) was re-elected. Lady Quekett, Belfast, and Mr. Daniel O'Connell (Hon. Secretary, Dundalk) were elected Honorary Members of the Council.

The following were among those present:—Mrs. Maud Walsh (Dublin), Mrs. Leeper (Dublin), Mrs. Kennedy, wife of Chief Justice Kennedy; Mrs. John Allen (Belfast), Colonel Brabazon (Dublin), Mrs. W. J. Storey (Belfast), Captain John W. Storey, B.E. (Organising Secretary for Ireland), Miss Rita Rodden (Organiser in Ireland of the League of Pity), Miss Muriel Noble (Dublin), and Miss Jennings (Organiser, Ireland).

During the meeting a telegram was received from the Lord Mayor of Dublin regretting his inability to be present at the meeting, and expressing his warm appreciation of the splendid services rendered by the N.S.P.C.C. in Ireland.

Road Traffic Anomaly.

Position of the Railways.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DUNDALK, Wednesday.

HOW Irish railway companies are compelled to subsidise road traffic was discussed at a meeting of the Dundalk Urban Council.

A report was read from the Town Clerk (Mr. O'Mahony) stating that during the past year one of the main asphalt roads, which had cost £15,890 to make, had to be ripped up eighteen times during the past year in order to repair water-main bursts. Such bursts were attributed to lorries of excessive tonnage. This traffic was undoubtedly taken from the railways by what was, in effect, a subsidy from local rates through expenditure on roads and water mains. In the case of Dundalk the Great Northern Railway, being the largest ratepayers, had to bear the largest portion of the subsidy for this uneconomic competition.

Mr. McGahon said that not merely had the railway companies to meet this unfair competition, but they had to pay the cost of subsidising it. He suggested that the Dail be asked to provide the necessary powers enabling local authorities to stop a traffic which the roads were never meant to bear.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

The Coming of St. Patrick.

CORK, Wednesday.

In celebration of the coming of St. Patrick to Ireland a special choral festival was held yesterday in St. Fin Barre's Cathedral, Cork. Choirs from thirty-five parishes in the diocese took part, and the singers numbered over 350. Bishop Shaw, Assistant Bishop of Oxford, preached, and also present were the Bishop of Cork, Cloyne and Ross; the Dean of Cork, and members of the Chapter. The Lessons were read by the Archdeacon of Cloyne and the Rev. Canon Scott. The processional hymn was "Lift thy banner Church of Erin," and other hymns were "It were my soul's desire," "O God, our help in ages past," and "Christ is the world's Redeemer." "The Breastplate of St. Patrick" also was sung.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Wednesday.

Trading on the Grain Market to-day was of a light character, and price movements were narrow. Values declined during early transactions owing to scattered selling and liquidation, while the weakness of the Stock Market was another bearish factor. Advices of a 5 per cent. increase in the French foreign quota and covering operations, however, assisted a partial rally towards the close. Wheat was early depressed by news of scattered rains in the South-West area and owing to selling by commission houses, but a rally ensued on the mid-monthly report from Nebraska indicating the condition to be at 58 per cent., with serious infestation of the Hessian fly. Advices of continued deterioration of the crops in Kansas and buying by local professionals constituted other bullish features. Maize values eased owing to increased offerings. Otherwise the market was without feature, prices moving in unison with the fluctuations in wheat. Rye also followed wheat, while reports of an inquiry for export had a strengthening effect. Oats were influenced by the price changes in maize, but business was quiet.

WHEAT opened steady at ⅛c. to ½c. loss, but closed firm at ⅛c. to ½c. dearer rates.

The Value of Good Health.

Object of Carlow Exhibition.

CARLOW, Wednesday.

THE Carlow Health Exhibition was opened in the Town Hall, Carlow, to-day, by Most Rev. Dr. Cullen, Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin. The Exhibition was promoted by the County Carlow Board of Health, and most efficiently organised by Dr. A. D. McMahon, County Medical Officer of Health.

The programme stated that people could be led to realise most clearly the importance to their health of fresh air, sunshine, cleanliness and good food, and the dangers of unclean milk diet and the neglect of personal hygiene.

An important feature of the Exhibition is the large number of stalls dealing with health matters.

Brigadier-General Browne-Clayton presided at the opening function. There were also on the platform the Very Rev. J. Dunny, Adm.; Dr. Sterling Berry (Free State Local Government Department), the Rev. Canon Ridgeway, M.A.; Dr. McMahon, D. Fenlon, Mrs. L. Doyle and Mrs. Whyte.

The Bishop said that this Exhibition was unique, because it appealed to every section of the community—young and old, rich and poor. They all recognised that among the natural gifts given to them by Providence health held the principal place. The millionaire would willingly sacrifice most of his possessions to have the robust health of the poor mendicant walking the road. If good health could be purchased by money, it would be valued much more than it was. The object of the Exhibition was to bring under the notice of the people the means they could adopt to strengthen and preserve their health. It showed them the means they could adopt to obviate disease, and the means to be adopted to rob disease of its injurious effects.

Dr. McMahon said that the desire for good health applied to all humanity, without distinction of sex or class or creed. The results of that Exhibition were bound to be far-reaching, and he thought that the people of Carlow had reason to be grateful to, and proud of, the Board of Health for embarking on this great enterprise.

The Exhibition will be continued until Friday. Several interesting papers dealing with public health will be read by medical men and public representatives.

FUNERAL OF MR. MICHAEL DAWSON.

There was a large and representative attendance at the funeral of the late Mr. Michael Dawson, solicitor, and Examiner in the Irish Land Commission, which took place yesterday morning to Glasnevin Cemetery after Solemn Requiem Mass at the Church of the Three Patrons, Rathgar.

The celebrant of the Mass was the Very Rev. John Dawson, S.M., Provincial of the Marist Order in Ireland, a brother of the deceased. The prayers in the Mortuary Chapel at Glasnevin were recited by the cemetery chaplain, the Rev. M. Kivlehan.

The chief mourners were:—Mrs. Michael Dawson (widow), William Dawson (son), the Very Rev. John Dawson, S.M.; Charles C. Dawson and William Dawson, barrister-at-law (brothers); William J. McGrath (brother-in-law), Richard O'Gorman and J. E. O'Gorman (cousins).

Cork Harbour Board's Finances.

Call For Increase of Maize Dues.

CORK, Wednesday.

A special sub-committee of the Cork Harbour Board appointed to investigate the revenue account reported at to-day's meeting as to the best way of meeting the deficiency of £5,116 on the last nine months. They expressed the opinion that the Board could not afford to continue the reduction on maize dues, which have been lowered from 1s. 8d. to 10d. per ton, and recommended that dues should be increased to 1s. per ton. They also suggested that one of the dredgers at present employed by the Board should be laid up, and that the granting of annual holidays on full pay be confined to men on the established staff.

The Chairman (Mr. Richard Wallace) said that there would probably be a deficit of £7,000 or £8,000 on the full year's working, and something had to be done to meet it. If the maize dues were increased it would mean additional revenue of £1,000. The laying up of the dredger would save £100 per week, though it would mean the slowing up of the work on the Tivoli scheme. The other suggestion as to holidays would save about £200.

The recommendation of the special committee that the import dues on maize be increased from 10d. to 1s. per ton was opposed by Messrs. O'Shea and Horne, who put forward an amendment that the rate remain unchanged. It was agreed, at Mr. O'Shea's suggestion, that this portion of the committee's recommendation be adjourned for a week to give the importers an opportunity of considering it.

The other recommendations were adopted.

Liners for Cork.

Thirty-Two to Call during June.

CORK, Wednesday.

Thirty-two trans-Atlantic liners are scheduled to call at Cork Harbour during the month of June. At the meeting of the Cork Harbour Board to-day, Mr. Richard Wallace, Chairman, drew attention to this. He would like, he said, to ask the whole-hearted co-operation of the Commissioners in having all arrangements perfected, so as to ensure that every facility in their power should be extended both to the shipowners and the passengers. He also considered it their duty to request the Government departments to give every help in expediting the examination of passengers' baggage on arrival.

The White Star liner Homeric, would, he said, arrive on June 18. She would be the largest arrival for many years, and he understood she would land about 1,000 passengers. It was his intention, with the Commissioners' permission, to pay a visit of courtesy to the liner, and he would like the members to accompany him.

The liners calling during June included the Homeric (34,351 tons), Columbus (32,565 tons), Georgic (2,800 tons), Brittanic (26,943 tons)), and also the Baltic, Deutschland, New York, Saturnia and Adriatic, all of them over 20,000 tons. The Ile de France, of 43,153 tons, is to call at the port on August 14th.

IRISH MOILED CATTLE.

ANCIENT BREEDS' REVIVAL.

FURTHER PROGRESS REPORTED.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

THE Irish Moiled Cattle Society, which has been established in Belfast, is endeavouring to resuscitate the ancient breed of moiled cattle, which is a hardy animal of good milking qualities, suitable for the small holders on the hillsides.

At the annual dinner of the Irish Moiled Cattle Society, in the Grand Central Hotel, Belfast, this evening, further progress was reported in the development of the breed.

A YEAR OF PROGRESS.

Mr. Francis A. Heron, D.L., J.P., who presided, said that they would have seen for themselves at the Royal Ulster Show that the Irish Moiled Cattle Society had not been standing still, either in the quality or the number of exhibits. Close on ninety animals had been registered during the year, and there were fifty-three exhibits at the Show, as against forty-two last year. The breed, he was pleased to say, was gradually being standardised, and was slowly, but surely, gaining in popularity in the hills and small holdings of Ulster. This could not be wondered at when one considered that there was no hardier beast, or none that could live on as coarse fare as the Irish moil. Most of the popular breeds of cattle in Ulster were "valley cattle," and therefore unprofitable for the small holders in the hills. There was one exception, the Galloway, but, unfortunately, from the small holders point of view, it did not give enough milk. The society looked for the help of the Northern Ministry in its work at no distant date. Already the Ministry had given their patronage by acknowledging "Irish moils" as a distinct breed of cattle; without which acknowledgement they could not have made any progress.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The Registrar (Captain J. Gregg, O.B.E., J.P.), in his annual report, stated: Your committee is the third Irish organisation who attempted to bring back the "oul moiley cow." After an initial attempt at "rule of thumb methods," they found that, before they could make any great headway, they must study Mendel's Law and Atavism, as these applied to cattle, so that they would be in a position to collect the throwbacks from the existing Irish moiled stock and so eliminate the result of previous crossings. They, therefore, selected cattle red in colour, with a white stripe down the back, and by mating these hitherto uncrossed strains of Irish moils—that is, West of Ireland cattle—with those existing in Down, Antrim, Tyrone and Derry they got calves which were undoubtedly "throwbacks" to the original Irish cattle.

In this way hardiness, as well as correct colouring, is being re-established. All that now remains to be done is to retain and breed up from those with a useful conformation and milk qualities. It is on these points that your Committee are working at the present time.

The Committee wishes to record its grateful thanks to the Ministry of Agriculture for kindly recognising the breed and for licensing the bulls. There are now 525 animals on our register, 88 more than this time last year. (At the show this year 53, against 42 last year.)

A DEFINITE BREED.

Mr. William Mitchell, who judged the Irish moiled cattle at the show to-day, said that in four or five years the Society had developed the breed from a nondescript collection to a definite breed with special character. They were working on the right lines, and he advised them not to specialise in cattle for beef only, but to remember the milking qualities. He intended to offer a prize next year for the best exhibit of the standard colour.

Mr. John D. Gordon, M.P., submitting the toast of the prize-winners, as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour, congratulated the Society on the steps they were taking to improve conditions in agriculture, and the prize-winners upon their success.

Mr. Adam Dickson, who responded, said that it was a creditable thing to establish a breed of cattle that would be beneficial to the farmers of Ireland. He stressed the fact that Irish moiled cattle would thrive on the most difficult type of feeding, and were large milk producers.

Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P., said that from what he had seen of the Irish moiled cattle at Balmoral he was convinced that they were going to be a most suitable breed for the small farmers on Irish hillsides. He proposed the "Royal Ulster Agricultural Society," to which Mr. Isaac Smith responded.

TARIFF PROBLEM.

Mr. P. A. Fitzpatrick, Agri, proposing the toast of Ulster agriculture, said that agriculture was changing over from bad times to good times. He believed that tariffs were not the solution of the problems of agriculture; for tariffs, as they had experienced in the North, and as they saw in the Free State, could be a great boomerang. He believed that the method that was being adopted by the British Government in relation to bacon—that was the quota import system—was the right solution for this country. He believed that co-operation between the creamery industry and the bacon producing industry, by using the skim milk for pigs, was eventually going to be very profitable to Northern Ireland.

Mr. Hugh Mindford, M.P., responded.

Mr. George B. Hanna, M.P., proposed the toast of the Irish Moiled Cattle Society. He was convinced, he said, that every member of the Northern Parliament would be prepared to associate himself with their Society, and supplement their practical efforts by such help as was possible and reasonable.

Mr. Robert Clyde, J.P., responding, said that it was a great honour to be associated with the Society. They would agree with him that a society that had such a record after only passing its sixth birthday was a marvellous undertaking. He complimented the President and Captain Gregg upon the great success it had achieved, and concluded by again offering a prize of £10 for competition.

Mr. Adam Dickson also responded, and Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P., submitted the toast of the President, whom he thanked for his hospitality.

Mr. Heron briefly replied.

COLERAINE, Wednesday.

An exciting happening took place during the boat race yesterday at Coleraine between the crews of the Methodist College, Belfast, and Coleraine Academical Institution. A strong wind made the river unusually rough, and the race had scarcely been started when the Methodist College crew got into difficulties and stopped, to swim ashore about eighty yards away. The spectators, who had been following the race in motor cars and bicycles along the road, which runs parallel with the course, rushed to the river edge and shouted words of encouragement to the swimmers. W. E. Montgomery, the coxswain, could make little progress against the strong-running tide, and was visibly tiring when Terence Clarke, stroke of the Coleraine Institution senior crew, entered the river and swam to his assistance. Two members of the Methodist College crew joined Clarke, and between them they got Montgomery, in an exhausted condition, to safety, the spectators applauding them loudly as they left the water.

Miss Victoria Odevaine, of Thomond House, North Great George's street, Dublin, who died on 22nd April last, left personal estate in England and the Irish Free State valued at £13,501 13s. 8d. Probate of the will and codicil has been granted to her sister, Mrs. Nora Brannan, and Dr. Francis Brannan, both of Abbey View House, Castledermot, Co. Kildare, and Noel May Purcell, of 16 Dawson street, Dublin.

IRISH NEWS IN BRIEF.

Typhoid in County Kilkenny.—In Piltown (Co. Kilkenny) district typhoid fever is very prevalent, and a number of deaths has occurred.

• • • • •

Mr. Lemass to Speak in Cork.—Mr. Lemass, Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce; Mr. T. P. Dowdall, T.D., and Mr. Hugo Flinn, T.D., are to address a public meeting in Cork on Saturday.

• • • • •

Against Central Purchasing.—The resolution of the Dundalk Business Men's Club asking that the Central Purchasing Department be abolished, and that local traders should be allowed to tender for the institution's supplies, was passed unanimously by the Offaly Board of Health.

• • • • •

Railway Workers' Plea.—A deputation of the employés of the local railway station waited on the Tipperary Urban Council and urged the claim of the railway to support from the public in the matter of traffic. The deputationists pointed out that as a result of the employment given £20,000 was spent in the district yearly, whereas the lorry traffic gave no such employment. The Council endorsed the deputation's views, and decided to call a public meeting to which all the county T.D.'s were to be invited.

• • • • •

Use of Courthouse.—At yesterday's meeting of the Cork County Council, Captain Collins referred to the recent action of the City Sub-Sheriff in refusing the use of the Courthouse to University College students for their annual "rag." He asked by what authority this had been done. The Chairman (Mr. D. L. O'Gorman) said that the Sheriff had full control over the building. Captain Collins pointed out that the County Sheriff had equal power with the City Sheriff in such a case. After considerable discussion the matter was dropped.

• • • • •

Sentenced. — At Galway Circuit Court yesterday, before Judge Wyse Power and a jury, Annie Quinn (46) and her son, Joseph Quinn (24), of Market street, Clifden, were charged with attempting to make counterfeit coins and with being in possession of material and instruments which could be adapted or used for the manufacture of counterfeit coins. The jury found Annie Quinn "not guilty," and she was discharged, and Joseph, her son, guilty on the charge of being in possession of materials and implements which could be used, or adapted, in the making of base coins. He was sentenced to fifteen calendar months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Appointment.—Acting on the recommendation of the Appointments Commissioners, Wicklow County Council unanimously appointed Mr. Joseph Brazil solicitor to that body and to the County Board of Health.

• • • • •

A Money Question.—At a meeting of the Dundalk Urban Council a resolution was received from the Dundalk Cumann Fianna Fail, pointing out that five million pounds had been allocated for housing for the workers, and calling on the Council to go forward with schemes for building at least 300 houses to let at weekly rents of four shillings. The Town Clerk stated that the Council had their plans ready for housing schemes, but they had to await the money being allocated.

• • • • •

The Land Annuities.—Dr. P. J. O'Dowd, speaking at a Fianna Fail meeting in Elphin, dealt with the land annuities. He said that President de Valera intended to honour his pledge by retaining the annuities, and giving complete derating to the farmers. A little patience must be exercised by all, and in time effect would be given to this, as well as to all the other schemes promised. The farmers must pay their annuities. If they did not pay them they could not expect relief from the rates; they could not have it both ways.

Poteen Case Appeal.—At Letterkenny Circuit Court yesterday, James Lynch, Straths, Clonmany, appealed against the decision of the District Justice in sentencing him to two months' imprisonment, with hard labour, on a charge of being in possession of a quantity of poteen. After the evidence had been given, Judge Moonan said that he had no hesitation in confirming the decision of the Justice. The evidence now before him regarding the man's ill-health was not before the Justice. In view of that evidence he would, while confirming the period of imprisonment, remit the hard labour.

Northern Herring Fisheries.—The Ministry of Commerce for Northern Ireland furnishes the following particulars of the quantity and value of herring landed in Northern Ireland during the week ended May 21:—Ardglass: 209 crans, value £393, all freshed, 21 boats engaged; season's total to date, 1,616 cwts., value £940, as compared with 628 cwts., value £424, in the corresponding period of the year 1931. Portavogie: 12 mease, value £15, all freshed, 11 boats engaged; season's total to date, 146 cwts., value £77, as compared with 128 cwts., value £71, in the corresponding period of the year 1931.

THE EXCHANGE FUND.

GOLD STANDARD PROBLEM.

HOUSE EXPRESSES ANXIETY.

From Our Parliamentary Correspondent.

WESTMINSTER, Wednesday.

THE debate in Committee on the Finance Bill was resumed on the clause dealing with the Exchange Equalisation Account, and Mr. A. Bevan moved an amendment to provide that a committee representative of all sections engaged in industry should be appointed to advise the Treasury as to the control of the fund.

Sir Stafford Cripps, supporting the amendment, said that the Treasury was ill-equipped for obtaining an insight into industrial policy requirements. It was not its function, neither had the Bank of England, which was to administer the fund, the necessary capacity for taking a truly industrial view, as against the purely financial view, with regard to exchange matters.

Major Elliot (Financial Secretary to the Treasury) said that it was a reasonable request that industry should have its interests consulted when they were considering the financial policy of the country. The be pursued. He did not think that such a be pursued. He did not think thatsuch a committee as was suggested could possibly be acquainted with the day-to-day or month-by-month policy of the management of the Exchange Fund.

The amendment was rejected by 349 votes to 48.

Mr. Mabane moved to omit the provisions that the Exchange Account should be wound up not later than six months after the date when the Gold Standard Act, suspending the obligation of the Bank of England to sell gold bullion at a certain price, ceased to have effect. This provision, he said, clearly indicated a return to the gold standard, and that they wanted to prevent.

Mr. Boothby, supporting the amendment, said that the chief difficulty in this debate was that they did not know what the ultimate object of the Government was in framing their financial and currency policy. Did the Chancellor of the Exchequer contemplate the possibility of linking sterling to gold again without any international understanding?

Mr. Amery considered that the last two speakers had done good service in calling attention to the wording of the section. It showed that the advisers of the Government still retained the old notion of returning to the gold standard.

Major Elliot replied that the Government had no intention of going back to gold; at any rate, whilst gold prices remained as they are now. It did not seem to him that the words in the clause prejudiced the ultimate solution of the matter.

Sir Robert Horne suggested that the Financial Secretary should agree to consider the whole question in the light of the debate before the Report stage. The Government, he was sure, must recognise that there was a very strong feeling in the House on this question.

Major Elliot said that the appeal made by Sir Robert Horne was one he was bound to take into consideration. He would gladly give the undertaking asked for, but he wished to repeat that the Government had no intention of returning to the gold standard so long as gold behaved as it was doing.

Mr. Churchill thought that the Committee would be well advised to accept the assurance given by the Financial Secretary.

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn. Clauses 21, 22 and 23 were added to the bill, and the House adjourned.

PLUNDERING THE PUBLIC.

BUDGET ECONOMICS CRITICISED.

"THE Free State Budget is a monstrous combination of the ideals of Glasgow Communism and Tory Die-Hard tariffism," declared Mr. J. Johnston, M.A., Barrington, Lecturer in Economics, speaking under the auspices of Bray Technical School last night.

The lessons of recent world experience of tariffs, he said, had been given in vain, so far as the Free State's present rulers were concerned. Any tariff must incidentally increase the cost of living in the community as a whole, and the cost of production in all other industries. Every reduction of our imports as a result of prohibitive tariffs must sooner or later react on and diminish the volume of our exports. Apart from all other reasons, our foreign customers can only continue to buy our exports with the money that they obtain for selling us our imports.

"The financial effect of tariffs is to set up, in addition to the State, a series of favoured interests, which, like the State, are privileged to levy toll on the public, but, unlike the State, are not required to spend the proceeds of that exaction on any public purpose. It is difficult to estimate in financial terms that fraction of the revenue of the community which under tariffs will be diverted to private taxgatherers, and this is one of the most objectionable features of the whole tariff system."

In one respect, the lecturer went on, the Budget treats every receiver of more than £500 a year income as a public enemy, and proceeds to plunder a hundred thousand of our citizens for the supposed advantage of the remainder. To raise income tax under present economic conditions is to destroy, or very seriously to impair, the only motives for economic enterprise on which capitalistic society has hitherto relied.

INDUSTRIES OF ULSTER.

NEW PAVILION OPENED.

GREAT VARIETY OF EXHIBITS:

BELFAST, Wednesday.

A NEW feature of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's Show this year is an Ulster Industries Pavilion, organised by the Ulster Industries Development Association. In the Pavilion are about fifty stands, displaying a variety of products manufactured in Northern Ireland, including those of several new industries. Razor blades of high-class quality at a retail price of one penny each are being made in Belfast, and these were shown on one stand, and attracted much interest, while in household goods there were displayed such commodities as cleaning powder, boot, shoe and floor polishes; furniture cream, household paints, varnishes, enamels, dry distemper, motor car polishes, disinfectants, canned chicken, jams, ice-cream and biscuits; while one of the Belfast shipbuilding firms was showing samples of school furniture, steel construction work, electric radiators and heaters.

A large attendance at the opening ceremony included:—The Prime Minister (Viscount Craigavon), Lady Craigavon, the Minister for Commerce (the Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour), the Minister for Agriculture (the Right Hon. Sir Edward Archdale), Colonel Gordon, M.P.; the Speaker of the Northern House of Commons (the Right Hon. Harry Mulholland), the Lord Mayor of Belfast (Sir Crawford M'Cullagh), the Mayor of Londonderry (Senator M'Corkell), and Mr. Robert Clyde, J.P.

Captain J. L. Chichester-Clark, D.S.O., D.L., M.P., President of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, who presided, said that he hoped the Pavilion would be an ever-increasing and permanent feature of the Show.

The Prime Minister, in performing the opening ceremony, said that he thought that new Pavilion would be of the utmost value to both country and town, and its inclusion in the Show was due to the far-sighted policy of Mr. James A. Cleland, the Chairman of the Ulster Industries Development Association. He could only say, on behalf of the Government, that they appreciate far more than they could adequately express the devoted services of that band of voluntary workers who had been endeavouring for many years to see that Ulster people were induced with advantage to buy, where they possibly could, goods of local manufacture, and when they could not get what they required locally, then to buy British, and after that from the Empire. He must commend the President and the Secretary of the Society for the great activity they had shown.

Mr. James A. Cleland, President of the Ulster Industries Development Association, proposed a vote of thanks to the Prime Minister, and referred to the happy blend of agriculture and industry joined in the Show. With a background of the oldest industry in the world in its most modernised forms, there were gathered in the pavilion examples of the industry of Ulster, shown by firms who, though century old, were still progressive, and others who, though younger, had established world-wide reputations, and alongside of these were examples of many new products and of numerous complete new industries.

They had ever kept in mind the possibility of fostering employment in all parts of the province, and they were specially glad to be able to say that there were exhibits from each of the Six Counties.

The Mayor of Derry (Senator M'Corkell), seconded the vote of thanks.

A vote of thanks was conveyed to the President of the Society, Captain Chichester Clark, by the Lord Mayor of Belfast (Sir Crawford M'Cullogh).

Government's Plans For De-Rating.

Department's Letter.

CORK, Wednesday.

A letter from the Free State Department of Local Government referring to the Free State Government's plans for de-rating was read at yesterday's meeting of the Cork County Council. It stated that it was intended to provide additional relief for agricultural ratepayers, but that in any county where the rate had not yet been struck it should be made on the basis of existing requirements and exclusive of the grant in contemplation. The allocation of the additional grant was at present engaging the attention of the Government, with the object of limiting its application to the first £10, or lesser valuation, in each case.

The letter requested the Council to furnish the list of ratepayers occupying small farms not exceeding £10 in valuation of land. Farmers owning more than one farm should be excluded where the combined valuations exceeded £10. When the allocation of the new grant had been decided, particulars of the method of allocation would be conveyed. At present the intention was that this should be done by way of a credit note system, so as not to interfere with the rate demand notes already issued.

A further letter explained that it was intended completely to de-rate farms under £10 valuation and the first £10 off other valuations.
